LOOK YOU HERE.

If you want genuine reliable birds at the rock bottom prices, you must deal with the genuine reliable breeder and importer, who tests every bird as to its singing qualifications and studies in detail your requirements. My world wide reputation is made on German business lines by supplying high-class sound, health, reliable birds at lowest possible prices. Let me send you birds on approval that you may compare them with others that have cost more: you will then be fully convinced that it is utterly impossible to get the same quality elsewhere at anything like the price. I have now ready for immediate disposal, 1,000 grand 1911 youngsters, well moulted, and cocks in song, including my famous German songsters, the German working man's friend; cocks that will sing by day and gaslight, loud, free, continuous songsters; every bird tested before sending out. Cocks, 4/6, 5/-, 5/6, 6/- each; matched pairs for breeding songsters, 6/-, 6/6, 7/6, 8/-. German trained St. Andreasburg Rollers, with full change of song by day and artificial light, bred and trained by leading contest winners in their home land, with full volume of song, free from harsh or choppy notes, cocks, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6 each; hens, 2/-, 2/6, 3/- each. High-class long slim typical Yorkshires, in all colours, clean moulted, cocks 5/-, 5/6, 6/-, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6; a few extra good specimens for exhibition, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-; accurately matched pairs for breeding, 7/6, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6; superior quality, lengthy hens, 2/-, 2/6, 3/-, 3/6, 4/6. Plainhead Norwich, thick-set, cobby, stylish Norwich, in all colours, quality that will astound you, especially at the prices; clean moulted cocks, in song, 5/-, 5/6, 6/-, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6 each; grand quality hens, 2/-, 2/6, 3/-, 3/6, 4/- each; matched breeding pairs, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6; neat travelling cages, 3d. each. You really must see these birds to be convinced of their value, for it is utterly impossible for small breeders or dealers to sell such quality at the prices; all birds on seven days' approval at my risk, and I pay carriage back if you should not be satisfied: E. L. Storey, Practical Bird Specialist, Crowle, Doncaster.

THE IMPORTANT DIFFERENCE

between the Leipzig Rollers which I import and the ordinary Roller is that, whereas the song of the ordinary Roller usually consists of two or three long drawn out rolls, which soon become monotonous, the Leipzig Roller has a much more varied song, which can never jar upon the ear. I now have 500 pure Leipzig Roller cocks all guaranteed over moult, and now in full song with soft hollow and double rolls, sweet silvery trills, waterbubble runs, soft roulades, piccolo trills, bell, harp, and flute notes, and jug-jug of Nightingale, and warranted entirely free from any chopping or harsh notes whatever, price 6/6, 7/6, and 10/- each. Leipzig Roller hens, 1/9 each, 3/- couple. I am the only importer of this strain in the kingdom; all birds are stamped on wing, "Hans Weber, Leipzig," without which none are genuine. All are safely and warmly packed in special travelling cages, with seed and water to last 48 hours, free of extra charge, and sent on a full week's trial at my own risk, either on receipt of cash or if same is deposited with Editor, and money fully refunded if entire satisfaction not given. Following letters show that the Leipzig Rollers will continue in song for years. "52, St. Ives Grove, Stanley, Liverpool, Oct. 9, 1911.—Sir,—Please send me following birds. I am sending to you for these birds, knowing you are a straightforward man to strangers. The Leipzig Roller I got from you last year has proved itself a real gem, just got over moult, and started singing again. I shall want another Roller later.—Yours, A. Gerrard." "Hill House, Long Marton, Carlisle, Oct. 9, 1911.—Sir,—Please send following. The Leipzig Roller I got from you 11 months ago is doing first class.—Yours, Chas. Ball." Kindly note I am the only importer of Weber's Leipzig Rollers in kingdom, and no other person can sell so much as one feather by this strain unless he first purchases it from me. I care not how hard a man is to please, I know I can do so if it is humanly possible. Dealers supplied. Send trade card for wholesale prices.

SUNDERLAND C.B.A.

Meeting held Oct. 28, Mr. Farrar presiding. Various matters connected with open show discussed. Secretary reported he had received subs. from Ald. S. Storey (president), and Mr. F. W. Goldstone, M.P. Mr. Goldstone was elected a vice-president. We have accepted the patronage of the Northern B. and S.F.C.—J. Jeffrey, Sec.

SHIPLEY O.S.

Judging competition held Prince of Wales, October 24th, Mr. E. B. Denton acting as neutral judge. A "free and easy" was afterwards held, when Mr. Denton kept the company in merriment with his reminiscences of judging and exhibiting. He might rightly be termed "the daddy of the Fancy in the district." Winners of competition: A. Craven, I. Crossland, H. Long, H. Martin, H. Bradshaw, J. A. Taylor, E. Grance. Spl. for best cock, L. Crossland; ditto hen J. A. Taylor.—A. Tillotson, Sec.

STOKE-ON-TRENT C.B.A.

Meeting held October 23rd, very good attendance. Important show business was transacted. Several of the special prizes to be competed for were on view, and elicited much admiration, a vote of thanks being unanimously passed to the doners. Decided that no sales commission be charged to members, so that if a member makes a sale or a purchase, he will have the full benefit of the transaction. Also decided, that members subs. must be fully paid up to entitle them to enter at reduced entry fee, and compete for members' specials.—J. Pitchford, Sec.

GLOSSOP, HADFIELD C.B.S.

Meeting held Mr. A. Deakin's, 59, Hague Street, Mr. W. Lawton (president) in chair. Meeting to decide a suitable judge for annual show, Dec. 16, Victoria Hall, Glossop. Voting resulted in Mr. W. Cundiff (Macclesfield), the well-known Lancashire and Lizard also Norwich breeder and exhibitor, being elected judge. The committee also desire me publicly to thank Messrs. R. Hyde and Co. for the offer of a special, to be given at our discretion, and which we have great pleasure in accepting. Next meeting: see "Club Notices" later.—E. Thompson, Sec.

WALLSEND C.B.A.

Meeting held Station Hotel, Oct. 25, Mr. J. Johnston in chair. Letters read and approved. Owing to a misunderstanding we found that the services of Mr. A. Hay had been lost to us for our show. The appointment of another was discussed; result: Mr. T. Dixon for first choice, failing him Mr. Seely. Reports of tickets sold and special subscriptions were very favourable. Stewards and door attendants agreed upon. Secretary reported Messrs. Spratts had kindly supplied all material for show. Three new members enrolled. We were highly favoured by Mr. Atkinson joining us, and Mr. Beaver a new fancier, I think, and Mr. Kay, thus making our membership for this year forty paid up. Several old members have not yet forwarded their subs. We shall be pleased to receive any during next week before Nov. 10. This is the largest number the society has yet had, and many are expressing the wish that we shall next year hold an open show. All are invited to next meeting for entry forms and schedules.—Macdonald and Evans, Hon. Secs.

GLASGOW & W. COUNTIES CLUB.

Meeting held Good Templars' Hall, 122, Ingram Street, Oct. 28, Mr. D. Knox presiding in the unavoidable absence of the president (Mr. W. Connelly). Classification for annual show, December 2 carefully gone over, some classes being added whilst others were deleted. Following well-known fanciers selected to place the cards: Norwich and Borders, Mr. G. Arnott (Kirkcaldy); Mules, British and Foreign, Mr. J. Strachan (Bathgate). Following fanciers were admitted to membership: Messrs J. Rankin and G. Bannerman (Glasgow), W. Cathcart (Pollokshaws), and J. Smith (Glasgow). Members were glad to see that staunch fancier, Mr. P. Pettigrew, in his usual seat, and looking remarkably well since his recent accident. Fifty specials were given in during the meeting. The committee take this opportunity of informing the members who reside outside the city boundaries, that specials will be allocated by Messrs. Adam, Young, and Drysdale on November 19, at secretary's house, 81, Fordneuk Street, East, and any member desirous of assisting in the way of a special might notify Mr. Drysdale at this address. The treasurer read a letter from one of our late members, viz., Mr. A. McInnes, now of South Brisbane, Australia. Mr. McInnes has been to a few shows since landing in the land of the kangaroo, and his criticism of the birds was most amusing. He states that the old scraps he had at home would be regular "Prince Charlies" out there.

HOLMFIRTH AND DIST. C.B.S.

First prize distribution held October 20th, Rose and Crown Inn. Practically all the members were present and sat down to an excellent supper, which Mr. Brearley Buckley had provided. After supper the President (Mr. C. R. Hampshire) took the chair, and in well-chosen words presented the prizes: Gold medal, Mr. G. Bray, 150 points; copper kettle, Mr. A. Hellawell, 130; Mr. H. Charlesworth, 82; Mr. N. Sandford, 68; Mr. J. C. Beaumont, 62; Mr. G. Shaw, 52; Mr. A. Bray, 41. A vote of thanks was given Mr. Hampshire, also Mr. Buckley. Mr. Hampshire proposed the toast of "The King." Songs were rendered by Messrs. Lee, Roberts, Smith, Bray, and Beaumont, and Mr. A. E. Riley presided at the piano.—Tom Smith, Sec.

CUMNOCK AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Meeting held Co-op. Hall, Auchinleck, Oct. 28th, Mr. H. Kinnear (President) in chair. Final preparations for show, December 2nd, made, so the motion for altering colours in the Norwich classes was unanimously agreed to, which allows us to get our schedule ready for the printer. Then we got a hearty response to appeal for specials, which were allocated to give all sections an equal share of same; so with about a score of specials, a cup, and gold medal to winner and B.F.C.C. medal, we have something for members to compete for. I would like to appeal to all members who have not paid up their annual subs; would they be so kind as to oblige by paying as early as possible? And any other fancier who may wish to become a member I will be very pleased to enrol.—Joseph Nutt, Sec.

MUSSELBURGH O.S.

Meeting held Oct. 28, Grey Horse Tavern, the President (Mr. J. Pearson) in chair. Some discussion took place regarding classification, when the following classes were deleted: Scotch Fancy 2, Yorks. 1, Crest. 2, and in their places 2 extra classes for novice Nor., and 2 extra novice classes for Bord. Fancier added. The hen Bullfinch class was altered, and made to read any variety British hen breeding Finch. Members proposed to become members of the CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE; each one was presented with a copy of the League's "Aims and Objects." Estimates for printing were carefully considered. Decided, to hold another meeting Nov. 18, 7 p.m., headquarters; all members are requested to attend, when show business will be finally settled. Committee meet same place Nov. 23, 7.30, when specials will be drawn for and show officials elected.—W. Nisbet, Hon. Sec.

YORKSHIRE C.C. OF SCOTLAND.

Meeting held Oct. 24th, 71, London Street, Glasgow. The President (Mr. T. Penman) presided. Sec. read correspondence regarding non-delivery of show cages, but it was felt nothing could be done except to leave the whole matter in the hands of the cage maker. For our club show to be held at the Glasgow and Dist. fixture in January, it was agreed to grant the following specials for young bird classes, viz., Champ., 5s. for most points, 3s. for second most points, and 2s. for third most points; Novices, 5s. for most points, 3s. for second most points, and 2s. for third most points. In the bowl competition the points won at Lochgelly are as follows: Martin 14, McLellan 13, MacRobbie 13, Heggie 12, Girvan 11, Crichton 8, Cochrane 8, Webster 7, Gibb 5, Sanderson 4, Reid 4, MacDougall 3, Reilly 1. The following gentlemen were unanimously elected to membership: Messrs. J. Ford (Kelty), J. W. Bruce (Coldstream), and Dr. J. C. Syson (Glasgow).—R. B. Gibb, Hon. Sec.

BANKFOOT AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

At the show held Red Lion Hotel, October 14th, only a very poor entry was recorded. This state of affairs is very disappointing to the officials, who have done their best to stimulate interest and enthusiasm amongst members. No doubt the removal of headquarters has something to do with the falling off of attendances at both shows and meetings. Unfortunately a good percentage of our members are only interested in their own welfare, and do not trouble themselves concerning the society's interest. I do not infer our society is by itself in this respect, but there is room for a vast improvement. In the past we have had some of the finest lecturers it is possible to obtain, but to ask the gentlemen to deliver lectures to the few regular attenders would be like adding insult to injury. Should any of the members have grievances, why not attend the meetings and have such grievances settled once and for all, instead of poisoning the minds of other members who are only in a position to learn one side of the case? The annual general meeting takes place in January, at which all grievances of an official nature can be remedied. Since our removal it is only fair to add that we have been handsomely treated by Mr. H. B. Wood, the proprietor of the Red Lion.—F. Gelder, Sec.

ARDWICK AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

General meeting held Oct. 17th, Headquarters, there being a good attendance. Mr. W. Robinson (chairman) gave a washing demonstration. He explained the things required—a good supply of hot and cold water, three vessels for washing and rinsing in, a good soft-haired shaving brush, also a small brush and sponge, soft cloth, and soap (powdered soap he preferred), and a drying cage, which should be placed before the fire and warmed before placing the birds in; also cover the front of cage with thin cloth, so the birds will not dry too quickly. On this occasion he had to use a drying case heated with a hot water tank, owing to our having no fireplace in meeting-room, but he preferred drying before the fire. Having everything ready on the table, he put water in the vessel, only using one on this occasion, it being a small bath. There was, he said, enough water to wash and rinse in. He took the bird in his left hand, breast downwards, and showed how to hold the bird with the thumb across the neck to the first finger, the other three fingers to be opened as much as possible to allow you to wash the bird in that position. He then immersed it in the water, soaking the feathers, and applied the soap and brush, washing down the back wings and tail. He turned the bird smartly over, washed under the wings, breast, throat and tail, and now turned the bird over as in the first position, only closing the fingers and taking the thumb off the neck. After washing this part he used the small brush to wash the head. He next rinsed the bird, using the sponge. Do not, he said, be afraid of the water. He soaked up as much water off the birds as possible with the sponge, then used the soft cloth to dry the feathers, finishing by wiping and laying the feathers in the right direction. He explained how to wrap the bird up if you preferred to dry them before the fire. He smartly put another one through the tubbing, this not taking him half the time as the first one. He now persuaded one of the novice members to wash the other bird; this member had never washed a bird before, but he instructed him all the while he was washing, and a right good job he made of it. While the birds were drying several questions were asked Mr. Robinson, who answered them to the satisfaction of all. A hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Robinson brought an instructive evening to a close. Next meeting Nov. 7th, washing competition for novices only. Mr. Downing has kindly offered the use of his spacious room at his home, so will all members meet at Mr. Downing's, The Hollies, Polygon Avenue, Stockport Road, Ardwick? Competition commences at 8 o'c. Mr. W. Robinson will judge. A gold centre silver medal is given by the society to winner.—J. Spencer, Hon. Sec.

PENDLETON AND SALFORD O.S.

Meeting held Irwell Castle, Oct. 23. Mr. Rumbelow presided over a good muster of members and friends. After the show business (arranging classes, choosing of medals, and specials, and altering show date to December 2nd, 1911), Mr. W. N. Turner commenced his washing exhibition. As he washed each bird he went through all the details, testing the water and putting a half-teaspoonful of borax in same to soften it. He used a fine powder soap; it was voted the best soap ever seen for the washing of birds. As each bird was going through the waters he explained everything, and then he placed the birds in his fine linen before the fire for a few minutes, and then in the drying cage (the drying cage is worth going a long way to see). Mr. Turner invited any member to try; one of the members accepted the invitation, and washed his first bird, and from the look of it after drying it was easy to tell that this member had watched Mr. T. very closely, and also listened attentively to the advice given. I dare say Mr. Slowley will now be independent of any fellow fancier as regards washing. After the birds were dried they were well inspected by all present, and everyone agreed that Mr. Turner was a master hand at the job. Then Mr. Turner very kindly offered a medal for best washed bird at our next meeting for members, several giving their names that night for the competition. A hearty vote of thanks was given Mr. Turner.—R. G. Metcalfe, Assist. Sec.

NATIONAL BRITISH BIRD & M.C.

Committee meeting held at headquarters, 28th Sept. Present: Messrs. J. Robson (chairman), J. Dewhurst, T. R. Trower, G. Mortlock, W. Page, G. E. Weston, Allen Silver, G. Crabb, A. J. Marley, A. C. Askew, C. T. Maxwell, R. A. Newley, A. Plumbridge, and J. P. Carr. Letters were read from Messrs. Wilkinson, Gregson, Bancroft, Cocks, Ramsden, and Reading, Swanley, Rochdale, Brighton, and London Federation Societies. The following medals were granted the Crystal Palace Show: Gold for most points throughout the Brit. and Hybrid sections; silver most points in hardbill section, silver most points in softbill section, silver most points in Hybrid and Mule sections. Mr. Weston gave a silver medal for most points gained by a member who has not previously won a medal, and a vote of thanks was accorded him. Mr. Thos. Holmes, of Carlisle, a new member, presented a handsome gold medal to the club through Mr. Robson, and the committee allotted it for most points gained throughout the year, subject to Mr. Holmes' approval. A vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Holmes for his generosity. The diploma presented to the club by Mr. Allen Silver was on view. The question of how these diplomas were to be given was discussed. On the advice of the hon. treasurer the committee thought that the club funds would not allow of the giving of each cup winner a hand-painted specimen. It was proposed by Mr. Maxwell, seconded by Mr. Askew, that the winners of the cup, on payment of 10s., and the club paying the balance, could have a hand-painted specimen. An amendment, proposed by Mr. Silver, seconded by Mr. Trower, that before any decision was arrived at an estimate of cost of reproduction in black and white, and also in colours, be ascertained. The amendment was carried—7 for, 3 against. Mr. Weston undertook to get estimate of cost of reproduction. Mr. J. Beswick (Stockport) was made a member.—Plumbridge and Carr, Hon. Secs.

*Greenie's Return.

Last year we caught a Greenfinch with white rings round its eyes. We kept it for several weeks, and then we let it go. But it kept coming back and tried to get in the cage; but at last it disappeared—we thought for good. But a month ago it came back with three young and tried to get into its old cage again. —Sent by Annie Slew (aged 12 years), 53, Weston Road, Portland, Dorset.

A Strange Foster-mother.

A cat in a railway goods shed had three kittens. Soon after the kittens were born, some of the railwaymen found a young Jackdaw, which they put beside the kittens. The cat made no objection, and received the bird kindly. It gave "Jack" just as much care as the kittens. The workmen fed the bird, while the cat took every other care of it, and even washed it in its turn with the kittens. The rearing was quite successful, and the bird grew up strong and healthy.—Sent by Henry Elliot (aged 13), 89a, Main Street, Tweedmouth, Berwick-on-Tweed.

*A Nest on a Dresser.

A working man living in Kent reared a young hen Blackbird, not shutting her in a cage, but letting her fly in and out at the windows. When she was a year old, one spring morning she appeared with a mate, who, seeing how bold his wife was, ventured to perch on the kitchen window sill, though he could not make up his mind to come any further. The hen bird chose the kitchen dresser for her home, and there built a beautiful nest between two plates which stood on it. The good woman of the house wanted to use her plates, and in taking one down she tore the nest to pieces. But the Blackbird built another in the same place. This time she was left alone.—Sent by Maggie Thomas (aged 11), 94, Ynyswen Road, Treherbert, Glam. (Taken from "True Stories about Animals.")

In the Courts.

CHARGE OF CRUELTY TO A BRACE BIRD DISMISSED.

A charge of alleged cruelty to a bird was heard at the Leicester County Police Court, before Mr. F. S. Stone, on Oct. 21, when Ernest Smith (24), shoehand, was summoned for cruelly ill-treating a decoy Goldfinch at Humberstone, on Oct. 9. Mr. Simpson prosecuted on behalf of the R.S.P.C.A. and Mr. E. G. B. Fowler defended.

Mr. Simpson stated that the defendant was stopped by the police as he was cycling towards Leicester. In his bag was found a Goldfinch, round which was a "brace." The constant chafing caused by the brace had caused the injuries, which constituted the alleged cruelty.

P.C. Toomes said that he was on the Uppingham Road, and saw the defendant cycling towards Leicester with a carpet bag. Witness asked him what he had in his bag, and found two Goldfinches in decoy cages, and another bird in a stock cage. The bird in the last-named cage was examined, and it was found to be fastened over tightly by a brace. There were marks on the bird, and a lump and sore places under its breast. These were pointed out to defendant, who replied: "Oh, that's nothing." The bird appeared to be in great pain, and could not sit on the perch properly. When told he would be charged with cruelty, defendant replied that the bird had been kept in the brace for two months.—Cross-examined, the constable said it took two people a quarter of an hour to get the brace off.—P.C.'s Roby and Allen corroborated.—Cross-examined, P.C. Roby said he thought it was cruelty to put a brace on any bird.

Inspector Smith said that when he examined the bird about 4.30 he found abrasions on the shoulders and the breast caused by the cord of the brace. The bird looked as if in pain.

Mr. Fowler, for the defendant, stated that the police stopped him, thinking they had a case of catching Goldfinches when out of season, in the close time. It had been decided in the Courts that it was not cruelty to brace birds, and he was prepared to call expert evidence to prove that the brace had caused no injuries, and that the injuries referred to by the police were caused when they attempted to take the brace off. An experienced man could put a brace on and take it off in half a minute.

Rare and beautiful species exhibited at the recent Clapham C.B.A. Show: with notes on their proper treatment in captivity.

(See our Frontispiece this week).

Jackson's or Drooping-tailed Whydah (Drepanoplectis jacksoni):—This beautiful and rare species made its first appearance on the show bench at the Clapham Show, securing for its fortunate owner, Mr. C. T. Maxwell, premier honours in its class. The species is well known to frequenters of the London Zoo, for five specimens have been exhibited in the Small Birds' House during the whole of this year, and I believe Mr. Maxwell's specimen is one of these.

They are most entertaining birds with their grotesque courting display and scratchy, chipping song. They are, nevertheless, very handsome, though not arrayed in brilliant colours, but the rich velvety black, relieved by the rich buffish-brown margins to some of the wing feathers, combined with the sickle-shaped tail give it a most striking appearance, and at once attract the attention, and place it above the ordinary plane of avian beauty. The female is of the usual Whydah type, and does not possess the long tail plumes, or rich black areas of the male. They are natives of East Africa, and are reported to be common around Nairobi, but very few East African birds have reached this country at present.

Welcomed Strangers.

The above and its congener, the Crimson-ringed Whydah (Penthetria laticauda), would make a welcome addition to English aviculture. May they soon arrive in sufficient numbers for general dispersion among the garden aviaries of this country. That they would be a great acquisition a glance at our illustration will show, but it is not merely fine form or handsome appearance that is their sole attraction, it is their deportment that attracts and interests. I have watched them at the Zoo for long spells at a time, and have been both fascinated and interested. When in full colour the bird is never still or quiet; with head feathers erect and all the feathers of neck shaken out loose, vibrating throat, grotesque prancing, often with a bent in its beak, its tail always, more or less, retaining its sickle-shape, it makes an object of general interest to anyone privileged to observe it. Of course, to the casual observer it only interests for the moment, and calls forth the remark "how ridiculous!" or "how absurd!". It will also strike the aviculturist as grotesque while it interests and fascinates, but then, all love antics are droll, even those of the genus Homo! On the ground the bird indulges in the same drollery as in the branches and, here (on the ground), it is an exact replica of a diminutive bantam fowl. But enough; it is one of the most interesting Whydahs I have met, save perhaps the Queen Whydah (which appeals to me more than any other of this group), and those who saw it at Clapham Show will, I am assured, endorse this eulogy.

As regards food and treatment, this is similar to that given to other members of the Whydah group. Its mainstay is canary seed, white and spray millet seed, greenfood, and an occasional mealworm or other live insect. I have found some species of Whydahs to take "paddy" rice and to pick over a hopper of kibbled oats.

A closing word:—The species require a roomy cage, not merely for reasonable exercise, but to permit them to indulge in their grotesque display. In the aviary a small bed of tall growing reeds would probably act as an incentive for them to reproduce their kind. At the Zoo there were only males, but although "scraps" were frequent no harm was done, and the absence of mates did not lessen the ardour of their love dance.

A Beautiful Living Jewel.

Amethyst-rumped Sunbird (Arachnechthra zeylonica.): Sunbirds, Sugar Birds, and Humming Birds have all a strong similarity, though the last-mentioned and the first mentioned are the more difficult to keep, and it would appear that Humming Birds (so far as present experience goes) are not adapted for keeping in this country. This, however, the future must reveal. It must suffice to say that all the above-named families are among the most diminutive as well as the most gorgeously apparelled of the feathered tribe.

The Amethyst—or Purple-rumped—Sunbird is one of the most bautiful of the genus Arachnechthra, and it is almost impossible for pen to describe. I quote Mr. E. H. Aitken's inimitable description of it as follows: "Seen at a distance and in dull light, it is a tiny bird of a dark brown colour, except on the breast and lower part, which are yellow. But see it at close quarters, with the sun shining on it, as its admiring mate sees it! The top of its head glistens with a hue which Jerdon defines as 'bright metallic glossy green,' while Mr. Oates calls it 'metallic lilac.' Perhaps one looked at it from the front and the other from behind. Its throat and the whole of its back glow with the tint of an amethyst, the shoulders and wings are of the richest maroon-red (Mr. Oates says 'dull crimson'), and the tail is black." The female is dull green above in colour, and pale yellow beneath.

Feathered Exquisites.

Mr. Douglas Dewar, writing of Sunbirds in "Bird Notes," speaks of them as follows:—"Sunbirds are tiny feathered exquisites which vary in length from 3½ to 5 inches, including a bill of considerable length for the size of the bird. . . . . They cannot be said to be of any colour. Like shot silk their hue depends upon the angle at which the sun's rays fall upon them. In the sunlight their plumage glistens like a new silk hat, and sometimes the sheen looks lilac, and at others green. . . . . It is pretty to watch Sunbirds feeding. They are as acrobatic as Titmice, and strike the most extraordinary attitudes to procure honey. When there is no convenient point d'appui they hover like Humming Birds on rapidly vibrating wings, and while so doing explore with their long tongues the recesses of some flowers. To quote Aitken: 'Between whiles they skip about, slapping their sides with their tiny wings, spreading their tails like fans, and ringing out their cheery refrain. As they pass from one tree to another they traverse the air in a succession of bounds and sportive spirals.' Verily the existence of a Sunbird is a happy one."

That the above glowing descriptions of this lovely bird are not overdrawn, will, I am assured, be confirmed by all who saw the Hon. Mrs. Bourke's fine specimen at the Clapham Show. Surely one lesson is to be gleaned therefrom, viz., the birds must have a roomy cage for exercise and display, that their lives may not be less happy thus than in their native wilds.

Menu: Syrup Sop: This consists of boiling water, Nestle's milk, honey, Mellin's Food, and crumbled sponge cake. It is most fond of Tangerine oranges, though it should not be confined to one kind; it can be given any kind of fully ripe fruit it will take.

In captivity these birds are merry and interesting, as well as beautiful little creatures. Their sweet, cheery little song is continuously uttered, and their charming acrobatic antics—if twiggy branches take the place of perches—charm and divert. Even under the conditions of cage-life, if their home be roomy, they display many of the characteristics of their wild life as described above, as well as their glistening and begemmed garment of many colours.

A Comical, Confident Conure.

Blue-crowned Conure (Conurus hamorrhous): Though odd specimens have at various times been exhibited at the London Zoo., this species is well known to Continental aviculturists. It is quite uncommon on the English market, and is a very probable first appearance on the Show bench; but these notes are being written against time, and a search through catalogues is not possible. Mr. Sydney Williams, junr., is to be congratulated on his acquisition, and on the condition in which he staged the bird.

Conures are not favourite cage birds in this country. They are noisy, and much given to wood-cutting, and they need a strong enclosure or cage to contain them. But the Blue-crowned Conure is one of the most pleasing of the group, and, according to records of those who have kept it, it is very lively, talks a little, is comical, and soon becomes tame and confiding. Its call is penetrating, but, when the bird is tame, not persistently uttered. So far as it has been kept, it is well spoken of as a pet.

It is also a beautiful species, as the following description will demonstrate: Description: General body colour rich grass green, wings darker green and washed with olive; forehead and crown bluish; central tail feather green; the remainder have the inner webs copper-red; beak light horn; feet dull flesh-colour; skin round eye, whitish flesh-colour; iris golden-brown.

The species is a native of Brazil, and as it is rare even in museums, it would appear that it is not common in its native haunts, or only (at present) frequents almost inaccessible districts. I have kept many Conures, but not this species, and both in the bird-room and the out-door aviary have not found them unendurably noisy. Most of them are gorgeous as to plumage, and very shapely.

I have found Conures to thrive on a mixture of canary seed, white millet seed, oats, hemp and sunflower seed: half the bulk of the mixture to consist of canary and millet, the other items in equal parts. Also fruit, green food and nuts. The birds are mostly very fond of plain biscuit and cuttlebone. They delight in a bath; and in the mixed aviary they are able to take care of themselves in any company.

NOTES BY THE SECRETARY.

What the Brighton Magistrates Think of the Bird Laws.

Before the Brighton Borough Bench a young man, who was described by the Chief Constable as "a highly respectable young fellow," was summoned for having recently taken Linnets in his possession. The solicitor for the defence said that it seemed an anomalous law that a man might lawfully take birds at one place, walk over an imaginary line, and then be considered to have committed an offence for having the birds in his possession. What the Mayor and the magistrates thought of the law which they were bound to administer will be understood from the remarks of the Mayor, who said that the magistrates had power under the Act to fine defendant £1 for every Linnet, and then proceeded to inflict a penalty of twopence each bird.

The Value of Back Numbers.

In reference to the Leicester case, reported in another column, I hear from Mr. Pinsent, who was to have been one of the witnesses for the defence, that by the aid of a copy of Cage Birds for Nov. 12, 1910, which contained a verbatim report of a similar case at Luton, the defending solicitors were enabled to put up such a case that the magistrates dismissed the summons without calling upon the witnesses for the defence. The Leicester fanciers have decided to give expression to their appreciation of the efforts of their counsel by presenting him with a drawing-room cage and a singing Canary. I hope to be able to get a verbatim report of the evidence for the prosecution, so that League members may judge of the methods adopted by our opponents in their frantic endeavours to suppress bird-keeping.

A Member from the States.

Among the members enrolled during the past week, of which the following list is a representative selection, I have the pleasure of welcoming Mr. John Brown, of Illinois, U.S.A. Cage Birds League is now represented in Africa, Canada, and the United States, and it says much for the appreciation in which the League is held by fanciers generally when readers of Cage Birds send subscriptions from these distant parts of the world. Every individual fancier at home should emulate the example of their brother bird-keepers abroad, and join the League, which has for the main object of its existence the protection of our hobby from the attacks of the sentimental faddists who are leaving no stone unturned in their efforts to put an end to bird-keeping of any kind whatever.

Mrs. Favill, Sheffield; Mrs. Storey, Ulverstone; Miss Thomas, Boscombe; Mrs. Castell, Lymington. Messrs. Bearder, Walsh, Sawer, Hibberson, Spencer, Moore, Wright, Holt, Lancaster, Richardson, Hawkesworth, Porter, Elshaw, E. E. Smith, H. Smith, and Milne, Sheffield; North, Bradford; Brown, Illinois, U.S.A.; Sampson, Stocksbridge; Smith and Turner, Mosbro; Charlton, North Seaton; Pinsent, Leicester; Farmer, Thorneywood; Ambrose, High Wycombe; Hoyle, Dumfries; Woodgate, Exeter; Chesney, Goole; Higgs, Gorton; Chesney, Goole; Salter, Hackney; etc.

Posters for the Shows.

In response to the suggestions of several members, neat posters have been prepared, conveying an invitation to visitors to shows to join Cage Birds League and assist to protect our hobby. Many Secretaries have already expressed their wish to have these posters for display at their exhibitions, and I shall be glad to forward copies to any applying for them. Large numbers of the public are quite unaware of the danger in which our delightful hobby stands to-day, and the posters will be a means by which their eyes may be opened. I hope, therefore, that all Secretaries will take advantage of the offer now made, and apply for the Posters forthwith.

Private Bird-keepers and the League.

Mrs. Isabel Storey, of Ulverstone, in sending subscription, writes: "It is only within the past month we have known of Cage Birds League, and think it is just the thing wanted." This exactly illustrates what I have said in the above paragraph. Thousands upon thousands of private bird owners have no idea either that the keeping of their pets is liable to be prohibited, nor do they know of the existence of the League, which is here to prevent such a calamity. All members of the League may not be able to emulate the example of their fellow member, Mr. Peck, who has been instrumental in introducing forty new members, but nearly all have friends who keep birds, and who would join the League if it were simply mentioned to them. Our numbers might be immensely increased by a very little enthusiasm on the part of individual members, and I hope that the hint may be sufficient.

Another Local Hon. Sec.

This week I have to announce another addition to our list of Local Hon. Secs., as under:—

Exeter, Mr. H. C. Woodgate, 8, Fortescue Road, St. Thomas, Exeter.

For particulars of our seals, badges, and free booklets, and for terms of membership, etc., see last week's issue (p. 272).

Secretary Cage Birds League,

The Campaign Against Bird-keeping.

Upon the suggestion of a valued correspondent, Mr. C. Prior, whose name is well-known to our readers, we have prepared a number of leaflets worded as below. A parcel of these will be sent gratis and post-free to the Secretary of any Society upon application, and the name of the Society will be printed at the foot of the leaflet. The activity of our opponents is being daily made manifest. Their avowed intention is to put an entire stop to the hobby of bird-keeping, and the misrepresentations which they publish broadcast are made with the intention of enlisting the sympathies of those who know even less than themselves about bird-keeping. A circular such as the one for which we are indebted to Mr. Prior would do much to arouse the interest of the general public, and we hope that every Society throughout the kingdom will take advantage of this offer, and send application to us for a supply of the leaflets for distribution at their show.

Is Bird-keeping an "Outrage"?

Dear Sir (or Madam)—

Please allow us to assure you of our appreciation of the honour you do us in extending your kind patronage to our exhibition of birds, and at the same time to express the hope that you are pleased with what you have seen.

In their quarters at home our pets are, of course, provided with more suitable accommodation than is possible at exhibitions. There they are tended with all the skilful care that the experience and loving kindness of their owners can suggest. They are shielded from their natural enemies, and protected from the cruelties which Nature inexorably inflicts upon her children; cruelties which we could not on any account find it in our hearts to inflict. They are perfectly contented and happy, and a source of constant joy and pleasure to us.

What our Opponents Say, and what they Purpose Doing.

But the officials of the R.S.P.C.A. have lately taken the view that the keeping of birds in captivity is an act of cruelty. They are using the money and influence of the R.S.P.C.A., to secure convictions (and not always by methods which unprejudiced people could endorse), for technical offences against the law, and they have avowed their intention of putting an end to bird-keeping altogether. They are determined to get it legislated out of existence.

There is a great and grave danger of this act of injustice being accomplished. The vast majority (and the number is many thousands) of bird-keepers in this country are in humble circumstances. They have no leisure and little money to spare to defend their interests. It follows then, that their views and knowledge of the actual facts are never properly laid before the authorities, and laws are made quite over their heads.

A Personal Appeal.

We appeal to you, therefore, as a lover of birds yourself, to help us to frustrate this iniquitous persecution of an innocent, pleasurable, legitimate hobby. We feel that our aims and ideals need only to be properly understood for this molestation to cease.

The theory of our prosecutors that the bird-keeper and his birds are a paraphrase of "Bill Sykes" and his bulldog, is based on a total misconception of the facts. We ask you to assist us in suppressing this fallacy by spreading knowledge of the truth amongst your friends and acquaintances.

Thanking you on behalf of the bird-lovers of Great Britain for this favour. We are, etc.,

London and Counties Association of Canary Breeders' Autumn Show Saturday, Nov. 4, at the Earl Cathcart, Munster Square, N.W. (two minutes' walk from Portland Road Station, Underground Railway), from 3 to 9.30 p.m.—Advt.

Fanciers, please note that Rule No. 5 in our schedule, owing to a mistake by the printer, reads, All birds to be in by Friday evening. It should read Thursday instead of Friday, writes Mr. E. McAnally, sec. of the Kirkcaldy C.B.S. Classes 32 and 35 should be 1911 and not 1910.

The past breeding season has been a record one with me, having bred 100 young ones, the majority being now clean moulted, writes Mr. C. A. O'Reilly (Dublin). I am pleased to say I have a few toppers amongst them. I wish Cage Birds the success it so well deserves.

Will fanciers kindly note that New Cross and Dis. C.B.S. are holding their annual show in conjunction with Plumstead and Woolwich at their new headquarters, People's Hall, Tanners Hill, Deptford Broadway, on Nov. 16, write Messrs. Barton and Barton, joint hon. secs.

Swansea must extend entries to Sunday morning's post, writes Mr. S. H. George, the sec. The entries at time of writing are very low, and I hope that fanciers will rally round and give us a good entry. We have given one of the finest classifications possible—67 open classes.

We have sent schedules to all fanciers we know of, writes Mr. John Lawrie, sec. of the Buckhaven C.B.S. If anyone has been missed, will he forward me his address? As we are giving a good classification and a large number of open specials, we are looking forward to a record entry.

Entries for our show will be extended until first post Nov. 7, writes Mr. Arthur Walker, sec., Darlington C. and B.B.F.A. This show is open to all, with a good classification and well-known judges. Will any fancier who is in want of a schedule please drop me a postcard? Darlington being on the main line, exhibitors' birds from a distance will be sent off in time to arrive home same night.

Up to the time of writing we have not received a single entry, and have extended the time of closing entries to first post Nov. 7, writes Mr. J. H. Elwell, sec. of the Old Shildon Workmen's Club C.B.S. Will anyone who has not received a schedule forward entries? We will classify same. Staging will be on the three-tier system, and the room will be made comfortable for all exhibits.

The Wimbledon Society at their annual show on Nov. 14 and 15 have again made a class for marked or variegated hens in the open Yorkshire sections, writes a committeeman, M. E. J. Whittome (London, S.W.). I sincerely hope fanciers will appreciate this, and send entries to fill this class, as this is our second attempt to cater for marked hens, and I believe the only show in the South doing so.

A great opportunity occurs this week for lovers of rare birds to obtain uncommon species, as that noted Belgian aviculturist, Mons. Pauwels, is offering in our advertisement columns a lengthy list of duplicate and surplus examples from his own wonderful collection at reasonable prices. The list represents a veritable feast of good things from the bird-lover's point of view, and all interested in foreign birds should give it their attention.

The name of the Norwich judge, owing to a printer's error, is spelt incorrectly, writes Mr. G. E. Wilkinson, sec. of the Nottingham and Notts Show; it should be Mr. J. Trengove. Class 27: "Cinnamon Crested and Crest-bred" is not confined to current year birds, as might be inferred from the position of the class in the schedule. Schedules have been posted to members of the Crested C.C. as per last year's list. Will anyone who has not received one please apply to me?

The special prize given by Mr. H. Matthews in the list of members' specials in schedule will be 5s. for the best Light Mule exhibited by a member and 5s. for the best Dark Mule, not as stated—for best pair of Canaries in Class 24, writes Mr. W. O. Brooke, the hon. sec. of the Bournemouth C.B.A. All birds competing for Mrs. Downey Fawer's specials must be bred by the members exhibiting. Our entries have closed with a total of 475, 41 classes standing out of 47.

At the meeting of the London and Counties A.C.B., held at the Earl Cathcart, Munster Square, Oct. 21, Mr. H. J. Pearce presided over a goodly gathering. Business relating to the autumn show was dealt with, and Mr. E. Pretty gave a very interesting paper on "Canary Farming in the Open Air." At the close an animated discussion took place upon the various points arising out of the subject. A vote of thanks was unanimously accorded Mr. Pretty for his paper, which he briefly acknowledged.

WITH EVERY COPY OF THIS ISSUE READERS SHOULD RECEIVE A COLOURED PLATE OF "DAINTY SOFTBILLS."

Open-Air Canary Farming and Its Possibilities.

A STRIKING IDEA.

One of our oldest living authorities on Canary Breeding states that Canary Farming in the open-air is a good thing for both the birds an their owner's pocket.

By the courtesy of Mr. E. J. Pretty, one of the few now happily remaining of the "Old Brigade" of London Fanciers, we have had the opportunity of inspecting the fine stock of birds which were the subject of the lecture recently given by Mr. Pretty to the London and Counties A.C.B.

In what is literally a "back yard," being a stone-paved space between the high walls of the houses at the back of Mr. Pretty's Dental Surgery in Albany St., Regent's Park, we were introduced to some two hundred Canaries, old, young and middle aged. Yorkshires, Norwich, Crest-breds, Lancashires and Cinnamons, all were here, and every one looking an absolute picture of health. Many of the birds would hold their own in any competition, but Mr. Pretty is not so keen on showing as in former days. With the Canaries were a very fine five-year-old Chaffinch, a cock Linnet and a couple of beautiful Redpolls, one of which, if Mr. Pretty accepts the advice tendered, will grace the show-bench in the immediate future. The birds are kept mostly in pairs in commodious flight cages convertible into double-breeders, and have absolutely no protection other than their cages. "Four years ago," said Mr. Pretty, "I required the use for other purposes of the rooms in which I was keeping my Canaries, and, rather than give up my hobby, I determined to put them out, in their cages as they stood, into the well space at the back of my surgery. That the venture was successful you may see for yourself. Nearly all the birds of four years ago are here now; the others are youngsters which have never seen inside shelter. I have no trouble with them other than from mice and slugs; cats cannot get down into the space in which they are kept, the high houses shelter them from heavy winds, and it is only in respect of sunlight that I would wish anything better for the birds; unfortunately this is kept out by the surrounding buildings, but still they do fairly well." In this we could do no other but agree; the condition of the birds would have contradicted any sentimental expressions deploring the lack of sunlight, and we agreed with Mr. Pretty that though some sun would be better for the birds they did exceedingly well without it. Altogether, quite a new vista was opened up as to what is possible in the way of Canary farming in the open, and we shall publish next week Mr. Pretty's account of his methods. That eminently practical article is of interest from beginning to end, and we are sure that our readers will join with us in thanking Mr. Pretty for his kindness in giving so freely of his experience in this new field of great possibilities.

Whilst at Birmingham Show it came to our ears that the present secretary intended to send in his resignation at the end of the season (for private reasons). Mr. J. H. De Maillet, the late secretary, had been approached, and we understood would most likely accept office, providing new headquarters were found.

Entries are very short for Brighton Open Show, Nov. 8 and 9, writes Mr. W. H. Gibb, the sec.; we must extend to Nov. 6 first post. Full prize-money is guaranteed (10s., 6s., 4s., with extra vhc 1s. 6d. in large classes); there is a good classification. No classes will be amalgamated. Send along, and I will classify.

The financial position of the Welsh C.B.C. is increasingly favourable. From the 1910 balance sheet it is seen that the amount in the treasurer's hands is better by £1 13s. 8d. than in the previous year, the figures being £15 17s. 1d. in December, 1909, and £17 10s. 9d. in December, 1910. The secretary of the club is Mr. A. E. Brown, 66, Clare Street, Merthyr, from whom particulars of membership may be had on application. The subscription is 3s. per annum.

The Highgate and Hampstead C.B.S. are holding their annual members' show on Nov. 10 and 11, writes Mr. C. W. Law, hon. sec., when Mr. G. Gardner judges. Will brother fanciers kindly pay us a visit? We are only a small society, but a good proportion of our members can be seen at any of the London shows; therefore we should be glad to see members of some of the other societies. Our money specials amount to £10, besides specials consisting of cups, teapots, and other useful articles—some seventy specials in all.

Changes of Address.

Secretaries and others are asked to note the following changes of addresses:—Mr. S. H. Lambert (sec. of the Guisborough Priory C.B.S) from Gill Street, to 35, Cleveland Street, Guisborough; Mr. C. A. O'Reilly from York Road, Rathmines, to 10, Dolphin Avenue, Dolphin's Barn, Dublin; and Mr. R. E. Helliwell, from Thorn View to 149, Claremont Road, Boothtown, Halifax.

Grimsby's Silver Cup.

At Grimsby Show we noticed a very handsome and prettily designed silver cup on view. We were informed that the secretaries, Messrs. Towl Bros., had had this given to them by a well-known local gentleman to be competed for next year by members (champions) for most points over all sections. If energy and perseverance go for anything, the Brothers Towl look like lifting the Grimsby Society to a very high place. They have our good wishes.

Romance of a White Blackbird.

With reference to the White Blackbird exhibited at East Lothian C.B.S. Show, I hear, writes our representative, that Mr. Skeldon has refused a good offer for him (either dead or alive), but seemingly he is a great favourite—and no wonder, as the following will show. The owner heard from another worker on the farm that a nest of Blackbirds had been found with two white ones in it. Needless to say, he had a good look for the nest, but all visits proved unsuccessful. One day, when working in the garden, a great black cat came past him with something white in its mouth. He gave chase, and after a good hunt the cat let go his hold, and Mr. Skeldon was rewarded by finding the subject of my remarks more dead than alive, but after careful nursing he has indeed made it a champion—a bird to be proud of. After telling his friend of it, they visited the nest, but found it empty, all the other birds having been killed by the cat, no doubt.

A White Canary Club!

Having seen by Cage Birds that there are fanciers in possession of White Canaries, writes Mr. Fred Ward (Thelwall, near Warrington), I should very much like to see them go ahead, also a White Canary Club established. I would offer myself as secretary and push them to the front. Shall be pleased to hear from anyone willing to join; also if there are any White Canaries for sale at a reasonable price.

Novice Classes at L.C.B.A. Show.

The L.C.B.A., in their schedule, published today (Saturday) have given a splendid classification for the novices, including four British, two Borders, six Norwich, and six Yorkshire classes. As the novices are continually complaining of being compelled, in some cases, to show against the champions, they have here a chance to compete in their respective sections, and such pluck on the part of the L.C.B.A. ought to be rewarded with full classes in each instance. Now, novices, wake up and send for a schedule!

Specials from New Zealand.

I have received from Mr. A. Malcolmson (New Zealand) £1 as specials money for Norwich and British birds at our forthcoming show, writes Mr. G. Marlin, sec., Hamilton Cadzow Oaks O.S. Our schedules being in the printers' hands, I had to announce specials on the back page as "extra specials." Mr. Malcolmson is getting on well in his new home. He has started keeping birds again, and has some nice Goldfinches. Mrs. Malcolmson and family sail on Dec. 1 to join him, and she is taking some birds with her which I was instructed to purchase for him.

Those Railways Again.

There is one circumstance we all very much regret, writes Mr. J. Atkinson, secretary of the recent Wakefield Show. Mr. Poole, of Stratford-on-Avon, had three entries, which did not arrive up to judging time, although the classes he had entered in were kept back until 1 p.m. Every enquiry was made, but we could get no tidings. The hamper, however, turned up at Wakefield on Sunday at 10.50 a.m.! It was taken to one of our members living near. The cages were immediately taken out, when it was found that the Bullfinch was dead. The other two (Siskin and Redpoll) were in an exhausted condition, but pulled round with careful treatment. This is very grieving to all of us, and there must have been serious delay on the part of the railway company. I hope Mr. Poole will be able to get at the party or parties at fault.

WATCHES FOR READERS OF "CAGE BIRDS."

On page 304 will be found an offer of the greatest interest to our readers. It is an offer of something everyone can do with, viz., a good reliable watch (fully guaranteed by the makers for one year) at a sensationally low price. A Cage Birds Watch can be obtained post free in box in return for a 5s. postal order or cash. But to everyone who will help us to increase the circulation of our journal it will be noted that we make a highly advantageous offer, i.e., we reduce the purchase price as low as one-half (2s. 6d.) in return for eighteen coupons cut from the current issue of Cage Birds. Send these coupons, and you have only to forward 2s. 6d. cash as well in order at once to receive a watch. Or a less number of coupons can be sent (see details of the scheme in the advertisement). Readers should have no difficulty in persuading visitors to the shows—or their neighbours interested in birds—to purchase this week's issue and to hand over the watch coupons therein. These coupons can then be used as part of the purchase price of a Cage Birds Watch. This watch is of really good modern make, finish, and appearance; and is not disfigured by any advertisement device. Better cannot be obtained at double the price. Remember, all coupons sent must be cut out of the current issue.

Winter's Added Terror: The Great Grey Shrike.

This winter visitor hunts small birds, etc., after the manner of a Hawk, impaling its victims on wayside thorns and tearing them to pieces.

By E. A. MORRIS (Ilford).

Perhaps not so common or well known as the majority of our migrants, a brief article on this noble and defiant-looking bird may not fail to interest a few of your numerous readers. Not so elegantly attired as his near relations the Red-backed or Woodchat Shrikes, the Great Grey is by no means a sombre-looking bird. Unlike our spring visitors, this winter migrant cannot claim to possess great vocal abilities, as he has practically no song whatever. Nevertheless he is a great favourite with many British bird exhibitors.

For the benefit of those who have not seen the Great Grey Shrike the following is the description of same: Length, roughly about 9 inches; head, neck and back a rich bluish-grey; breast and under parts of body pure white; wings black, with white moons on the tips of secondaries and inner pgimaries; tail black, with the exception of the two outside feathers, which are white; lobes and ear coverts black, and a white streak over each eye.

He requires more than the usual attention generally bestowed upon most of our other softbills. Besides being given the usual insectivorous food, consisting of ants' eggs, dried flies, crushed biscuit, meat, meal, etc., he should be supplied with a dead bird about every other day. It is not necessary to skin the bird before giving it to the Shrike (although some fanciers prefer to do so) as they do not swallow the tail or flight feathers, and the smaller body feathers they disgorge in the form of a pellet, which helps to clean the stomach. I do not advise giving a live bird to a Shrike, as he will sometimes play with it for a good time before killing it outright, although at times he will kill the bird the instant it is put into his cage. one I had would kill every time he had the opportunity.

This particular bird was kept in my birdroom, in which I bred Yorkshire Canaries. Arriving home one day I was surprised to see I had forgotten to close the door of a flight cage which contained about fifteen young Yorkshires, most of which were flying about the bird room. Imagine my surprise on looking into the cage which contained my Shrike to see six dead Canaries lying on the bottom! This bird also accounted for a winning hen Bearded Reedling in a like manner.

The Great Grey Shrike is very fond of mealworms, gentles; and in fact any insect life he will appreciate. He should be kept in a fairly large cage, one about 36 to 40 inches long, 20 inches high, and about 18 inches deep, or, better still, a small aviary, which should be cleaned out about twice a week, as they soon get dirty.

When dead birds are not available for them a little raw beef or liver chopped up into small pieces may be given. I have never been able to get my Shrikes to bathe, but a good spraying every day usually keeps them in good condition.

As an exhibition bird the Great Grey Shrike has very few equals, and his ability to win in the keenest of competition is well known. It would be useless to dwell on the various show points required in this particular bird, as one rarely gets an opportunity of being able to select from a number, they being somewhat rare.

About five days before sending him to a show your bird should be washed (by no means an easy matter), and I should strongly advise those fanciers who have not had much experience in hand-washing large birds to get a more experienced fancier to perform the operation. When sending to a show which lasts for two or three days it is necessary to send a dead bird or two with the soft food, so as to enable the stewards to feed him properly whilst in their care. The show cage for the Great Grey Shrike should be about 24 inches long, 18 inches high, and 14 inches deep. I usually enamel my show cage and wire front a rich cream, which I consider shows the bird off admirably.

No. 15—My Rock Peplars.

For many years I longed to possess some Rock Peplars, but I longed for years in vain. I have many points in common with Wang-Han Chih, one of the illustrious persons in a certain Chinese lex I wot of. On one occasion, it is recorded, he went in the snow to visit a friend, named Tai-Ta-k'wee, but on reaching the door he turned back and went home again. Being asked for an explanation of this behaviour, he replied: "I started full of spirits, but they were exhausted, so I came home again." How often it was so with me. Many and many a weary day I tramped all up London looking for Rock Peplars. I started full enough of spirits; every day would bring me what I longed for, but when my holiday ended I was no nearer my desire than when I started.

Occasionally I came across a more or less diseased specimen of the Rock Peplar, who sat in the shop window with a sort of look on his face a dying Gladiator would have worn. Moriturus te saluto! I was discouraged. That is one of the temptations to which I most easily fall a victim. I started out from home full of spirits; then when they were exhausted—like Wang Hun-Ch'h—I came back again.

This went on for several successive seasons, and I really began to think that I never should succeed in getting a pair of Rock Peplars; but as the old proverb says, "It's a long lane that has no turning," and so it proved in my case.

In aviculture, as elsewhere in life, it is generally the unexpected that happens. One day, to my huge surprise, I got a letter informing me that a certain ship was at Southampton with a cargo of "Australian stuff" on board, among it some fairly healthy Rock Peplars. There is no need to tell my readers what happened, but a food and his money shortly parted company. In a few hours there arrived a travelling cage with, what the porters called, "Somat alive in it." I was not a mouth tearing off the wrapper, and then you could have knocked me down—wasn't it Sairey Camp who used this expression on a momentous occasion?—with a feather! Here, indeed, were the Rock Peplars: but such a pair of woebegone creatures may I never see again for a long time.

I felt quite certain, after one quick glance, that "brief life was here the portion" of these birds. I was a true prophet, for within a week they were sleeping quietly under the sod, and I was poorer by four good golden guineas. For the time being I hated the very mention of Rock Peplars. I always do hate for a time a species on which I have plunged and lost heavily, but unfortunately my repentance is, like that described by the outspoken prophet as characteristic of Israel, "like the morning cloud and as the early dew that passeth away." I suppose this is inevitable, otherwise how should we ever get new specimens?

Laziness Rewarded.

Some months after this sad episode I saw an advertisement of a pair of Rock Peplars somewhere up in Scotland. In those days we had no telegraph office at Micklefield. Since then we are quite in the running, and boast not only a telegraph office, but electric power in the village. At the time I am speaking of, our nearest office was two miles away, and I was lazy, and thought that a letter would do as well as a wire. Accordingly I wrote, only to learn that the birds had been claimed, by wire, and that wires were still coming to claim them. I lose opportunities as people sometimes lose trains by not being in time.

Next year I was in London for my annual holiday, and in walking down a back street "down East," I saw in a window of a private house a Rock Peplar. I stared; I rubbed my eyes to make sure. Yes, there could be no doubt about it—it was a fine cock Rock Peplar. I lost not a moment in entering and inquiring the price of the "green bird." I was too wary to call it a Peplar, lest I should raise undue suspicions of its commercial worth. The woman told me that her son, who was a sailor, had brought it home, but that as she was no great things on birds, and it made a dratted mess with the seed (she didn't say dratted), I could have it. What would I give for it? I was afraid to name too high a figure. I modestly suggested a sovereign. The lady seemed to think I was a bit dotty: but promptly closed with my offer; apparently in fear lest I should repent incontinently. She stipulated, however, that I must catch the bird myself. This I agreed to; and soon had him in a chocolate box; and en route for Yorkshire.

My next work was to find a hen. Some fellows have a gift for finding things: they have a gift of collecting Toby jugs, everywhere they discover a Toby jug. I am rather lucky myself, so they say, in hunting out bargains. It seems hardly credible, but still for all that it is true, that the very next day I lighted on a hen Rock Peplar, not far away from where I had unearthed the cock. Perhaps there was nothing very strange about it. If a ship came in from Australia with Rock Peplars aboard, what more likely than that two fond sons should bring one as a present to the old folks at home? Sailors, we know, when they do bring over anything, bring what is most common at the time the ship leaves, no matter how rare it may be at times in its native land.

Love is Blind.

My brother-in-law has often told me that it is not what you want to bring, or are ordered to bring, that you buy but what the man in Sydney has in the shop on the day you call. If Rock Peplars happen to be abundant, it will be Rock Peplars or nowt. No doubt on this occasion there was a glut of Peplars at Sydney; hence my luck in getting a pair in the same neighbourhood.

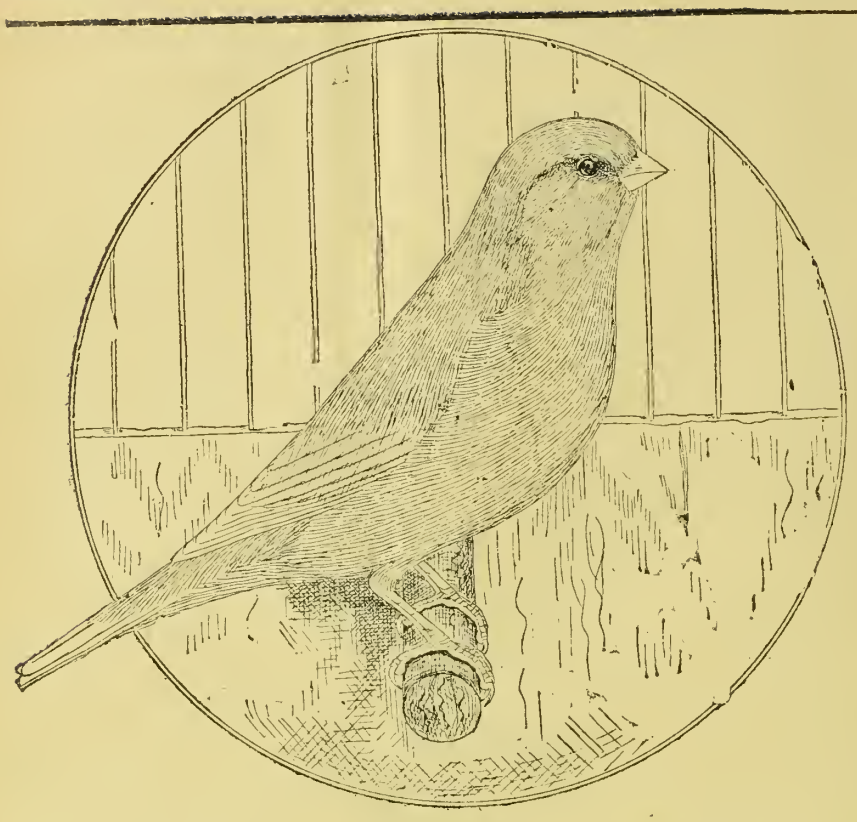
I carried the lady home with me at the end of the week, and at once introduced her to her future lord. He accepted her unquestionly, as the simple Trojan accepted the Olympian lady who appeared to him clad in grace, but otherwise scantily, from a rosy cloud.

I kept them in a big compartment of one of my birdrooms all the winter, as I was going to take no risks. They were very easy to feed, as they appeared to care for nothing but plain canary seed, though they would enjoy a mealworm occasionally. They moulted and became quite handsome creatures, though of a subdued beauty. Rock Peplars are so rare and so very delicate (nine out of ten always going off in some mysterious way), that I had little expectation of doing more than keep them alive to look at. To breed them never entered my thoughts.

When, therefore, one day in June, I put them out, it was rather to give them the benefit of fresh air treatment than for any other cause. But as I said before, it is always the unexpected that happens. In this case the unexpected happened twice over, for the Peplars not only went to nest, but they went to nest in the most unlikely place imaginable—on the floor of the aviary. It was not for want of new nest-boxes. They were present in plenty. It was pure cussedness so far as I could see, unless in Australia Peplars do go to nest in a hole in the ground. It may be they do, but we know so little of the nesting habits of Australian Parrakeets. I have had King Parrots do the same thing. I was far too thankful that they had deigned to go to nest to care where they actually nested. My only fear was that mice would interfere with the sitting hen; for do what you will, mice will get into outdoor aviaries, and mice are what an old Sherburn vicar said anent his choirmen and bellringers—"the devil!"

However, Mrs. Peplar chose to nest on the ground behind a brick, and I had to chance it. She laid three white eggs about the size of a pigeon's, very round, and you could see them quite plainly when the hen was off. She sat in the most exemplary manner, so that no blame could attach to her; but only one of the eggs hatched. You will never know the anxiety with which I watched the growth of that little bird ab ovo to maturing. So many things can happen in six weeks—mice, chilly nights, a sudden scare, and all one's hopes are gone for a year. Happily nothing happened, as day by day she swelled "wisibly," and was evidently doing justice to her parents' care and feeding.

It was very funny to watch the youngster being fed on the ground; it reminded me of a young squab pigeon. I was afraid the parents would be shy; but they were not a bit, and I have many and many a time watched the operation. It is not often one gets a chance of seeing young Parrakeets being fed.



Worthy of their Hire.

The sexes are quite easy to tell in Peplars, as the cock is quite yellow compared with the sober green of the hen; so that there is no danger of disappointment over sex. My youngster resembled the hen when in full plumage, and it has remained a hen ever since. I don't, of course, know what a young cock would be like, but I expect, following the usual rule, all the young would take after the hen till after the first moult.

Peplars are always rare, and command a good price. You would certainly make a mistake not to buy a healthy pair of adults at £5 or even more, and if you could get them to breed they would soon repay their cost, as the youngsters will readily sell at 50s. each. It is many years now since I have seen or heard of any of these birds for sale.

Unless healthy and tight in feather when they first come over, they invariably die. Some years ago I saw a whole consignment of about thirty all going home as fast as they possibly could. They would have been dear at any price.

You may ask me why I tell you these old experiences, and I answer with Crabbe Robinson, "I now perceive why old men repeat their stories in company. When they can originate nothing they can profit their juniors by recollections of the past."

A NORWICH PLAINHEAD CLAIMED AT SIX GUINEAS.

This fine clear yellow Norwich, exhibited by Mr. Barclay, was awarded second prize at the recent City of Glasgow show, and found a new owner at the catalogue price, £6 6s.

A Vanishing Variety of Canary.

By A. G. FILBY. (EALING).

The London Fancy, the "Spangled back" of olden times, is a member of the Canary family verging on extinction, therefore these notes by an admirer and breeder of to-day are of peculiar interest.

If this endeavour of mine to set forth the attractions of the London Fancy Canary induces anyone to take up the variety, or assists any of those already breeding them, I shall be amply repaid for the time and trouble spent in penning it, to say nothing of the pleasure it gives me to write about my favourites.

Unfortunately, the variety has been a good deal passed by. Why, one cannot understand, as it is not now (whatever it might have been) any more difficult or troublesome to manage, nor is it any harder to rear the young, than is the case with any of the other varieties. It is a very fascinating hobby, and the bird when obtained is a very handsome one. The London Fancy has a yellow body, black wings and tail and black legs, feet and claws. It is also an ancient variety, being mentioned as far back as 1826, and designated "the Spangled Back" and "the Fancy Canary"; and there is a record of Mr. Brodrick purchasing some in 1842, all more or less spangled. But a few years' breeding had produced something like ninety specimens, with only two foul feathers amongst the lot, and during the last twenty-five years there have been a good many perfect specimens exhibited on the show-bench, showing that the old champion blood is still in existence in several breeding rooms.

Alike, yet Different.

It is thought by a good many that the London Fancy Canary is an offshoot of the Lizard. Be that as it may, we know the general tendency of nature under domestication is to get lighter and lighter, but my experience is that dark birds are much more frequently produced than light ones. The dark colour always seems to run over, so to speak. The two varieties, viz., the Lizard and the London Fancy Canary certainly are very much alike at different periods of their lives, and they are very diverse at other times. When first fledged they are both dark, with clear caps. At their first moult (at about six months old) the London Fancy should come clear in body. The Lizard then comes evenly dark. At the next moult (at about fifteen months old) the London Fancy moults to all light or grey, according to the amount of dark blood contained in it, and its show career is then over; and the Lizard also moults to a lighter shade. With each succeeding moult both varieties get lighter. I have moulted a London Fancy till it has become as clear as a clear Norwich. The legs, feet and claws are black in both varieties, and do not change.

The London Fancy has never been taken up in the same way that other varieties have, for it is, after all, a "Fancier's" bird. It is of no use to the "pot hunter," being only one season in show form, which I contend should be in its favour, for each breeder stands an equal chance, there being no old champions to meet. The Lizard is also a one-season bird, but it is better cared for, both by breeders and show committees. What is more attractive than a sprightly jonque London Fancy? It is a deep "ball of fire," with wings and tail of black. There is also the lovely Mealy with its frosting showing on the edges. These two—the Jonque and the Mealy—answer to the Yellow and Buff of other varieties and the Gold and Silver of the Lizard.

Exclusively for 14 Years.

For the benefit of beginners with the variety I will give my methods of keeping the birds during winter, and the pairing up, breeding, moulting, and exhibiting of them—methods which I find best after having bred the variety exclusively since 1897.

In order to ensure the birds being in good health and strength for the breeding season, I keep them in a large flight, six feet long, four and a half feet high, and three and a half feet deep in a sunny room without artificial heat, except in the very coldest of weather. They are put in as soon as they can safely do for themselves, and the old ones too as soon as they finish breeding, till I pair them up again, say at the end of March. I feed them on the usual seeds, viz., good canary seed as staple food, and on alternate days a little hemp. On the day when I do not give hemp I give German rape, about half a teaspoonful of each kind of seed per bird, and almost daily a little crushed biscuit (thin lunch for preference) and once a week bread and milk instead of biscuit. Sometimes I give a little sweet apple, and occasionally a little maw seed as an extra. During the breeding season the above-named diet is supplemented by egg. If made frequently the egg food is always good. I also give plenty of crushed (hens') egg shells, and cuttlefish. For green food I prefer lettuce, but I give it sparingly.

I am old-fashioned enough to use the square box for nesting purposes, with moss and cowhair; as I find it answers well, I see no reason to alter it.

As for that pest of the young in the nest—red mite—I hardly ever see one, owing probably to the make of the cage I use having no refuge for them. I make the cages myself and every crevice is filled with enamel. I expect it would shock some breeders to use such cages, but I've used them successfully for years.

Details of the Cage.

The size of the cage is 16ins. by 12ins. by 16ins. high. It has two perches, one each way; that is, one from end to end about six inches from the top, and the other about four inches from the bottom from back to front fitted to hook on and off so that they can be replaced by a duplicate set when they require cleaning (I keep duplicate sets for all cages). At each cage-end is fitted a piece of zinc, to allow them to be stood side by side, without the birds seeing each other at any time. The whole stands in a zinc tray four inches deep all round, which greatly helps to keep a good deal of seed from being scattered about the room and wasted, besides keeping the room more tidy and clean. It is also very easy to clean out; just lift out the cages (nest, birds, and all) and you can clean away without disturbing a sitting hen at all. All food and water vessels are placed inside. The bottom of the cage I keep well covered with nice gritty sand.

Clear Body Difficult to Get.

Another advantage of having the cages all alike is that when the hen has a brood and wants to nest again all can be transferred to another cage (clean, of course) without their knowing the difference; and the used dirty cage can be washed, ready for another pair, probably under the same circumstances.

When pairing I prefer to select for clear body birds first. I find that quality more difficult to obtain than the dark wings and tail; in fact, I have bred show specimens from a cock that had a white tail. Of course, you are likely to get birds with light feathers in wings and tail, but in the case of birds having perfect wings and tail the body generally moults out very well.

Plucking must be Avoided.

As soon as the young can feed themselves, cage off separately all those having good wings and tail, in case from plucking or any cause good wing or tail feathers get knocked out, for the next feather will come greyer, perhaps only at tips, which, in any case, lessens its chance on the show bench. Also, if the parents seem spiteful, separate the young. I once had a nest of four, all good ones, spoilt by leaving them with the parents a few hours too long. As stated above, all unfit for show are turned into the flight at once, care being taken to ring all birds when they are about twelve days old; and, of course, a very accurate pedigree list needs to be kept properly.

I have crossed London Fancies with the Lizards, and find that one season is quite enough, the spangles taking years to breed out again. Any other cross seems unsatisfactory, as the dark remains from the green blood will not moult out, and dark on the body is fatal.

With regard to medicine, I cannot claim to know much. My birds are so healthy that I seldom require anything in the way of medicines. Given good food and proper attention they keep all right. I did have a bird queer recently; I put him on a bread and milk diet for a few days, and he is now, at the time of writing, in full song.

Moulting and Exhibiting.

During the moult I feed the birds as usual, giving in addition a little sweet pepper with their egg and biscuit. Till the moult is over, of course, keep them caged separately; my cages—after the breeding—get a good wash, and then come in nicely for that purpose. The birds remain in them till the shows end.

In preparing the birds for exhibition, beyond getting them used to a small cage in which they must stay I do not do anything. I run them into the show cages for a few days previously to get them used to it, as they object at first. I always send the birds to the shows in a canvas-lined hamper. I find that the birds travel well, and a hamper of this sort is far easier for show stewards to unpack and stack away.

The principal points in a bird's favour are: Clear body, black wings and tail, good size and condition. With these as they should be the bird can win.

Wild-Bird Life.

About Starlings.

It is rather a curious coincidence that at the very time an effort is being made to put a stop to the catching and caging of wild birds as pets there should come a complaint from the fruit-growers of the Home Counties of the damage done to their crops by Starlings; and so serious is it considered to be that the Middlesex County Council is to apply to the Home Office for revocation of the Wild Birds Protection Act in the county, which means that the Starling and its eggs will be once more free to those who like to take them. As a pet the Starling is unrivalled, and if reared from the nest (as he should be) he becomes almost a nuisance to his owner by his excessive tameness. In keeping such a bird there cannot be, by any stretch of the imagination, the slightest cruelty. In a wild state the Starling, as a fruit destroyer, is a creature to be reckoned with; his appetite is far in excess of what one would imagine it to be, considering his size; and what is of greater importance is that he does not do his foraging alone, but is nearly always accompanied by a dozen or so companions with equally vigorous feeding capabilities. Of course, this bird has been protected in the past on account of the good he does to grass land and growing crops by the destruction of the dreaded wireworm, grubs, and insects of all kinds, which are detrimental to growth; and in this capacity the Starling has no equal, because, being in a sense a bird of the homestead, he forages near and far. His only real rival, the Plover, is too wild and wary to do much good excepting on land situated some distance from the homestead; he loves the wild, free marshland, the breezy uplands, more than the home fields, which would in consequence soon become infested with grubs but for the attentions of the handsome Starling and a few others. The Starling is such a free breeder and frequently rears his hungry young ones in almost inaccessible places that there can be no fear of its ever becoming extinct or even rare. In addition to which we have each autumn a big migration of strong birds from the Continent, many of them remaining with us; and it is more than probable that it is these aliens that are doing the damage among our Home Counties orchards, our English bird having been driven westward by the intruders.

"Dainty Softbills."

A companion article to the Coloured Plate accompanying this week's "Cage Birds."

I have been asked by our Editor to write a few words around the beautiful coloured plate presented with this issue, and it is a task which I undertake with very great pleasure.

Dainty Soft-bills! No other word but dainty could fill the bill. And how daintily they are grouped by our artist-in-chief, Mr. H. Norman. The lovely picture will, I am sure, be admitted to rank as one of Mr. Norman's very best efforts, and no higher praise could be given than this. The sweet little bird depicted in the lower left-hand foreground is the Lesser Whitethroat, a bird which comes to us in the early spring, about the middle of April. As regards its visible presence it must count among the less frequently seen birds of our countryside, for it is of a most retiring nature, keeping mainly to the shelter of quiet hedgerows, or betaking itself at times to the highest trees, where it may flit almost unseen from branch to branch. It is as unobtrusive in its song as in its habits, and an ordinary stroller through our country lanes may easily fail altogether to notice the bird.

Excepting for exhibition purposes, and nothing makes a prettier exhibit, this charming little bird is not much kept as a cage-bird, for it has little song with which to reward its keeper. Its food in nature consists entirely of living insects, except in autumn, when it will help itself to a little ripe fruit. In a cage it should be fed on a mixture consisting of equal parts, by weight, of dried-flies, ants' cocoons and preserved yolk of egg, the whole made up to double its weight by the addition of powdered sweet biscuit. A portion of this sufficient for a day's supply should be moistened to a "crumbly" consistency by the addition either of grated carrot, boiled potato, chopped green-stuff (lettuce, dandelion, chickweed, groundsel tops, etc.) and in autumn any small berries will be appreciated. Of course live food is also a necessity, and this may take such form as may be convenient; too many mealworms are not to be recommended, as the hard skins of these are very indigestible, but house and blow-flies, smooth caterpillars, well-scoured gentles, spiders, and above all, if they are obtainable, living ants' cocoons; all these may be given in any quantity. A little cream cheese, chopped and mixed with the stock food, forms a valuable tit-bit, and ground silkworm pupæ may take the place of the dried flies.

He Can't Help Singing.

Directly above the Lesser Whitethroat in our picture is the Blackcap. This charming bird greatly resembles the first-named in body plumage, but the black crown which gives it its name serves to distinguish it at a glance. While it is equally retiring in its habits, its beautiful melody betrays its vicinity at any time between its arrival in April and the end of July. And who is there who pays any attention to the sounds of Nature and has not been charmed by the music of the Blackcap's song? Even on the nest, relieving his mate of her maternal duties, while she seeks exercise and food, the cock Blackcap is unable to restrain himself.

As a cage-pet the Blackcap is unapproachable among British birds, seed-eating or insectivorous. The easiest of all birds to "meat off" as it is termed, a Blackcap will settle down to cage-life in a very few days, and will delight its owner with exquisite melody for quite eight months in the year, from soon after Christmas until the August moult. He will sing in day-light or gas-light, in a bird room or a living room: in fact, in a cage or in Nature, a Blackcap must sing; literally, he can't help it. Then as to food, the minimum of trouble is all that is necessary. As a stock-food the Blackcap needs a mixture made up somewhat as recommended for the Whitethroat, but the ordinary grocers' currants of commerce may form quite the largest portion of its dietary: these should be soaked in water over-night to soften the skins, and a Blackcap can scarcely have too many of these; a piece of banana or any ripe fruit in season will be relished, and such living insects as may be obtainable.

The Prettiest and the Tiniest.

At the top of the picture is the Willow Warbler, the commonest as well as one of the prettiest of our spring migrants. It arrives in this country considerably earlier than either of the two already mentioned, coming in fact, only about a week later than the Chiffchaff which in its turn is second only to the Wheatear, the earliest of all. Its merry little song is welcome at a time when the music of birds is scarce, but it lapses into comparative unimportance with the coming of the Blackcap. It is only as an exhibition bird that it has much to recommend its keeping in captivity, for it is many degrees behind the Blackcap in quality of song, and what it does possess is not very freely rendered in a cage or aviary. Further, it is not at all easy to keep. If the attempt be made it should be treated as described above for the Whitethroat, especially not forgetting the small berries in autumn; it is particularly fond of elderberries.

The fourth bird of our plate is the Golden-crested Wren, the tiniest not only of all British birds, but of all European birds: six of him would weigh less than an ounce! How such an atom can contrive to find its sustenance of microscopic insects throughout an English winter is a puzzle indeed. The mortality among these feathered mites must be appalling, for the number of the resident Gold-crests is added to each autumn by thousands upon thousands of autumnal arrivals from the Continent to our shores.

The Gold-crest will live in perfect contentment in an aviary in which it may get plenty of exercise, with a snug shelter for a roosting place, but its love of incessant activity renders it an unsuitable denizen of an ordinary cage, and in such conditions it will not live for any length of time. In any case, plenty of small living insects are an indispensable necessity, and these must be supplied in addition to a stock-food such as already mentioned. On the show-bench it makes one of the prettiest of all the exhibits, especially if shown in a fairly roomy cage, which is fitted with a twiggy branch or piece of a gorse-bush.

When away from the shows it should have the largest possible cage which may be afforded to it, and this cage should be quite crowded with small branches among which the restless little bird may take the exercise which is absolutely essential to its well-being. In addition, a snug roosting-place must be provided, for the Gold-crest is one of the most susceptible to cold of all British birds.

SCOTLAND'S SECOND WHITE CANARY.

Last year, writes Mr. E. Barron, Dr. Syson, of Glasgow, bred a pure white Canary amongst his Yorkshires, and exhibited the bird at the City of Glasgow O.S. show of October, 1910. Its appearance on the show-bench at the time caused quite a commotion. This year, at the same exhibition, Dr. Galloway, of Aberdeen, exhibited a pure white Canary in the A.O.V. class, and secured the premier award. This bird is also somewhat of the Yorkshire type. Is it possible to ascertain the types of the other white Canaries that have appeared from time to time? The fact that the only specimens ever exhibited in Scotland are in the hands of Doctors, of course, has nothing to do with their colour!

A Londoner and His Norwich Plainhead Canaries.

By T. D. Jackson (West Green.)

If, however, it was a failing in type, or faulty wing, carriage or length of tail or body that I had to deal with then I should use a hen, buff for choice, as hens are generally more typical than yellows. For whatever purpose we introduce fresh stock, we should always endeavour to get such birds as are, what I might term, exaggerated, or over-strong in the particular points that we wished to improve in our own stock, for having something that was merely good would not do. For example, if we pair a bird that is weak in head properties to another that is only just good, we can only expect to produce the happy medium: and the happy medium in this case would not be good enough. Hence my reasons for choosing birds that are "over-strong" in the particular points in which our own stock fails.

With regard to size, it must be understood that, like all other points it has carefully to be bred into the stock. My own experience teaches me that the hen has as much influence over the size of the progeny as the cock; and further, that the buff parent is chiefly responsible for it. I should never use a Crest-bird for that purpose, for we would be sure to lose in other respects. In striving for one point do not lose sight of others, for to gain one point at the loss of another, is not progress; and never sacrifice type for anything. Always let type and quality be your chief objects.

A lot has been said of late for and against breeding with related birds. I would not advise the beginner to attempt that method until he has had some years' experience, and even then it should only be done for some specific object, such as to fix some point that he has gained; then, provided the birds are strong and vigorous, he can in-breed as close as brother to sister without the least fear of sacrificing stamina in the progeny, and I am not speaking without experience. While judicious in-breeding with related birds has undoubtedly been the making of many strains, indiscriminate in-breeding will always prove disastrous.

When Stock is Down in Colour.

If the stock had got a little down in colour or quality I should use a yellow cock, either clear or variegated it would not matter which, provided there was plenty of "green" blood in them. Always bear in mind that the green is the fountain of colour: in fact, a good yellow-green cock is a most valuable bird in the stock of any Norwich Plainhead breeder. Unless colour is bred in the bird, remember, a cartload of the best capsicum that was ever grown will not put it there. In speaking of greens, understand I am not referring to what are known as the "Liverpool" greens, as these would be quite useless as colour producers.

The green I refer to is a bronze green. If I were in want of such a bird I should obtain a yellow Cinnamon hen, not a large one, but as good in Norwich properties as possible, and of a rich bright cinnamon colour; I should pair to her a clear yellow Norwich cock that was exceptionally good in head, as generally that is a failing with the Cinnamon. The young cocks from that cross would be bronze greens; and it is those bronze greens that I should use to improve both the colour and the quality in the Norwich Plainhead.

Another item to which I might refer is double-buffing. But here again the young fancier will be well advised not to "rush in where angels fear to tread," for some experience is necessary before he can distinguish between the right and wrong birds to use for this purpose. My own experience in this direction has been most satisfactory. But as with in-breeding, it can easily be carried to excess.

How Quality and Color may be Lost.

The too frequent use of double-buffing means loss of quality and colour. On the other hand, if care and judgment be observed in selecting the right birds there will be no such loss. One reason for pairing two buffs together is the broadening of the web of the feather when the feather is getting a bit thin; it has also a tendency to shorten the feather. Where the stock has run a little thin in neck double-buffing can be resorted to with advantage, and type may also be improved by the same means. But, as I have already said, unless the right birds are used for this purpose, the results will be reverse of satisfactory.

Birds used for double-buffing must be of very good quality, with close-fitting feather, and must be rather under than over medium size. One of the birds at least should be marked, and the best results are obtained from birds possessing plenty of green blood. The results that I have obtained from the pairing together of two yellow Norwich has not been so satisfactory, the young birds coming out too thin and sparse in feather; on one occasion, however, I bred a clear buff cock, very good in type, colour and quality, which turned out to be a very useful stock-bird. But that one exception was not sufficient to induce me to experiment further in that direction.

But by pairing a yellow Cinnamon hen to a yellow Norwich cock, as stated previously, the results will be highly satisfactory, as the young cocks, which will be green or bronze-green, will be of wonderful colour, teeming with quality, and type will not be lost if the right hen is used.

The Management of Stock.

I will now turn my attention to the management of the stock. Where it is possible I would advise getting the stock together about November or December, as the birds will by then be clean moulted and will be at their best. It will also give them time to become accustomed to their new surroundings before they are paired up for breeding. From that time onward their diet should be of a liberal description. By liberal, I do not mean that all seeds should be given them ad lib. Let the best Spanish canary seed be their staple diet, and about three times a week let them have a little mixed seed such as hemp and German rape, or linseed; also a piece of boiled carrot now and again. See that the birds get fresh water every day, and wash the drinkers out by rubbing the finger round the inside before re-filling them. Empty the seed boxes at least once a week, and clean them: and wherever it is at all possible have a light in the bird-room for an hour during the winter evenings for the birds to feed by, otherwise they are without food far too long, for they are at roost before five o'clock in the evening until about eight o'clock the following morning.

A little extra attention during the winter months is well repaid in the breeding season, for there is not the slightest doubt in my own mind that success or failure in the breeding season depends largely, if not entirely, on the attention given to the birds during the dark days and long nights of winter. Neglect at this season is the cause of more ills than is generally supposed. Nigh all such disappointments as clear eggs, chicks dead in shell, hens refusing to feed can be traced to neglect, which means loss of stamina in the old birds, and that in its turn means weakly youngsters. Therefore do not neglect the birds during the winter, thinking that all you will need to do when the breeding-season arrives will be to cram them with egg-food; that will not bring them into condition—it will be more likely to upset them.

An error occurs in your report of my paper on the Norwich Plainhead, published in your last issue. In one part you make me say:—"I like the cocks of good size, but never sacrifice type for it." You conclude the same paragraph:—"I should not mind if they (the cocks) were a shade long in flights on tail, or just a little loose in feather, as I have had the best results from such birds when they are often considered too small." The latter part of this should read "from such birds when paired to short chubby hens that are often considered too small." The words in italics give the paragraph quite a different meaning; but they were missing in your report—probably a printer's error.—J. D. Jackson.

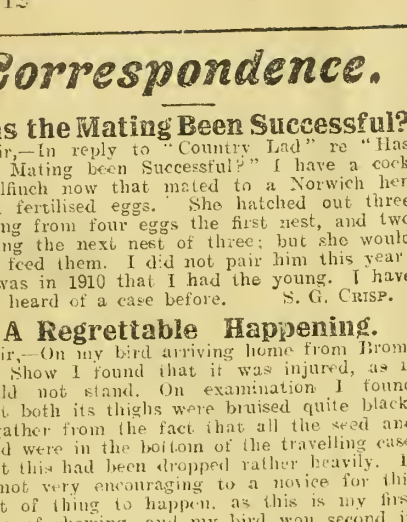
Correspondence.

Has the Mating Been Successful?

Sir,—In reply to "Country Lad" re "Has the Mating been Successful?" I have a cock Bullfinch now that mated to a Norwich hen and fertilised eggs. She hatched out three young from four eggs the first nest, and two young the next nest of three; but she would not feed them. I did not pair him this year; it was in 1910 that I had the young. I have not heard of a case before. S. G. Crisp.

A Regrettable Happening.

Sir,—On my bird arriving home from Bromley Show I found that it was injured, as it could not stand. On examination I found that both its thighs were bruised quite black. I gather from the fact that all the seed and sand were in the bottom of the travelling case that this had been dropped rather heavily. It is not very encouraging to a novice for this sort of thing to happen, as this is my first time of showing, and my bird won second in Yorkshires bred 1911. It was entered for another show this week, but I am unable to send it. I do not for one moment blame the Bromley fanciers, as I have no proof where it happened. S. Creed.



Exhibits and Water.

A Suggested Remedy.

Sir,—I notice Mr. Pope's remarks, and ask why should the water tin be removed? I have been the cage bird steward and attendant at our Barnstaple Show for years. I once used to empty all tins early in the morning, but I found a much better method, viz., on arrival I water every bird when staging, and then remove the water tin, and put the hook of the tin in the drink hole, so that the bird can drink, but not wash. If Mr. Pope was to try this method he would find it answer well, as it is impossible for the bird to wash; and the birds would keep up in condition and not look soft. Geo. Dix.

Linnet and Greenfinch "Keep House" Side by Side.

Sir,—I am sending herewith a photo which I thought might be of interest to readers of our indispensable paper, Cage Birds; maybe also to the faddists who think it cruel to keep birds in cages, who will doubtless see by it that with kindness British birds (even though caught by cruel men) will be quite happy if their wants are understood and they are kept perfectly clean. I venture to suggest that then they will not yearn for a cold and cheerless bough to sleep upon, and the scarcity of food which too often obtains at certain periods of the year! The eggs were laid by a Greenfinch and Linnet. I paired them up for Hybrid-breeding, as I thought, judging by the song of the Linnet, it was a male bird. I gave them a wicker travelling cage to build their nest in (the photographer removed the top of the cage for the convenience of the camera). They were very delighted, and very soon half filled the cage with nesting material, which consisted of short lengths of hay, root fibres, and cow hair. They pulled it to pieces, but eventually built it again, which evidently gave them every satisfaction. The Greenfinch laid four eggs, and then, to my surprise, a smaller one appeared. Upon going to my bird room the following morning I found the Linnet sitting on the nest and another small egg. Of course, I then altered my opinion re my supposed male Linnet! When the Greenfinch sat upon its eggs, the Linnet, as will be seen by the photo, made a nest and laid three more eggs. They then sat side by side for about two weeks, as I thought it would be unkind after all their trouble to deprive them of their eggs. They would both take cracked sunflower seed from my fingers whilst sitting on their nest. I do not advise doing this, generally speaking, as the less interference the better. I have had a very successful season with my Canaries, having bred thirty youngsters, all doing well, and had eggs from hybrid pairs. I hope with patience and a little more experience to be able to obtain some young Hybrids. This is my third season as a fancier, and, thanks to Cage Birds and its valuable information, I have made good progress. H. E. Smith.

Birds Caught Wearing Marked Rings.

Sir,—I notice a hen Chaffinch has been caught by Mr. W. Steanes, with Ring No. 22 on. I may say this bird was brought from near Alcester and given to me. I tried to get it steady, but, failing this, when the bird was in first-class condition, I decided to put a ring on and await results. I should be very pleased to know where Mr. Steanes lives, so that I may see where the bird was caught, it having been at liberty some three months. It was about here for a few days, then I lost sight of it. I think this is very interesting, and I should like to hear more through your esteemed paper, Cage Birds, which I look forward to each week. W. H. Uzzell.

Borders at Dysart Show.

Sir,—I visited the above show, and was greatly surprised to see a prominent exhibitor of the Border Fancy lining his cages with white gravel instead of oat husks as he usually does. His cage labels were stuck in the centre of his cages instead of being at the left-hand corner. I think it looks rather odd when you see such a big change and a big win. I am not a disappointed exhibitor, as I had no entries in the show. Blackbird.

[We must confess that it is somewhat difficult for us to see where objections like the above might end—for instance, some may object to oat husks and say that plain Canary seed is the correct thing. We believe there is no rule, unless it be laid down in the schedule of a show, that only plain seed is to be used on the floors of cages.—Editor.]

Yorkshire Union Water Tins.

Further Advice Wanted.

Sir,—On receiving my birds from Manningham Show in good time on the Saturday night, I was surprised on opening my case to find the following written on a slip of paper: "Will you please show with Union water tins?" I am at a loss to know what sort to show with, as these same two tins have been used for at least eight or ten shows, and as far as I know are of the pattern used by the Yorkshire Union. I hope these tins have not disqualified me. I am a good way from Bradford here at Harrogate, and the expense of going there every Saturday is rather large. I cannot afford to go to the shows as well as to exhibit. I am much obliged to the gentleman who popped the notice in the box, but am very much surprised someone has not let me know before this. I am not by any means a disappointed novice, but have won prizes at three out of four shows in the Union competition this year.

The W.C.O.S. (Plymouth) Norwich Cup.

Sir,—Your correspondent, "Disgusted Exhibitor" would, I think, have done better to have signed his name rather than write you under a nom de plume. If the writer is a member of the W.C.O.S. he would also have done better to have waited until the November meeting of the society, which, as a member, he would know is always devoted to discussion on the open show. If a non-member, this cup being a purely members' cup, it certainly has nothing to do with an outsider, even if he were an exhibitor at the W.C.O.S. recent show in the open classes. Those immediately concerned—viz., Messrs. Redwood and Spillman—are quite satisfied, and the action of Mr. Spillman is one to be greatly commended, inasmuch as directly he found that it was his old hen and not his non-flighted (as he thought when giving information to your reporter) that had won the cup, he acquainted me and Mr. Redwood, and waived all claim. The facts of the matter are as follows: The cup is for non-flighted birds, but members show in the open classes, and claim for competition by placing "M.C." after the entry. In checking the judge's list of members on the show day, I used an advance copy of the catalogue which had "M.C." (in error) against Mr. Spillman's exhibit in the yellow hen class. She consequently was judged for the cup. It is quite true that the rule of Cup are in our schedule, which state "non-flighted only." But I may say that the judge, Mr. Horne, is not the only judge who has awarded a W.C.O.S. Cup to a bird that could not fulfil these conditions. Personally, I cannot agree with "Disgusted Exhibitor" that this very minor error is likely to affect the future entries for the W.C.O.S. Cup, and if the number of congratulatory messages I have received from exhibitors, both as to the condition their birds were received home in, and their appreciation of the very prompt payment of prize-money, is any guide, the good old W.C.O.S. will still flourish.

A Gouldian Finch Stolen from Dysart Show.

Sir,—I beg to inform you that we had a bird stolen from our Show on Saturday night, Oct. 28. It happened about a quarter to six. It was one of the Gouldian Finches belonging to Mr. Peter Arnott (Alloa). Please notify in Cage Birds that the society is willing to reward anyone giving me information. I may state that I have put the case in to the hands of the police, and to-night we have suspicion of a man. I will let you know how we get on later. John S. Harris, hon. sec.

Which Bird Lays the Golden Egg?

Our Correspondent says that Amateur Exhibitors Do Not Get Fair Play.

Sir,—Will you kindly grant me a small space in your valuable columns for the purpose of drawing the attention of the amateur exhibitor to the show at Manchester? It is said that the novice or amateur is the backbone of the Fancy. In these few comparisons the "backbone" will find how he is catered for in comparison with the champion exhibitor. In the champion Norwich section there is an entry of 193 in eleven classes. For the purpose of argument, I am assuming the entry fee in all cases to be 2s., which in these classes totals £19 6s., while the prize-money totals £14 6s.: a profit of £5 on the section, or 9s. 1d. on each class. The amateur Norwich section has an entry of 173 in five classes: an average of 35 a class. The entry fees total £17 6s., and prize-money £6 10s.: a profit of £10 16s., or approximately £2 3s. 2d. per class. I want the amateurs to notice the magnitude of the amount of difference in the profits of the two sections. Champion Yorkshires had 171 in twelve classes, an average of 14.25 per class. Entry fees totalled £17 2s., and prize-money £14 6s., showing a profit of £2 16s. on the section, or 4s. 8d. a class. The management provided a liberal classification for the amateur Yorkshire men—three classes, as against the champions' twelve. The three classes totalled 82 an average of 27.33. Entry fees totalled £8 4s., and prize-money £5 18s.: a profit of £4 6s., or £1 8s. 2d. per class. Again please note the difference in profits between the amateur and champion sections. Clears and Crested-breds mustered forty in eight classes, one class being cancelled! Novice Crests, eighteen in two classes. I understand that this section is patronised by the C.C.C., or the society would have lost £2. Cinnamons had 42 in four classes and novice Cinnamons fourteen in two classes. The society lost £4 on champion section, while they gained 2s. on novice section. Belgians were all cancelled, and there was an entry of seven in one class of Scotch Fancies. Borders just about held their own as far as I could make out with just a casual glance without reckoning up; but the Green section bowed a small balance on the management's side. Hybrids, British and Foreign, totalled 93 in twenty-three classes, averaging nearly nine entries; fees totalled £9 6s., and prize-money totalled £5 18s. In four of these classes no prize-money was paid. 1st and 2nd only, and in three of the four they gained 1s. in each! The fit-but is to be found in the mustering-ground of these sections—the Lancashire and Lizards. This section had the patronage of two specialist clubs, and entries totalled 112 in fifteen classes, an average of eight a class. Entries £11 4s., and prize-money £15. Only six cases paid in money, or there would have been a greater loss than £1 16s. Here are a handful of fanciers forming themselves into two specialist clubs and dictating to a large society that unless they are granted four-teen classes they will withhold their "patronage." They reward that society with a magnificent entry of 112; while the poor amateurs in the Norwich and Yorkshire sections are provided one with five and the other with three classes; and they muster up 235 birds, an average of 32 a class. I have only compiled these notes to show which bird (the champion or the amateur) lays the golden egg. It behoves the management of shows to be sure they do not in time kill that goose. Of course, the two classes in Cinnamons and Crests for novices were quite sufficient for the number of fanciers there are who breed these two varieties. But it is time that the amateur Norwich and Yorkshire exhibitors know who it is who pays the piper, or, in other words, who runs the shows, and the Manchester Show in particular, while the champion exhibitor always calls the tune, as well as divides the spoil. Taking the whole of the champion classes (excepting those which were cancelled), I find 892 entries in 89 classes—an average of 11.14. There are four money prizes in a class, which means that every exhibitor has rather better than a 3 to 1 chance against him of being in the money. The amateur Yorkshire and Norwich section had 255 in eight classes—an average of 32 a class, meaning that every exhibitor has an 8 to 1 chance against him of winning a money prize. This is a difference which ought not to exist. Give the amateur something like a decent chance as well as the champion. He does not expect anything like so many classes as the champion, but when it comes to forty odd birds in a class, and Yellows and Buffs together—well, it almost makes him into as big a fool (for exhibiting) as the show committees think he is.

Sir,—Would any of your readers kindly inform me through your valuable paper how to train a braced Linnet to ride the flirt stick?

A Recipe for the Staining of Clap-nets.

Sir,—Re staining clap nets, the following will be found equal to the occasion.—Get from the chemist one pound of fustic chips; put same into one and a half gallons of water, and bring it to boiling point. Then put a piece of green copperas in about the size of a pigeon's egg. Place nets in while still boiling, and let same for two hours. Then allow all to cool down. Take nets out and dry in open air, and they will be found on becoming dry to be of an excellent colour. But being small nets, perhaps they will not require so much [illegible] ounces, [illegible] are about six [illegible] the nets of Jack Williams, and I [illegible] I [illegible] long.

Does the L. and P.O.S. Need Rousing?

Sir,—Could anyone inform me if it is true that the London and Provincial Ornithological Society is on the decline, as I have heard several times that such is the case? Can nothing be done to rouse it from the dull, sleepy state into which it has fallen? It seems such a pity that an old-standing society should lose its prestige for the want of a little effort and energy on the part of those who belong to it.

INTERESTED.

[We publish the above letter, as it reaches us from an unimpeachable source, but we wonder if the writer has overlooked the fact that the officials of the L. and P.O.S. recently promoted Mr. Kearton's interesting cinematograph lecture and that they have provided helpful features at many recent meetings? Possibly, however, the letter is directed at alleged apathy on the part of the general body of members.—Editor.]

Extraordinary Treatment of Show Birds When on Rail.

Sir,—I had entered two Cinnamons at the recent Manchester Show, and as I have had several enquiries as to why they were not benched, I shall be obliged if you will allow me to make a short explanation. The birds were duly despatched to the station here, but about midnight the same evening I was knocked up and my show cage handed to me by a messenger from the station. All the labels had been torn off, and on making an inspection I found that both cages had been damaged about the wires, while one of the birds, and that the better of the two, had disappeared. All the seed had also been removed from the cage, and everything points to a deliberate and despicable action by some unprincipled individual. So far all enquiries have failed to bring anything to light as to how the mischief was done. Of course, I have put in a claim for damages from the railway company; but this is still in abeyance.

Yeovil Show Postponed.

Sir,—The committee of the Yeovil and Dist. F. and F.S. greatly regret they will have to postpone their annual show owing to the political situation in the district. Our readers are doubtless aware that Sir Ed. Strachey, M.P., has been elevated to the peerage, and consequently there will be a bye-election in the constituency, and to all appearances same will take place during the week of the show—probably on the actual day. The committee had booked the Skating Rink, which is the Liberal party's main hall; consequently they will acquire it for themselves (at any cost) for their political campaign. The other two halls in the town would also be in use—viz., Conservative Hall (similar use), and Town Hall (polling station). Of course, we cannot say the actual date of the polling, but the committee considered it only fair to postpone the show until the New Year, as we might otherwise have to do so at the last moment. We will endeavour, however, to re-engage Mr. C. A. House (London) to judge cage birds, etc. Schedules will duly be forwarded as soon as arrangements are made for the show.

Is the Yorkshire Canary on the Down Grade?

Sir,—After reading the contributions dealing with this question, I am rather inclined to the opinion, rightly or wrongly, that sooner or later someone is going to get stung, as the letters, taken as a whole, seem to indicate that not only has a hornets' nest been discovered, but that it is being disturbed; hence, as the saying goes, "There is no telling where a blister may arise." I sincerely hope that whatsoever the outcome the birds themselves will emerge from the fray unstung and uninjured in any part. As one who in years gone by has done some little service towards furthering the well-being and interest of the Yorkshire Canary, I crave permission to make a few remarks on the question at issue, which I hope will not tend in the direction of creating any bitter feeling in the breast of anyone concerned. As I take it, "Longfellow," in his first contribution, suggests that exhibits which are not of the standard length of 6¾ inches, are taking and have taken precedence in the matter of awards over those that reach or are above that standard of length, and he proceeds to suggest that this state of affairs has led, and is leading, towards this variety being dragged down to the level of the Border Fancy. He then goes on to suggest that the executive of the Y.C.C. and the judges are at fault, and further charges them with being apathetic and negligent on this matter of length. Let us fairly and squarely look the matter in the face, and examine the full meaning the Y.C.C. attaches to the 6¾ inches in its relation to the expression "standard length." If I understand this matter of size aright, together with its accepted interpretation, I take it to mean, as I believe every other member of the Y.C.C. takes it to mean, that 6¾ inches is the maximum length not to be exceeded without committing a breach of the standard—i.e., it is a limit length to go to, but not beyond. Why the Y.C.C. executive in its wisdom (or otherwise) thought fit to make this limitation is a matter which is best left to that body to explain. Suffice it to say that the probability is, in my own humble opinion, that had not this action been taken this bird of "grace and beauty" would have been in some danger of losing its title to such an appropriate and descriptive name. Every true Yorkshire fancier, I presume, whatsoever his or her ideas as to size, will be thoroughly unanimous that nothing ought to be done that is likely to make the Yorkshire Canary less a thing of "grace and beauty" than it has been in the past. There was a time in its history when the then so-called Yorkshire bird did not command the title given above; in fact, it may be said with propriety that it was an almost absurd and unknown quantity. Then it was that a mighty effort was made to effect such an improvement as would enable it to at any rate vie with its older rivals for popularity as an accepted exhibition bird. But that was not all, as, in addition, the old-time fanciers set themselves the task of practically establishing a new variety worthy of being called "Yorkshire Canary," and they proceeded to lay the foundations for such accordingly. When one considers the frail and almost insignificant object they had to make their model Yorkshire from, the task seemed a hard one indeed. The most difficult part of this self-imposed task was to ultimately evolve a specimen bird, the model of which would be entirely different from any and every other variety, and without any semblance of imitation whatsoever. In the perfecting this new model, size had to play its part; but to what extent? I take it that this essential element is one of those qualities which in a Yorkshire model should be distinctive to that appertaining to the Lancashire Plainhead on the one part and the Border Fancy on the other part—two varieties which constitute the shortest and longest specimens in Canarydom. It thus appears reasonable to suppose that if the Yorkshires have a length standard, they must steer clear of that possessed by the Lancashire Plainhead and not descend to that possessed by the Border Fancies. Further, it seems expedient to preserve a neutral attitude in the matter of length for the best of reasons, viz., that by far the best perfected models of "grace and beauty" are to be found in these Yorkshires ranging between 6¼ and 6¾ inches, though it is possible very occasionally to find fine model specimens exceeding that limit, though even these, if adjudicated upon for a perfect model alone, would have to take second place. In conclusion, I would suggest that if size had, or has, or ought to have, the commanding influence and respect advocated for it by 'Longfellow," how comes it to pass that whilst the Yorkshire variety has advanced by leaps and bounds during the past two decades, the fate of the Lancashire giants during the same period has been to progress in the other direction, so that they are rarely to be seen outside their own county nowadays?

The Fancy in Liverpool.

A Protest.

Sir,—I notice in the last issue of your widely-read and popular paper that a statement was made by Mr. Wright that the Liverpool bird societies were in a bad way, both financially and numerically. Now, sir, as chairman of the Liverpool Bird Breeders' Society, treasurer of the Green Canary Association, and also as one of the original founders of the Liverpool O.S., I think I am in a better position to speak as to the soundness of the above societies than your correspondent, Mr. Wright, who is not a member of either, has not been a member, and is never likely to be a member. Consequently the statements made by him concerning them must be based on information supplied to him by others, and they must have been, to put it mildly, "pulling his leg." Re his statement that "the Breeders have decreased in membership 80 per cent.," three years since, when I had the honour of being elected chairman of that society, the membership stood at 52, and the following year it rose to 78. Last year 74 paid their subscriptions, and we have on the books at the present time 89 members, which is an increase in two years of 47 members, and only the names of paid-up members appear on our balance-sheets. Last year our special prizes, which were all subscribed for by members only, cost just a little under £10. These were actually handed to the winners, as well as the prize-money. Mr. Wright was quite correct when he stated that the entries at the Nest Feather Show only numbered fifty. I am sorry to state that a good many of our members had a poor breeding season, myself included. Now, just a word re the Green Canary Association. I have great pleasure in informing Mr. Wright that at our last meeting, held on Oct. 26, the secretary handed over to me the cash he had in hand, and I may say that the cash in hand is sufficient to pay all our advertised season's specials and to purchase five £1 1s. gold Club medals. The secretary was then left with money enough to pay our only liability of 17s., and still retains enough to meet all small working expenses. As regards his statement re the Ornithological Society, it was formed three years ago by twelve fanciers, myself being one of them. We have 29 members at present. The first show we held we had about 700 entries, the second about 950, and the entries at our last year's show totalled 1,262. Furthermore, all prize-money was made up, and the majority of winners paid on the Saturday of the show, and this year we hope to do even better as regards entries.

J. H. ISAAC.

Chairman Liverpool B.B.A.

[We have permitted Mr. Isaacs to make these statements concerning the societies in question, but we cannot print any further discussion on the topic, which is of purely local interest. We hope, however, that the societies will long continue to prosper and work in harmony for the good of the Fancy in the district.—Editor.]

A Unique Scheme for Popularising the Crested Canary.

Sir,—The following far-reaching scheme has been submitted to me by Mr. V. W. Laithwaite, 2, Rigby Lane, Bradshaw, near Bolton, in reply to a communication I made asking him to reconsider his resignation of the Club. The scheme: "That the successful exhibiting members of the Crested Canary Club supply young fanciers like myself with birds (I mean the sort they show and win with) for breeding, at, say, a guinea each, and give the proceeds to the C.C.C. funds. The C.C.C. would soon have a decent credit balance, and there would soon be a boom in Crests." Mr. Laithwaite then follows: "If you care to give my scheme a trial and will send me a young Crest of the show kind on approval, I will send you a guinea if it suits me, the guinea to go to the C.C.C. funds; and I will also send you 5s. subscription and 5s. to the special prize fund."

CINNAMON BORDER FANCY CANARIES.

First and second prizes at the Crystal Palace Show for Mr. E. R. Roberts (Penygroes) and Mr. W. S Wilson (Hamilton, N.B.) respectively.

The novelty of the scheme must be my excuse for asking you to publish the above in your valuable journal, with the hope of obtaining a pronouncement thereon, and I much regret that I am not in a position to act in such a manner.

Rare-feathered Birds at the Shows.

Sir,—I hope you will grant me sufficient space to give your readers an explanation of my judging at Morpeth on Oct. 14, and to answer the questions asked by Mr. Manners. The letter is hardly worth answering, as it is almost devoid of the truth. But as it has a tendency to lower my reputation as a judge, I decided to defend myself against such false accusations. I hope when Mr. M. enters the Press criticising me he will adhere to facts and not be so misleading to your readers. Firstly, my Greenfinch at Gateshead was four years (not two) ago. Secondly, these two cases are vastly different. Had Mr. Weston acted the same at Gateshead as I did at Morpeth no controversy would ever have taken place over my Greenfinch. Mr. W. distinctly marked my cage "W.C."—that means "debarred from competition." This was not so with me at Morpeth. My reasons need no explaining. I only kept these almost white birds out of the cards because I did not think they were worthy of one. They were not debarred, but were judged, like the others. When I judge a Linnet class I base my ideal on size, boldness, density in the hazel colour, rich and well-defined pencilling, and steadiness. Now, as this white one possessed not one iota of the points I aim at in an exhibition Linnet, there was no alternative for me but to keep it out of the tickets. But it was not debarred any more than any of the other cardless birds. Therefore I point blankly deny acting like Mr. Weston. There is all the difference in the world between debarring a bird and allowing it to compete. Common sense teaches the most ignorant of us the difference; yet Mr. Manners asks if I learnt a lesson through your valuable paper. I only wish he would take a few lessons from your valuable paper, as yet, with all his knowledge, he has a lot to learn. It sounds rather funny for a man to say he does not wish to injure my prospects, yet bare-faced ly does so by penning a letter to the Press brimful of spiteful inaccuracies. He either does not understand the Gateshead case or this one at Morpeth. Again, let me tell him that previous to my case at Gateshead that great specialist club, the N.B.B. and M.C., had no set rule for the guidance of judges anent these rare-feathered birds. Therefore to myself belongs the credit of awakening them to the importance of some set rule being fixed. Even if I had acted at Morpeth the same as Mr. W. did at Gateshead four years ago, no one could have criticised my action, as now the above-mentioned Club's rules will bear any judge out of such a difficulty. No. Mr. M., you are wrong in thinking it was impossible to convince me that only normal-coloured birds ought to win four years ago. My whole case lay in "W.C." being on my cage number, and not because my bird did not get a prize.

The Sex Problem at the Shows.

Sir,—In reference to 'Rob Roy's' letter in your issue of Oct. 28 in regard to W.C. birds at shows, I can tell you of an experience I had at Newcastle Show, held on Oct. 20 and 21. I entered two unflighted buff hens in Class 10, "hen, clear, ticked or variegated Buff unflighted bred 1911." When I received my catalogue on Saturday morning I was surprised to find my two exhibits in Class 10 marked W.C. I saw Mr. Atkinson, the secretary, at the show on same day, and asked if the judge had given any reason for wrong-classing my two birds in Class 10. He looked up the judge's slips, but unfortunately the slip for Class 10 was missing. He very courteously offered to accompany me to find the stewards on that section. We looked them up, but failed to get any satisfactory explanation. Mr. Atkinson then suggested writing to Judge Vardy, and, as that was the most reasonable course, I consented. Well, the judge's reply to the secretary's letter was: "I W.C. them for being cocks in hen class; could not do otherwise; both too clear for me to pass as hens." Now, I beg to state that the judge is entirely wrong, and that in my opinion, and in the opinions of others too, he was not justified in wrong-classing them. They are undoubtedly hens. One was 4th Burnley Oct. 6 and 7, unflighted hens, yellow or buff, N.P.C. and O.N.P.C. competition; Judge Vardy was 3rd in the same class, under Mr. J. C. Barnes. The same two hens (W.C. at Newcastle) were 1st and 2nd at the Border City (Carlisle) Show under Judge Battye on Oct. 25 and 26—clear or ticked buff hens. I may further state that I have had offers to buy these hens after Newcastle Show from well known Norwich fanciers, well up in Club competitions; and as I have been a breeder and exhibitor of Norwich Plainheads for several years I may fairly claim to know a hen from a cock, especially as I bred both birds. They have been caged off for over two months, and I am constantly amongst them. According to Newcastle Show Rules, there is no appeal against the judge's decision, so I take this opportunity to vindicate myself with regard to what I consider amounts to an insinuation of fraudulent practice.

CANARY QUERIES.

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

Moulting and Difficult Breathing.

P. B.—It is not uncommon for the moult to bring out any little weaknesses in the subject, and chest troubles become much more prominent than at ordinary times. You must first remove all exciting causes of the trouble by keeping the bird in a fairly comfortable temperature, but not over-heated, as equable as possible, and quite free from draughts or fumes of burning lights. Give a staple diet of three parts canary to one part summer rape. In addition give every second day for a fortnight half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw seed; on the alternating days twice a week give a morsel of banana or sweet apple, and on two other days a half-teaspoonful of a mixture of hemp, inga, teazle, millet, linseed, and groats, as frequently detailed here. In the drinking water give the aperient mixture advised to "Shelling Seed" for two days, and afterwards 20 drops of whisky, six each of oxymel of squills, and glycerine, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together in the water every second day for a fortnight. As you are only just starting the hobby you would be well advised to get "Canary Breeding for Beginners," which our manager would send you for 7d. post free. It will prevent you making many mistakes.

An Anxious Beginner.

Tyro.—To go into all details of management is not possible in this column, so I hope you will not mind my referring you to the coming standard work, "Our Canaries," which you can get in parts, or bound complete, or House's "Manual" or "Canary Breeding for Beginners," see inset, for the A to Z of Canary management. You have certainly done very fair this year. To reply to your particular queries: (1) You should reduce the full varied dietary you have been using during the moult and give a more plain one during the winter. Give plain canary only as staple. Every second day give separately half a teaspoonful of summer rape, and on the alternate days once a week give a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, or an equivalent quantity of bread and milk. On two other days each week give half a teaspoonful of the seed mixture you are now using, and on each of the remaining days a scrap of watercress (when weather permits) or a morsel of banana, or sweet apple. This is quite sufficient, and all that is necessary to keep the birds in the best possible condition, and the cocks in full song. (2) Keep these hens rather on the warm side until the moult is quite finished. Feed as above, but for the first fortnight give, in addition to the rest, the above-named quantity of sponge cake every second day (alternately with the rape) and add to it three drops of cod liver oil emulsion every second time, and on the other occasion slightly dust it with flowers of sulphur. In each case finally sprinkle with maw. In the drinking water give first the aperient and afterwards the tonic mixture, both as advised to "R.H.L.R." I can quite believe what you say re mites. Your theory is correct. Your system of cleaning is responsible for keeping them invisible. Relax these efforts for a month or two, and then fit or no fit, you would see some mites. Fact.

Birds in Conservatory (R.H.L.R.).—Your feeding is undoubtedly the chief cause. Try following treatment, which will, I think, soon set matters right. For staple diet give a mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape only. In addition give a little crushed plain biscuit, or sponge cake, or bread and milk, once a week only, allowing a small teaspoonful per bird. On two other days give a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, millet, with a sprinkling of maw, gold of pleasure, teazle, and a few groats. About three times a week give a little green food, or sweet fruit. For the first week only vary the above by omitting the mixed seeds, and giving half the quantity of sponge cake daily, and adding to it four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion for each bird, and sprinkling with maw seed. In each ounce of drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb, and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence every second day for a week, then dissolve a dram of ammoniated citrate of iron and quinine in an ounce of sherry, add a teaspoonful of glycerine, and give 15 drops of this mixture in each ounce of water every second day, continuing it for a fortnight or three weeks if necessary. I am assuming these birds have moulted.

Fishbone for Roller (Loco).—By the term "fishbone" I presume you mean cuttlefish bone, which is quite a different thing from the bone of ordinary edible fish. Cuttlefish bone is used quite freely during the breeding season to assist hens to shell their eggs, and is useful at almost any season. It would do no harm whatever to keep a piece stuck in the wires for your Roller to peck at when so inclined. But ordinary fish bone would be quite useless.

Shelling Seed (Shelling Seed).—It is usually due to some digestive derangement. Following will set matters right. Give plain canary as staple. Every second day give separately in addition half a teaspoonful of summer rape and a morsel of banana. On the alternating days give a piece of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut, dusted with soft sugar, and a pinch of maw seed. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and a pinch of Epsom salts for three consecutive days, and afterwards four drops each of tincture of gentain, tincture of calumba, and aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a week. After this you may gradually bring him on to the ordinary dietary again.

Lump Between Claws (Anxious).—You should have described the appearance and size more minutely. Bathe the substance well for a few minutes in quite warm water, and examine the lump carefully, whilst doing so to see if it is simply an accumulation of hardened filth. If this is so, continue bathing until it is softened sufficiently for you to remove it, and wash foot quite clean. Then dry, and anoint it sparingly with boracic ointment. If it is really a swelling and shows a "head," pick it with a clean needle, press out contents, then bathe clean in a solution of boracic acid, and anoint as before. If it shows no "head," simply bathe foot quite clean, dry, and afterwards touch it every second day for a week with a drop of tincture of iodine on the end of a match stick.

All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free, from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

All Unfertile (Novice).—There are several causes which may account, either singly or collectively, for the whole of the eggs in every clutch being unfertile. The hen might possibly be late-hatched last season, and, consequently, not in full virile breeding condition, yet the laying of full clutches on each occasion is just a little against this theory, as is the fact of two cocks being used against the idea of the cock being wholly to blame. Taking all points into consideration I think it most likely that the cause was accidental, and due to some natural obstruction to efficient copulation. Perhaps you did not trim off the loose superabundant feathering from the thighs, flanks, etc., or, maybe, the hen "called" only whilst sitting in the nest. Either circumstance is very frequently fatal to the production of fertile eggs. Keep the hen now in a large cage or flight, and feed on a plain diet for a time, and out of hearing of the cocks if possible.

About an Aviary (W.T.P.).—The south-east aspect is not really a bad one. If the building is in a fairly sheltered position, and the birds have hitherto been kept in quite a normal temperature, which I take it is the case, there is no reason why they should not thrive in this building quite well through the winter. But if the situation is cold and exposed, it would have been far better to line the inside of the house with matchboards and fill in the space between the walls with sawdust or wool-waste. The house would then have been considerably less subject to sudden fluctuations owing to external influences. To complete the ventilation arrangements add an inclined flap, hinged at the bottom, over each set of holes in the ends of the house, and on the inside. These you could open or close according to prevailing winds, and when open the inclined plane would divert any incoming draught to the roof away from the birds. Also cut out a piece from the centre of the front near the floor, eight by four inches, and cover this on both sides with perforated zinc arranged so that the perforations do not come into juxtaposition. Fit a sliding shutter or hinged flap over this, also for use when required to suit the prevailing conditions of weather.

Seed Samples (C. Hobdell).—(1) Maw, just a moderate quality. (2) Hemp, a rather poor quality; of the 23 seeds comprising the sample most of the kernels were deficient in oil, and about half a dozen decidedly bad. (3) Sunflower, of fair quality only, might be plumper. Useless for small birds unless chopped. (4) Inga, of good average quality. (5) White oats, a nice, plump, and good quality. (6) Summer rape, of very good quality. (7) Linseed, of excellent quality, if free from mites, though I am just a little suspicious on the point. (8) Canary, large, plump, and excellent all-round quality. (9) White millet, of good average quality. The most common fault of this seed is having a large quantity of dirt and dust mixed in the bulk. (10) Brown millet, seems very clean, and of good quality. Same remarks apply as to No. 9. Another time you must send a rather more generous sample. Opinions based on just a tiny pinch of seed cannot possibly be safely applied to the seed in bulk.

Roller Keeping Song (R.A.P.).—It requires a dash of the prophetic spirit to enable one to say definitely whether any given Roller which is perfectly trained, and sings a good pure song will maintain that song uncorrupted for an indefinite period. Individuals vary greatly. Some birds rapidly deteriorate, or quickly pick up "bad notes," whilst others are very slow in doing so and will retain a very good and tolerably pure song for quite a number of years. Between these two types there is every variety of good, bad, and indifferent individuals. In the course of time there are extremely few that do not deteriorate more or less. It would help to keep the song of both birds pure if you had a second of the same strain, and quite free from bad notes, but when you had two near together you would need to keep them under constant observation to check any tendency to loudness or harshness in either bird by covering over its cage or putting in a song-box—otherwise the result would be worse than keeping one bird by itself.

Contagion (A.M.P.).—Thanks for your further letter and particulars, which, however, does not throw any light upon the probable source of infection. Personally, I think you may safely put the fear of contagion out of your mind, and with the precaution I mentioned in my last reply, again bring the cage into use. Although I do not anticipate any danger of this same trouble breaking out afresh, I think you would be better able to meet any such contingency if you got Dr. Clarke's handbook on "Septic Fever," which our manager would send you post free for 7d. You would, in the event of such another death occurring, be better able to trace the source of contagion.

Age for Breeding (C.B.L., Member).—(1) Canaries hatched last June and July will be quite old enough to breed successfully if mated next April. If one of the small breeds, such as Borders or Rollers, there can be no objection whatever to mating them at this age, but with large breeds such as Crests and Lancashires, it is often good policy to keep them unmated over the first season when they are late-hatched. Note.—I say that it is good policy; not that it is essential. It is, however, advisable as far as possible to mate them with birds over a year old. (2) I cannot tell what can be wrong with this hen, as you do not give the slightest data to go upon. Write again and give me some particulars about her, and any symptoms of ailing exhibited, and I will do my best to help you. Probably she is not worth giving another chance.

A Singer Wanted (Ignoramus).—If you got Part xvi. of "Our Canaries" you would gather what is the true value of these multifarious titles. What you want is a well-trained Roller of the so-called Seifert or St. Andreasburg type, which simply means, or should do so, that the bird is taught a more varied repertoire, and consequently sings a greater variety of notes. These birds do not become monotonous—that is the fault, from the average popular point of view, of the highly trained contest singing birds, whose repertoire frequently consists of one or two long, pure hollow or bass rolls, which the average fancier may fail to appreciate after the novelty has worn off. You should get a very decent bird for the sum you name. Anytime during the next two months would be the best to buy. I do not advise you to have a last year's bird—get a well-trained young bird. FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., etc.

An Indoor Aviary.

A Young Beginner.—(1) It is well, if you wish your birds to thrive and be productive, to give as much space as you can, and should advise one 7½ by 6 feet deep, and the full height of the room. (2) I should merely erect (stretch) wire netting right across the room, 2½ft. from the door, thus the front of aviary would face the door, this wire front and a frame covered with wire netting (½inch mesh) to cover the window. There must be a small door in this frame to allow of window being opened and closed. (3) I should commence with not more than three pairs, though the aviary will accommodate thirty birds of this size. You could also keep one pair each Rosella Parrakeets and Cockatiels with them. (4) Artificial heat will not be required. (5) The walls would be better stripped and coloured with Hall's washable distemper (pale green); this would be more satisfactory than paper, which the birds would tear about. Use spruce branches or pea sticks (nail or hang them up) for perches, and put up an ample number of coconut husks or concave bottomed nest boxes.

Grey with Light Beak.

Novice.—Your pseudonym and partial description misled me, and I concluded you had made the error so many make in purchasing and mistaking the Roseate Cockatoo for a Grey Parrot. Correspondents do not realise the difficulty there is in naming written descriptions, which must be very thorough to give one a reasonable chance of success. I regret any annoyance I may have caused by describing your uncommon species (local race?) as the Roseate Cockatoo. Not a great deal is on record about the Timneh Parrot (also from the Gold Coast), which, in my opinion, is merely a local race of the Grey Parrot, from which it differs in its generally darker plumage and lighter beak; its greater value would be from the exhibitional standpoint, and many judges, some at large shows, would fail to recognise it as any other than a dark Grey Parrot. Many prefer the ordinary Grey, a nicely pencilled specimen of which is more handsome, in the opinion of many, than the darker and rarer race. Its value to a lover of the uncommon is about twenty-five per cent. more than that of the Grey—that is, other things being equal (talent, condition, etc.), of course. Though not quite analogous, the King Grey Parrot is merely a colour variety of the Grey, and not a separate species.

Amazon with Growth.

C. Meads.—You had better let your nearest vet. see the bird. I fear the film over the eye is a cataract, if so, it is no longer any use using the rosewater and zinc solution. You must not use the iodine on a sore, get a box of antiseptic ointment from your chemist, and keep the sore slightly greased with it till healed. I am still of the opinion that it is the bird's condition that is causing the clucking noise you refer to, and that it will gradually disappear with returning health. You must continue to keep its bowels moving freely (not watery loose), with occasional doses of Dinneford's Magnesia, as per our previous reply. While it is off its feed let it have such seeds as it most favours, also try it with bread sopped in Chemical Food and water, and sprinkled with a little sugar. I do not take birds in to care for them. You had better let the vet. see it, and possibly when the nature of swelling and film on eye is definitely ascertained, I can advise you further. But it must have enough to eat, and you had better let me know just what it is eating of the seed mixture, and if it touches the maize at all, also if it is favourable to the bread sop suggested above.

Amazon, Age and Value.

Constant Reader.—As a rule the scaling of the legs is a good guide as to age. In an aged bird these would be very coarse, hard, and horny. The different stages leading up to this would be quite a good indication as to its approximate age. From your very brief letter I should think it was a fairly young bird. As it is fairly tame keep it in the living-room, where it will get plenty of company (yet it must not be frequently scared), hear conversation, etc., and get generally fussed about with. At periods when it is quiet and restful talk to it, and teach it by constant repetition, and there will be ultimately some response. If it is correctly named its value is 30s. to 40s., according to condition. The value would, of course, increase, as it acquires talent as a talker. It would be well if you described the plumage of the bird to me as carefully as you can. I could then settle the question of species for you. A rough diagram, with the colours of the various parts marked out, and written on the diagram, would be the best way of doing this. It would appear that you wish to know more than your letter implies; if so, you must repeat query.

Outdoor Aviary Queries.

"Enthusiast."—I am rather in a difficulty as you give me no idea of your county, and this is really an important factor when considering suitable birds to winter out of doors. Again, no sample of netting reached me. Half-inch mesh will contain Waxbills and the small "Ornamental Finches," but with anything larger than this they can force their way through whenever inclined. Providing you are not too far north the following species should fulfil the conditions you name: Finches: Zebra, Ribbon, Sharp-tailed, Bib, Spice, Cuban, Saffron, Ruficauda, Long-tailed Grass, Grey, and Green Singing. Waxbills: Common and Green Avadavats, Grey, Orange-cheeked, St. Helena, and Golden-crested. Mannikins: Silverbills, Black-headed, White-headed, Bronze, and Magpie. General: White Java Sparrows, Cape Canaries, Combassou, Pekin Robin, Madagascar and Napoleon Weavers, Paradise Whydah, Red-crested Cardinal, and Blue Tanagers. You have breeding space for 15 pairs, and accommodation for half as many again. The Indian Striated Finch is worth approximately 5s. per pair, sometimes more, sometimes less. Well furnish the aviary with twiggy branches, and make the part under open netting roof a jungle of bushes and herbage.

What Bird? (Stranger).—It is a Green Singing Finch, and the cock is a songster of average merit. Canary, white and spray millet, with greenfood, grit, cuttlebone, and water will about meet their simple needs, though a little British Finch mixture to pick over two or three times a week is much appreciated and also beneficial, as also is an occasional mealworm, spider, or other insect. Keep a piece of clean cuttlebone hanging in the cage. Use a twiggy branch for perching accommodation.

Saffron Finch, etc. (C. N. D.)—(1) I have used the honeysuckle without any ill effects, and do not think you need fear any. (2) I should cage up the Saffron Finch (roomy cage), and put it on a coarse of Byno-phosphates. Let it have a daily bath, also a mealworm or two daily, if it cares for them, and once a week put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in the drinking water in lieu of the phosphates. Lightly anoint the hare and scaly areas with sulphur ointment, but do not put on sufficient to run among and clog its plumage. After once being taken indoors it must remain there till next spring.

Bare-eyed Cockatoo (H. R. Titswell).—Every fourth day put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia into the drinking water—one fluid ounce is sufficient for the day's supply. During the winter season once weekly should be sufficient for the bath. Choose a mild day, and keep strictly out of draught till dry. Spray it with a fine "mist" sprayer, using chilled water. It will help to tone the bird up a little if on the days you are not giving the magnesia if you put the same quantity of Byno-phosphates in the drinking water. The above treatment is in addition to the ordinary diet, but when giving the prepared water, no other water should be offered on the particular day. Use a crock or glass drinker. Continue the above treatment for about a month, and then report progress.

An Ailing Grey Parrot (R. E. Collier).—I do not think the wheezing arises from a cold, but from the stomachic troubles. Give a little aromatic confection every other day for a week, and then write again, giving full details as to its condition. The better plan in giving drugs (only a crock or glass vessel should be used) is to take away water over night, and then to give the prepared water and nothing else till the bulk has been taken—dose, one teaspoonful aromatic confection, water two tablespoonfuls. On the other days, that is, when not giving the aromatic confection, dissolve one drop of laudanum in two tablespoonfuls of chilled water—this quantity is about a day's supply. The above treatment is to be continued for one week, when you had better repeat query. Diet bird as per directions in Nutshell Booklet No. 17.

Budgerigar with Sore Legs (Hocking).—I am assuming from your letter that the small lumps are sound and the skin unbroken. In such case bathe daily in hot water (not hot enough for discomfort), dab dry with a linen cloth, and then paint with tincture of iodine, so long as the skin remains sound; you must not use the iodine after skin breaks, but a little zinc ointment instead—both can be applied with a camel hair brush, which must be well cleansed after use. Keep its bowels moving quite freely (not watery loose) by occasional doses of sweet oil—two drops direct to the beak from the end of a quill. The drinking water may be lightly tinged with Chemical Food, and a piece or two of plain biscuit supplied in addition to the diet you are giving. If there is no improvement in three weeks, write again and enclose a stamped addressed envelope and a copy of this reply.

Budgerigars, Nonpareils, etc. (Lotus).—(1) This bird had evidently either been badly scared by something or else the other Budgerigar had maltreated it, and these once amiable birds appear to be changing for the worse in this respect. Your diet is satisfactory, but give greenfood daily, now the frosty season is here lettuce (fresh) is about the best. Try anointing its head with "Zam-buk" daily for a time, but do not use sufficient to grease the plumage; if this does not give relief try cold cream under same conditions. Bathe the eye as a precaution with a rosewater and zinc eye solution. Keep bowels moving freely by a couple of drops of sweet oil, direct to the beak, from the end of a quill, and lightly colour its drinking water (only small quantity) with Chemical Food. (2) These arrive in a very debilitated condition, and many die soon after arrival, but live well when once established. Add white and spray millet and greenfood to your dietary. Keep warmish and out of draught, yet it must get fresh air. (3) Yes, provided cages are spacious enough for reasonable exercise, and that the birdroom is well ventilated without setting up a draught. Your cock bird evidently caught a chill and succumbed to pneumonia. My Avadavats are still in outdoor aviary. (4) The Lovebird is about the same size in body as the Red-crested Cardinal, possibly a little smaller, but it's a near thing; the long tail of the Cardinal makes it appear larger than it really is.

A Feather Pulling Grey (Nemo).—As yours is but a young bird you have every hope of checking this annoying habit. Stop the milk and tea sops and all table scraps, etc., at once. As it is accustomed to moist food, give the following: stale household bread or plain biscuit moistened with equal parts of warm water and Chemical Food, and lightly sprinkled with moist sugar; also ripe fruit, nuts, plain dry biscuit, and the following seed mixture: four parts each canary and white millet, two parts oats, and one part each paddy rice, hemp, and sunflower seed, well mix and keep a supply in the cage. Add a pinch of grit (not sand) to the daily supply of seed, and keep a piece of clean cuttlebone hanging in the cage. Give one teaspoonful of Dimeford's Magnesia in the drinking water, and repeat this in a week's time. Spray once weekly with quassia solution, but keep strictly out of draught till dry. At all times it must have fresh air without draught. Get Nutshell booklet, "The Grey Parrot," 2½d. post free, from our manager.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Managing a Robin.

Bideford.—There is no reason why you should not cage a Robin; in fact, they sing freely and well in captivity. But they are not seed-eaters. I know people who keep them during the winter and let them free in the spring; perhaps you would care to do this. The best house cage is a box-pattern one about 18 inches long by 14 high by 9 or 10 wide, fitted with food, etc., vessels inside. Try this stock food: Powdered Osborne biscuit, six parts; best ants' egg, and dried flies, two parts each; powdered silkworm pupae, one part; meat meal, half part, by measure. Take the quantity required of this, and mix it just crumbly moist with grated raw carrot, or finely chopped lettuce, watercress, or chickweed (use young leaves only), or cold boiled potato, varying it frequently and adding a little water (but only a few spots) if necessary. "Bobbie," however, likes a few seeds—canary mostly—now and again. You could buy a good stock food, ready made up, from many advertisers using our columns (possibly at local bird shops, or bird food dealers), and add to it grated carrot (sufficient to just damp it), and now and again half a finely-minced hard boiled egg. That would make up a very fair dietary. You can add mealworms and small black beetles when you can get them, and other suitable live foods. "Bobbie" likes a few ripe berries (such as elder-berries) and a little fruit, too.

Proper Diet for Bullfinch.

Grateful.—Have you bought the "Nutshell" booklet on this bird? It is very useful, indeed. This species has been bred freely in aviaries and now and again in cages. As regards the food when moulting, to get a good result in the way of colour, I fancy many of the owners of show Bullies give them a little sweet pepper. It can be given amongst their seed (crushed) if the bird won't eat soft food, though most of them do this. If natural colouring agents be used (and these are best), Bullies should have a free daily supply of all the fruits and berries with colour in them, especially blackberries (in both red and black stages), and privet berries; in addition to these you have straw, rasp, elder, mountain ash (rowan), dew and other berries, black currants, and cherries, etc., to say nothing of the wild seeding plants, I am so frequently recommending, such as ripe plantain, dock, thistles, heather tops (where possible), shepherd's purse, chickweed, mouse-ear, groundsel tops, etc. Let your bird bathe freely. A most important point in the production of gloss on the plumage is a free use of the bath. If your Bullie is lax in this respect, he must be lightly sprayed every day with a fine sprayer (such as barbers use for bay rhum, etc), which may be bought from most fanciers' specialists advertising in our columns. Never drench the bird. The stock seed mixture should be canary three parts, teazle two parts, linseed and summer rape, one part each, by measure. Sunflower and safflower seeds should be offered fairly liberally, cracked, if necessary. The seed can be run through a seed mill, and have a little sweet pepper mixed amongst it. Don't give hemp.

Show Condition in Goldfinch.

Hard Lines.—Well, it certainly is "hard lines" that your bird should not be fit for your show, but the Goldie is somewhat late in moulting as a rule, and even after he has acquired his new coat, a few weeks pass before his blaze attains a deep crimson colour. Give your bird plenty of thistle heads and hardheads, and let him bathe freely, and the "bloom" will soon appear on his plumage. Feed your bird on the following lines: This is the seed mixture I am using at present for my own Goldies: Teazle four parts, canary and hemp three parts each, linseed one part, sunflower saf-flower and summer rape half-part each. The sunflower and saf-flower I crack lightly by passing them through a seed-crushing machine, and mix them with the others only when about to feed; but this, of course, is not convenient to everybody. In addition I have two other mixtures, of which I give a small teaspoonful daily—one, one day, the other the next day, and so on. They are (1) niger three parts and naw one part; (2) thistle three ounces, dandelion and sesame two ounces each, lettuce, gold of pleasure, and corn-flower one ounce each. All the others are mixed by measure. These seeds are those I have found by long experience the Goldfinch is particularly partial to, and as "tit-bits" they help to bring them into condition quicker than anything else I know. There are other little tit-bits (such as maggots out of thistle, etc., heads), but the above list will answer well, providing the bath (or spray) is not forgotten.

Blackbird's Show Cage (Golden Eye).—There is no set pattern and no set size for the show cage of a Blackbird. Some exhibitors like one shape and colour, and others prefer something different. Any good up-to-date cage maker would supply you with a suitable show cage. Size, about 20ins. long, 15 high, and 9 wide. Have the outside black, etc., inside and wires some shade of blue—a turquoise blue being, in my opinion, very hard to beat. I like the wire front to be bowed a little at the top; only two perches.

Always Pecking Amongst its Feathers (Bob).—Your bird is affected with "red mite," which accounts for the restlessness and continued uneasiness. The exciting cause of death was pneumonia. Examine you other birds, and, if affected similarly with red mite, spray them occasionally with a solution of sulphuretted potash, one drachm to the pint of water, using the solution warm. The cages must be thoroughly cleansed. If metal, wash them with boiling water containing a strong dash of a good disinfectant (Izal, Jeyes, etc.). If wood, either put them in a fairly warm oven for 20 minutes (don't clear them, of course) or paint over all the cracks and crevices with turpentine, letting it run freely into the joints. You can replace the birds in a few hours' time.

The Waxwing (Long Crest).—A really good and most economical stock food can be prepared by taking a dessertspoonful of crushed "Melox" (obtainable at all corn and seed stores), thoroughly soaking it with hot water, and then reducing it to a crumbly consistency by adding (dry) some good make of prepared insectile food, such as is advertised in our columns at about 1s. to 1s. 6d. per pound. Let the bird have ripe fruit and berries (black, privet, mountain ash, etc); also some live food frequently (mealworms, gentles, and the like). Show cage about 16in. long, 14 high, and 8 wide, black outside, light blue wires and inside. The Waxwing is very hardy, and can stand the cold, if kept free of draughts and damp.

The blaze of a "Greypate" (Puzzled).—Strictly speaking, a "greypate" has no blaze, the term really applying to a young Goldfinch in its nestling plumage. But you must not think that because your young Goldies have poor coloured blazes that they are necessarily hens. The blaze of even the adult Goldfinch does not moult out crimson in colour—it comes a pale ("brassy," as fanciers term it) colour at first, and gradually gets deeper. Sometimes it is a month or two before it becomes at all a deep red. The blaze of a first-year Goldfinch (a "greypate") always comes very "brassy" looking, and seldom comes out a really bright, deep colour, until after the second moult. If the blaze is really expansive (that is, covers a good area of the "face"), you can safely keep the bird as a cock, and in the expectation that it will moult a good one next year.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 2, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

D. D. Sutton.—The liver was one mass of fat, not a remnant of healthy tissue remaining, the slightest touch causing it to break up. There was no possible hope of cure for such a case, and the only way to prevent other loss which I suspect you have already experienced is to seek the cause, which I believe is to be sought for in the food. If you can enlighten me as to your system of feeding, and submit me a sample, I may possibly be able to afford you some assistance.

A.B.C.—Consumption was not the cause of death, pneumonia terminating in broncho-pneumonia gave the climax to an already weakened system. There is no doubt but that your bird was an asthmatical one, and such are always predisposed to pneumonia upon the advent of cold wet weather.

C. Darnley.—Budgerigar succumbed to enteritis, or inflammation of the bowels.

Seed.—Loss of feathers was due to the presence of a small parasite, just visible with the naked eye, but very pronounced under the microscope. Your best remedy will be to spray your birds, using a small scent spray, with a solution made warm, before use of sulphuretted potash, mixing half a drachm in four ounces of warm water. Spray well under the feathers every alternate day for a week or ten days, and scrub and disinfect perches, or other wood work thoroughly, so as to ensure destroyal of parasites which lurk in these positions.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

A Photograph (C. H. Hill).—This came safely to hand, thanks, and we intend to reproduce it at the first suitable opportunity.

An Article (Fred Kings).—We are much obliged to you for this entertaining history, which we purpose publishing next week.

Show Cage for a Magpie (Bird Fancier).—You will be able to get the above from any of the large cage makers advertising in our columns, or from any of the large firms that specialise in fanciers' goods. Address an enquiry to them for price, etc.

Newcastle Show (Lover of Justice the Second).—We will make inquiries into this matter. There are always "passengers" amongst officials, however, and if they do not do their duty it is obviously up to the members to weed them out at the annual elections.

A Travelling or Show Cage.

Sent by Mr. E. Pease, 23, Broad Street, Warwick.

I enclose a sketch of a travelling or show cage, which may be of some advantage to your readers. This cage, you will find, can be used for despatching birds on rail quite safely, or as a show cage. When used as a show cage it will appear as under; otherwise the lids can be shut up and tied round each way without fear of damaging the cage.—E. Pease.

A Useful Scraper.

Sent by Mr. A. J. Shipton.

I am enclosing a very useful scraper. The cost of making same is practically nothing. All that is required is a stiff piece of tin or iron and a wooden handle cut out of any piece of wood. Make a saw-cut in the centre to let iron or tin into; then the scraper is screwed tight, and you then can scrape your sand drawers clean with very little trouble.—A. J. Shipton. [Will Mr. Shipton kindly send us his address, which has been mislaid?—Editor.]

CHELTENHAM SCORES.

Entries advance a Hundred, and the Quality leaves nothing to be desired.

Annual show of the Cheltenham C.B.S. held Nov. 1 and 2 in the Drill Hall. The entries came up well in all sections being 100 in advance of last year's. The total entry was 800. Norwich and Yorkshires were a feature in themselves, and the Border Fancies were the largest in number and best in quality ever staged in Cheltenham. The Crest section was also up to the usual high standard, noticeable at Cheltenham Show, the quality in the young Crest class being especially good. The winning Crest here was a stormer, and was bred by a local exhibitor. British and Mule classes, which were under the patronage of the N.B.B. and M.C., were well filled, and the birds were excellent. The foreign birds were tip-top. We are glad to record a noteeable improvement in the number of foreigners staged year by year. Mr. W. E. Greeves judged the Crests, Mr. H. W. Battye the Norwich, Yorks., and Borders, and Mr. J. Frostick the British, Hybrid, and Foreign birds; their awards gave general satisfaction.. The Drill Hall is an ideal place for an exhibition of this kind, being well lighted by day and and illuminated at night by electricity. Hot-water radiators kept the room at a pleasant even temperature to the advantage of the exhibits and visitors alike. Everything was in order, and judging commenced at 9 a.m. sharp. Mr. Treasure, the able sec., whose tact and courtesy are so much appreciated, was once again in his usual place, and was ably assisted by the hon. show manager, Mr. W. Pounsett, and a hard-working body of stewards, including Messrs. Grant (chairman), Lewis (vice-chairman), King, Kilminster, Child, Hands, Hiles, Hayling, Hope, Brown, Smith, Elstone, Madagan, Bates, Stevens, who had everything in splendid working order. Sandiford's spl. was won by Mr. Baker.

DUNBAR.

Seventh annual show held Assembly Rooms November 1st. The hall is a good one. The birds were staged around the sides, and seemed nice and comfortable. Borders were somewhat fewer than last year, but good in quality. In the Norwich section the classes were increased, and there was a fairly good entry. Quality all through the show was much as in former years. Mr. Gilhooly makes an ideal secretary, having everything in tip-top order; a few more stewards to assist the judge would be an improvement. Mr. C. Campbell (Glasgow) made the awards.

EAST READING.

Cage birds, at the show of the East Reading F.A., which was held in the Cross Street Hall on November 1st, did not come up quite so well as last year, and the quality of the Canaries was not up to past shows. The Foreigners were splendid, as were the British, and the special for the best bird in the show fell to a magnificent Magpie shown by Mrs. Scrimshaw. The arrangements were well carried out by a good band of stewards, and Messrs. Wise and Sheppard made an excellent brace of secretaries. Mr. C. A. House judged.

I had splendid results from my advertisement in "Cage Birds," and did excellent business—with all clients thoroughly satisfied. Undoubtedly there is no question about it, "Cage Birds" is a splendid advertising medium. I have much pleasure in enclosing an advertisement for another three weeks.—A. J. A. Marley (Leyton).

The last advertisement I had in "Cage Birds," like others, was a success. From the time "C.B." was issued on the Friday to the following Wednesday I had every Siskin sold, and had to return no less than 7 P.O.'s. That, I must say, is good, and speaks well for your journal, which I think a great deal of.—Hugh Fraser (Killiecrankie).

LISKEARD.

Show held Nov. 1st in the Public Hall. We regret to record the fact that several classes were cancelled. The exhibits were nicely staged on the platform at one end of the room, and they were well cared for by several good fanciers. The quality of the exhibits was very good, many meritorious birds being put down. We think that if another year the Committee can provide a separate room for the cage birds and advertise the fact, they will get an increased entry. The society are fortunate in having Mr. Jones. Robins as their hon. sec., as he is methodical, keen, and most courteous. Mr. J. H. Payne made the awards and pleased all.

CROYDON.

Croydon and Dis. F.A. Show held St. Michael's Hall, Nov. 1st. The show was a great advance on last year's effort, the entries totalling nearly double the number recorded on that occasion; and the quality was equal to that seen at some of the best open shows. Mr. F. W. Capell, the hon. sec., leaves nothing to chance, but has every detail carefully worked out, so that there cannot possibly be any hitch, and the result was successful arrangement and satisfaction to exhibitors and visitors alike. Mr. F. Botell (assist. sec.) rendered the most efficient aid to his chief, and the committee and stewards did excellently. The show was opened at 3 o'clock by Sir F. T. Eldridge, J.P. (President), and the ceremony was a very interesting one. Lady Eldridge (a patroness) takes a lively interest in the society's welfare. Special for best cage bird fell to a very fine broken yell. Nor., and special for 2nd best to a grand buff Nor., both belonging to Mr. A. J. Wilby. Special for best Yorks. fell to Mr. G. Harris; Mr. E. E. Gunnell annexed the British bird special; and Madame Ratford that for Foreign birds. There was a decidedly superior tone to the show, and encouraging attendance of the general public, and indications point to all-round success. Mr. C. Gardner judged, and his awards were well received.

BARNSTAPLE.

Twenty-fourth annual show held Oct. 31 and Nov. 1. The cage birds were staged in an annexe of the large Market Hall, splendidly lighted with top light, free from draughts—an ideal place for an exhibition. The birds were staged in three tiers, and in number showed an increase in entries over last year. Belgians as a rule are a great attraction, Barnstaple being now recognised as the Belgian centre. Four classes were provided, and some real good birds were staged. The young Belgian class contained some nice exhibits, and many out of the tickets can win. Yorkshires had three classes, and contained some grand birds. Norwich Plainheads were fine in quality. Crests and Crest Breds were simply superb. Here we had the cream of the Fancy. The A.O.V. class contained some nice birds. Hybrids were also grand, including several Palace winners. The novice class contained some good and useful birds. Britishers came up well. Mr. Percival Harris makes an ideal secretary, and with a good working committee everything went off splendidly, while Mr. Dix acted as cage bird steward and attendant. Mr. J. Robson judged.

Wolverhampton puts up a Record

And its own Finest Display represents the best of the season in the Midlands.

Fifth annual show held Oct. 27 and 28, and may be regarded as the finest display ever seen in the history of the society. The venue was the Co-operative Hall, a room admirably adapted for the purpose, being very spacious; indeed, several hundred more birds could easily have been staged without the room being overcrowded. There was no lack of light by day, while at night it was brilliantly lit by electric light. The entry was a capital one, close upon 500—a record. We should say it was about the best entry seen in the Midlands this season. Not only was it good numerically, but the quality was excellent. Competition was therefore exceedingly keen in all sections. Norwich opened the ball with an average of over twelve per class. A very level lot they were, type and quality being well maintained. Yorkshires were a little below the Norwich for average, viz., eleven per class, but quality was immense. Every class in this section contains birds of a very high order, many local breeders staging some fine exhibits, which lead their own with some of the "cracks" from the County of Broad Acres. Is this the fruits of the Midland Counties Y.C.C., whose patronage was allotted to this show? The novices are well catered for at this feature, and right well did they respond. The Norwich averaged over fifteen per class, while the Yorkshires went one better. Special mention must be made of the winning Yellow York hire hen bred and exhibited by the genial hon. sec., Mr. J. Gibbons, one of the best unflighted hens we have seen out this season. Mules were not a strong lot, but some really topping specimens were on view. British classes were well filled, and were a choice collection. The management was of a very high order, and every attention was paid to the birds. In Mr. J. Gibbons the society is well served with a hard-working sec. Although young to the post, his experience with last year's show stood him in good stead. He has a thorough knowledge of the working of a show, every detail being carried out in a methodical manner. He is well backed up by a committee of workers, fanciers to the backbone, while at their head, as chairman, is Mr. F. J. Weaver, a veteran in show management, who in turn is well supported by Mr. R. Willoughby as vice-chairman. We were pleased to see one of the vice-presidents (Mr. J. A. Tonks) taking such an active share in the work. He retired from the show bench some while back, but his love for the Hybrids and Britishers is not by any means dead. Messrs. Trower and Co.'s silver medal was won by Mr. J. Gibbons with the Yorkshire hen already commented on. Ramsden's silver medal, Mr. Victor Williams. Sandiford's silver medal, Mr. F. J. Weaver. Mr. J. Rohson judged.

AYLESBURY.

Third annual show, held in the Town Hall, October 26th. The entry was a good one, and this year interest was deepened by the offering of open classes, which were well patronised, and brought out some first class specimens. The society has Lionel de Rothschild, Esq., M.P. for the Division, as its President. The committee are out and out fanciers; while the hon. secretary, Mr. F. Rayner, is courteous, able and methodical. The show arrangements were excellent, and the Town Hall is an exceedingly well lighted building. Every comfort was provided for the exhibits, and the stewarding was well done. In the open Norwich section were some front rankers, staged in splendid form by Mr. A. J. Kilby, who won the section special with a rattling cheek ticked yellow. Yorks. also came up well. In the local classes the specials fell deservedly to Messrs. F. Rayner, W. Buckingham (2), F. Horne, H. Mole and D. E. Riley. The quality here was high-class, many of the birds being fit for the best open competition. Awards were up early, catalogues out promptly, and towards evening—it being early closing day—the attendance of the general public was good. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged, and his awards seemed to give entire satisfaction.

The Manager, "Cage Birds,"
154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

LONDON FEDERATION OF C.B.S.

Heartily are the committee of the London Federation to be congratulated upon the success of their first show, which was held at the Church Institute, Marylebone, W., on October 27th and 28th. The entry, when one considers that the sliding scale of prizes was in force, was a good one, whilst the quality generally was far better than we expected to find it, especially may this be said of the Yorkshires. The birds were very nicely staged, and all the exhibits carefully attended to by the stewards, Messrs. Reeks, Tomsett, Castell, and Dewhurst, the latter giving particular attention to the British and foreign. The only drawback to a really good show was the wretched fog which prevailed on Friday, its dim religious light made judging a most arduous and thankless task. Mr. Bray, as show manager, and Mr. Cook as secretary, were both most indefatigable in their efforts to promote the success of the venture. Mr. C. A. House judged Canaries, 415, and Mr. J. Frostick, the Mules, British and foreign, which numbered 106, a total of 521.

FALKIRK.

23rd show of the Falkirk C.B.S. held Oddfellows' Hall, Oct. 28. The Hall, which has been often described, is one of the best, and the 500 exhibits which graced its benches were also of the best. Norwich were particularly good, and Borders much the same as usual. The British classes contained some very fine exhibits. The office bearers, who are to be congratulated upon the carrying out of this most successful exhibition, are: Hon. Pres., Mr. Hugh Moreland; Pres., Mr. T. R. Wallace; Vice-Pres., Mr. J. Moreland; Treas., Mr. J. Morris; Committee, Messrs. Baird, Sutton, Robertson, Simpson, Conner, Martin. The secretarial reins were in the hands of that young and enthusiastic fancier, Mr. Robert Rennie, who carried everything through with great success. Mr. J. Holmes (Edinburgh) made the awards in the Norwich section, Mr. J. Jeans (Cameloa) Borders, Mr. D. J. Gardner (Bathgate) Mules. British and Foreign. Their awards all round were well received. During the afternoon the show was well patronised.

Manchester's Display of 1,600 Birds.

A GREAT SHOW.

The Amateur Sections Specially Distinguish Themselves. The Usual Excellent Management and Marvellous Saturday Crowd of Visitors.

The 29th annual show of the Manchester and Northern Counties O.S. was held on Oct. 27 and 28 at the Zoological Gardens, Belle Vue, and yet another success was scored by this most enterprising society. Exhibitors prophesied disastrous results when they altered the venue from the Hulme Town Hall to Belle Vue. Many a time we have been so crushed at the Town Hall, we could not find time to see the birds in the ante-room; but now, what a glorious change! Even more exhibits—certainly more room—and a wonderful top light until dark. You can now shake hands with and chat to your friends without being bumped into every minute. The show room is entirely free from draughts, and well served by the heating apparatus. No doubt it was the bright room that went far to keep the exhibits looking so well until they left the hall on the Saturday. There is one thing about the Manchester fanciers—they do look well after the exhibits under their care, surely a grand recommendation for future shows!

The schedule comprised 152 classes (including those for members) and a hearty response was made, exhibitors sending some 1,600 entries, an increase of 150 over last year. A worthy tribute this to the management! All the birds are staged on the three-tier system, so that every bird can be seen distinctly. The foreigners, always a wonderful show here, had the end of the room to themselves; and they wanted it, so numerous were their admirers.

The manager of the show, Mr. H. Boothman, had everything in apple-pie order—no rush; just a word to one of his many helpers, and the order was promptly carried out, every man doing his utmost to make the visitors and birds comfortable. Mr. Boothman is a great asset to the M. and N.C.O.S., with his genial manner and businesslike ways, and we hope there is no truth in the rumour we heard that he is thinking of giving up his post. His chief clerk is Mr. Aspinall (a future show manager, we presume), and this popular gentleman is an apt pupil in the art of successfully running a show. In Mr. W. A. Bladon the society has a working President second to none in the country. It would not seem a Manchester Show without his smile, and a grip of the veteran's hand. Long may he live to so cheerily welcome the visitors! The exhibitors are also indebted to the following gentlemen for looking after the general welfare of the birds: Messrs. J. H. Aspinall, Atkinson, Bruce, "Genial" Sam Cook, W. Fairhurst, Gray, Hardy, Harrison, Hughes, J. Adison, Geo. Lythgoe, Moorbey, Mason, Richards, Riley, Smith, Spencer, Schofield, Yeats, Fulcher, Haywood, Robinson, Morgan, and Broughton. That old war-horse Mr. G. W. F. Lythgoe, along with Mr. Raynes, also put in a lot of work. Unfortunately Mr. Raynes was taken ill on the Friday, and is still confined to his bed. We wish him a speedy recovery. Messrs. Spencer and Hayward took over his duties, and right well they did their various tasks.

The "Top Sawyers."

The quality of the exhibits this year was of the finest, and far beyond previous exhibitions. The giants of the Canary family, the Lancashires, turned up fairly well. Certainly some classes were not what they might have been; but look at the specimens shown by Messrs. Barrass, Fitton, Hordern, and Collinge—it was like old times to see the crowd round their cages. The yellow coppy put down by Mr. Barrass was an out-and-out good one, the envy of all eyes. We notice there are new names in the variety, and we gladly welcome them to the ranks, and trust they will have the same successful and honourable careers as the veterans in this variety. Lizards were a grand lot (Manchester seems always to get good support), and they are getting more level every year, no one seeming to "rule the roost" in this variety. This is how it should be.

The dark-eyed 'uns fra' Yorksher turned up strong and the quality was the best that has been seen at Manchester for a long time. We cannot report anything standing out "on its own"; a more level lot would be hard to find, quite a number of new fanciers capturing leading prizes, and they did not all go to Bradford. Amateur Yorkshires were an eye-opener, and fully deserve to have the classes divided into yellows and buffs. Some grand birds were staged that would have put a stopper on some of the champions if they had met. The chief winners were Messrs. Richards, Brooks, Snape, Potts, and Bryant, whose birds were a decided credit to them. The pink-eyed 'nns were again down in number, but oh! what quality! The cream of Yorkshire! No wonder fanciers use cinnamon blood when they can turn out such remarkable quality of feather.

Amongst the Greens.

The Yorkshire Greens were put down in great force, and some birds of great merit were shown. The grass-green colour was magnificent, and the type quite equalled that of their clear brethren. It was the best show of Greens this year. Manchester seems to vie with Liverpool as to who are the best caterers for this variety. The prizes were wonderfully well divided. Here again the birds are getting more level in merit, no one man running away with all the spoils. We heard that that enthusiastic fancier, Mr. Tom Rowlands, is not counting his points for the Cup, leaving the rising exhibitors to make a fight for it. Norwich Greens did not come up as well as expected, but competition is always keen here. Mr. Lawson had quite a field day, winning in both cock classes, with young birds, we noticed. Mr. Dormer put down a storming foul yellow (from Cinnamons, Billy?). Mr. Barker, from Widnes, stole a march on the others in the foul buff class with his noted buff hen. My word, she does improve! Messrs. Walker and Hales staged some typical birds, but the judge, no doubt, went in for big 'uns.

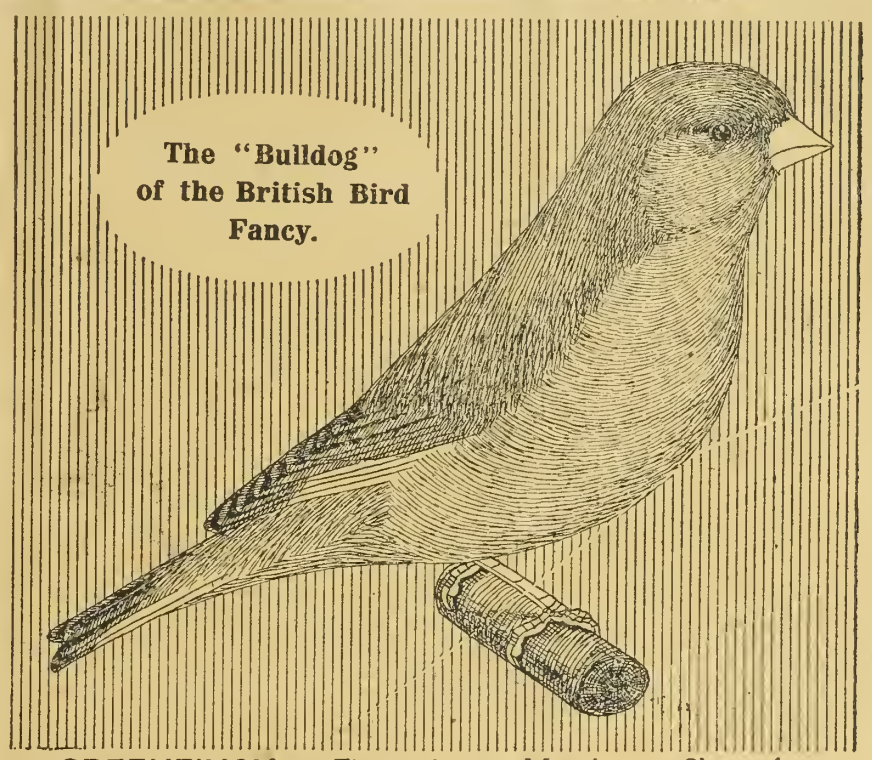
In the Norwich Plainheads, this being the N.P. Club Show, naturally there was a galaxy of talent present. What balls of fire—quite a fifth of November display! Type, however, seems to be the main characteristic now. We noticed very few showing the brow and length of side of the Crest-bred. Messrs. J. E. Davies, Vardy, Cook, Raynes, Johnson, Barker, Grey, Thomas, Seed, Dormer, Leonard, Boothman, and Sheldon put some extraordinarily good birds down in the Champion Section. The Amateur Norwich made a rare show 175 in five classes. A man was lucky to get in the prize-list, as no fault could be found with any of the first dozen in each class. The cream of the spoils were taken by Messrs. Edmondson, Greenhall, Hobson, Hillmen, Norman, Collis, Bixter, and Johnson.

Crests were very poor in number, though this was greatly made up by the excellent quality. We noticed there were plenty of admirers for this variety. Chief winners were Messrs. Guy, Evans Bros., Taylor, Ley, Brotherton; and in novices, Messrs. Warham, Jones, Lightborne, and Dr. Twigg. Cinnamons turned up hardly so well as in previous years, but there were more exhibitors, and this is good for the Fancy. Those stalwarts Mr. W. Dormer and Mrs. F. E. Deacon fought their usual battle, and at the finish Mr. Dormer came out with a lead. A new aspirant to championship honours is Mr. Hartup, who scored a bull at the first time of asking, with a lovely-coloured unflighted yellow. Novice Cinnamons were really grand. New names here again, who also put down some Cinnies that will be heard of later. Mr. Heys has now to go to the Champion Section; he was all smiles on Saturday. The members, as is usual here, were well catered for, and their birds made quite a show on their own. The Yorkshires and Norwich were fit to go out in the open. We are pleased to notice exhibits from several of the clergy, the reverend gentlemen holding their own with the best of them.

Mr. J. E. Davies won the £2 2s. for best Norwich in the show with his unflighted yellow. He also won the N.P. Club's gold medal in the Champion Section; while Mr. J. Norman accounted for that over the Amateur Section. The claims did not come up to former years, we were sorry to hear, as it means less grist to the mill. The attendance was really marvellous on the Saturday; where did the people come from? The gangways were packed. We met the following well-known fanciers, who had come up to see this truly fine exhibition:—Messrs. W. H. Howe (Wellingborough), E. Baker (Cowes), Large, Ireland, and Higgins (Barrow), J. W. Ramsden (London), Robinson, Handley, Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Deacon, Rowlands, Nimmo, Mr. and Mrs. Hillmen (Liverpool), Mr. and Mrs. Parry (Ruabon), John Guy and Griffiths (Garston), Teddy Fitton (Rochdale), John Roberts (Bontnewydd), Mrs. and Miss Tom Taylor (Gateshead), besides the numerous fanciers whose names we did not know.

The Belgian classes were cancelled, and so was one of the Scotch Fancy classes. The other S.F. class did not produce any bird of a remarkable character. The Borders were fairly strong in numbers, and the quality was of a very high order indeed, the clear buff classes containing gems of the very first water. The local champion, Mr. Bayley, took his usual share of the prizes, whilst the Barrow men, Messrs. Ireland, Large and Hudson, gave him a good race. There were some outstanding birds of wonderful colour in the Green Borders, and what was lacking there in numbers was made up for by quality and richness of colour, the type also being a great improvement.

Hybrids turned up splendidly and just on 60 of the best were on view in the open section. The Light Canary Hybrids contained such noted birds as the champion clear Linnet, clear Goldie-Canary, nearly clear Greenfinch-Canary, and some very fine almost evenly marked yellow and buff Goldie-Canaries, all in the pink of condition. Some very smart dark Canary hybrids were shown, too. Some of the Siskin-Cans. shown among the dark buffs were held to be just strong enough in body colour all over to be eligible for the dark yellow class. The members' hybrids were also very good. The British birds were splendid for quality on the whole, though not quite so numerous as last year. It is not often two Hoopoes also two Dartford Warblers appear in a class; yet we had them here. There was a fine collection of Foreign birds, and it was a treat to see so many staged in such grand condition. The F.B.C. silver medal for best member's bird went to a most exquisitely conditioned Wood Swallow simply as tight as a wax model. The members' British birds deserve special mention for their fine quality. The Siskins were much better than those shown in the open class. As our critique will tell, there was a very large variety of species and crosses in the Hybrid, British and Foreign sections, and the birds entertained visitors immense'y.



The judges were Messrs. Swalwell, Colledge, Davis, Battye, Godley, Hadwin and Houlton, and these old and tried hands seemed on the whole to be very successful in pleasing exhibitors and visitors.

First Great Open Show of the Oxford C.B.S., held Oct. 26th, St. Peter-le-Bailey Hall. Although some of the classes were poorly supported, there were close on 300 exhibits on view, including teams from some of the most prominent exhibitors. The show was fairly well patronised during the day, and taken on the whole it was about the best exhibition of cage birds seen in Oxford. An interesting feature was the inclusion of two Roller classes, which brought together 29 birds, and some good singing was heard, Mr. Randall's young bird being in wonderful form. Mr. Levett, a local exhibitor, had a magnificent team of foreign birds on view, including those very rare specimens, the Brazilian Military Starling and the Brazilian Hang-nest, which were much admired. The secretarial duties were in the hands of Mr. A. F. Fifield, than whom it would be difficult to find a more able or more willing worker; he had everything in capital order, and was not short of assistance from his fellow officials. Mr. J. H. Roe (Birmingham) judged.

TREHARRIS.

Eighth annual open show of the Treharris and Dis. F.S. held Oct. 26th, Central Skating Rink, close to station. We noticed several well known faces among the crowd in the evening, evidently making the best use of the short time at their disposal. Entries were rather under last year's, comparing favourably, however, with those of many other fixtures held this season. The classes being reduced in number possibly made some difference in this respect, and we would strongly advise the committee to give at least a class another year for unflighted Norwich, and same for Yorkshires. The judging was delayed for some time in a couple of classes through the non-arrival of some of the exhibits. The birds were staged at a nice height, and made a good display, especially after the lighting of the gas. The quality of the exhibits generally was A1, and competition in some of the classes very keen. Cup for best cage bird and special for best members' went to Mr. W. Davies' clear yellow Norwich cock. Everything seemed to pass off very smoothly under the capable management of Messrs. W. Dobbs (chairman), and Mr. J. Davies (sec.), who, together with the stewards, were exceedingly obliging and worked hard for the welfare of all concerned. Mr. E. J. Davies judged.

LARKHALL.

Sixth annual show, held October 28th, and it proved a great success, entries being considerably in excess of last year's. Canaries were good classes, some excellent birds being staged. Crests were good, while Plainheads were above the average. Borders, too, were in fine force, 4 fine grand specimens being staged. Mules and British birds were grand classes, a really fine 1911 bred Goldie-Greenie hybrid being on view. This bird (Mr. Pollock's) won cup for best young bird bred by a member. The leading Greenfinch was an outstanding exhibit. The show was held in the Miners' Hall, a nice place for a show, being very comfortable; and the staging was well erected. The committee are a company of genuine fanciers, who had everything in apple-pie order. They had as their leader a first-rate manager, Mr. J. Pollock, whose services as secretary the society are fortunate in securing. The show was well patronised. Mr. J. Young (Rutherglen) judged the Canaries, and Mr. J. W. Bruce (Coldstream) the Mules and British birds; their selections left little to be desired. Winners of Specials: Cup for most points, Mr. J. Rundell (president); cup for best young bird bred by a member (Goldie hybrid), Mr. J. Pollock (secretary); most points Canary section, Mr. J. Rundell; best bird in Mule hybrid or British section, Mr. J. Pollock; for best old bird, Canary section, Mr. J. Rundell; most points in any one class, Mr. J. Graham; novice medal, Mr. S. Ferguson.

QUEEN'S PARK (Glasgow)

Third annual show held October 28th, in the Victoria Hall, 476, Victoria Road. The President is Mr. R. Thomson; Vice-President, Mr. R. Miller; Sec. and Treas., Mr. R. Heggie; Committee: Messrs. R. Rennie, R. Jeffrey, J. R. Steel, G. Gentle, G. McDowall, And. Hunter, D. Aitchison, T. McCubbin, and W. Cuthbert; Auditors, Messrs. Naismith and Yates; Judges: Nor., Mr. J. Smeaton (Musselburgh); Bord., Yorks, Mules, Brit. and For., Mr. R. B. Gibb (Ibrox). The show was held in the large hall for the first time, and the change proved a distinct advantage in every way. The hall was crowded all the afternoon till the close, ladies being very much in evidence. The Sec., Mr. Heggie, had everything well in hand, and with the aid of a willing and efficient band of helpers things were all in the best of order. The Association are very fortunate in having a patron in Mr. T. E. Byrom, who takes such an active and lively interest in the well-being of the club. The entries, compared with last year's, were only two or three down, but the quality throughout showed a marked improvement, some really grand birds being forward. The winner of the Blue Ribbon in the Norwich section (the T. E. Byrom silver cup and gold medal) was Mr. A. W. Naismith's non-fed buff Plainhead cock, a young bird; runner-up, President Thomson's clun. yell. Border, winner of gold medal. Special for 3rd best in hall, won by Sec. Heggie, with a four-pointed buff Goldfinch Mule, 3rd at Glasgow City show, wins silver medal to-day. Spl. for best Yorkshire also Sec. Heggie. Special for best Crest or C.-B., President Thomson. Best in British and Mule Section, Sec. Heggie. Special for best Border, the runner-up for cup. Ramsden's special, Mr. W. Ross. Handsome special for most entries, Mr. R. Thomson (30 entries). Both Sec. Heggie and President R. Thomson contributed largely to the success of the show in having no less than 60 entries to their credit. The specials numbered 135, and a very useful lot they were. T. E. Byrom, Esq., handed over the prizes to the successful winners, and in handing over the cup and medal to Mr. A. W. Nalsmith, he hoped he might ultimately win it outright; and when he did so he (the speaker) would be ready to present the club with another cup to take its place—a remark which brought forth a round of hearty applause.

DYSART.

The Run of Fifeshire Successes Checked.

Dysart and Dis. C.B.S. 7th annual show held Oct. 28, in the Normand Memorial Hall, but it cannot be said that the success of preceding Fife shows was maintained, as it will take the society all its time to make ends meet. Entries totalled 500, this being a decrease of 100 on last year's. The executive, from the president, Mr. D. Walker, downwards, are a body of enthusiastic fanciers, who know how to manage a show properly, and we trust they will take a friendly hint and give more inducements to fanciers at their next show. Mr. J. S. Harris was again in the secretarial chair, and proved himself a very efficient official; the society will do well to keep him in that position as long as possible. We greatly missed the genial presence of the late secretary, Mr. Jas. Logan, and were sorry to learn of his son's serious illness; we trust he will soon be on the road to recovery. The Border Fancy Section proved the strongest, both in point of numbers and excellence of type and quality. Teams were forward from all the noted stables, and proved a hot handful. We noticed a few of the colour-fed variety, but the judge, Mr. R. Lambie (Whitburn) had no hesitation in putting them out of competition, and if other judges would follow this excellent example we would hear less grumbling at shows. Mr. Hutchison, in addition to capturing the coveted B.F.C.C. medal, succeeded in winning the Harris Cup for most points in show. Plainheads though only fair in numbers, for quality reached a high standard. Mr. J. Smeaton, although his noted yellow hen was put out of competition through an unfortunate error on the part of the judge, accounted for most of the plums. Mules, British and Foreign birds were disappointing, and showed a considerable drop on what we have already seen this season; the two judges had a very easy task. Judging was over in good time, and the awards in all sections were well received. Judges: Scotch Fancies, Mr. J. Thomson (Kirkcaldy); Border Fancies, Mr. R. Lambie (Whitburn); Crests and Plainheads, Mr. J. Winter (Edinburgh); Mules, British and Foreign, Messrs. C. White and R. Gilmour (both of Kirkcaldy).

MANNINGHAM.

A Fine Yorkshire Union Show.

Manningham C.B.A. held their annual function on Oct. 28th. The Drummond Road Council School, in which the exhibits were staged, is capitally lighted, roomy, lofty, and absolutely free from draughts. The temperature maintained throughout the entire show day was excellent, the room being very cosy. Held under Y.U. rules, with the Y.U. and Y.C.C. patronage, naturally all the best of the birds of "grace and beauty" were present to do battle. The magnificent array of long, slim 'uns will be remembered for many a long day. Entries came up well, upwards of 460 specimens, averaging a matter of 18 per class, being on view.

President Mr. J. Ackroyd, Vice-presidents Messrs. Holroyd, Hellas, and Huddleston, form a quartette of enthusiastic and most excellent officials, while the treas., Mr. W. E. Dent, is one of the very best of fanciers, making one feel quite at home when in his company. The worthy sec., Mr. H. Grange, performs his duties in splendid style. Courteous and obliging, he handles the reins masterfully, and has every detail of the show at his finger tips. Much of the success of the venture can rightly be placed to his credit, and the society are happy in being able to command his services. The committee is composed of hard-working members, and every credit is due to them for judicious work on behalf of their show. The management right along the line, in fact, we wish to endorse as superb.

Turning to the birds, one is at sea somewhat in selecting any for special mention, so many good exhibits, even in merit, being benched. When we quote Messrs. Bailey, Chippendale, Dykes, Ogden Bros., Shackleton, Sutcliffe and Son, Thomas, and Towers, as being strongly represented, no one can wonder at such a marvellous collection being got together. Standing out we thought were the winning yell. cock (Ogden Bros.), the two unevenly mkd. yell. cocks (Bailey), the yell. hen (Thomas), and the buff hen (Dykes). All are gems of the very choicest kind. For the first time this season that champion dameel (yell.), the property of Mr. J. Chippendale, met with a rebuff, being pegged back to 3rd place on account of being soft. At judging time, we understand, she was very down in condition, and when we left had not pulled herself together. Don't over-show her, Mr. C. She is "the" hen when right; give her a rest, it will pay you. The novice classes again filled well and one could locate therein many meritorious birds. We heard of "claims" whilst at the show.

Judging commenced early, and the light prevailing being exceedingly bright, assisted greatly Messrs. M. Broadley (Sbipley) (novice and selling classes), and J. C. Barnes (Sheffield) (champion section) in their work. Both appeared happy in their selections. Judging was over in good time, and the stewards, Messrs. Newton, Hellas, Powell, Ward, and Robertson, promptly placed the cards on each class as it was adjudicated upon. A better worked show we have not attended.

Mr. J. C. Barnes's Classes.

A Success in the Burn's Country.

The Ayr C.B.C.'s latest venture is well-managed and the birds excellent both in numbers and quality.

Fourth annual show of the Ayr and Dist. C.B.C. held in the Academy Hall on October 28. Except for the rather out of the way situation, the Hall is an admirable one for the purpose; the light, and plenty of it, is all from the roof, and this gives an opportunity of viewing the exhibits to the best advantage. An even temperature was kept up during the day, which made things very comfortable for the numerous visitors during the afternoon, as well as for the birds on show. The secretarial duties were most ably performed by Mr. James Sloan, and for a young member he apparently has little to learn in the way of running a show to a successful issue. The staging and management generally were perfect and reflect the greatest credit on all concerned. All are willing workers connected with this young club, and we congratulate the officials on the undoubted success in their latest venture. The entries aggregated about 450, a little in excess of last year, and the quality of the exhibits was well maintained. The office bearers, who are very enthusiastic, are, Hon. President, Mr. Robert McKay; President, Mr. J. Forbes, and Vice-Pres., Mr. C. C. Irvine. The committee comprises a set of good workers, amongst whom we noticed Messrs. J. Cameron, A. Girvan, W. Lyall, J. Brown, R. Aitken, J. Boyd, J. N. Hunter, A. Lindsay, J. French, W. McKay, J. Bell, A. Campbell, J. Kelly, R. Muir, and T. French. The judging was expeditiously carried through by Mr. J. F. Dewar (Edinburgh) for Scotch and Border Canarics and Brit. and For. birds, Mr. A. Watson (Kilmarnock) Crests and Nor., and Mr. J. B. Paterson (Ayr) Yorks., and their awards, as was to be expected, gave general satisfaction.

SITTINGBOURNE.

Sittingbourne and Dis. F. and F.S. 12th annual show held Oct. 25th, Town Hall. Competition was open to the county of Kent, in addition to which there were several classes confined solely to local competition. The entry was a very good one, and the quality throughout of a high average. The arrangements here are generally excellent, and this year was no exception to the rule. The birds were staged upstairs in a separate room, which was large and lofty, the temperature being cosy, and the place free from draughts. Mr. T. J. Monday made a capable steward, assisted by another gentleman, whose name we omitted to get, but who rendered efficient help. In the open section competition was keen. The chief specials (2), also Hyde's, fell to a rattling fine Crest, staged by Miss F. B. Brown. Mr. T. J. Monday also secured two specials—one for Canary and one for British. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged, and his awards were well received. Cards were up and catalogues out promptly, and everything worked smoothly, with Mr. G. Arnold, the efficient and courteous hon. sec., at the helm, aided by a thoroughly fancierlike committee.

BERWICK.

Berwick and Dis. C.C. 23rd annual show held Long Room, Corn Exchange, October 28th. Entries were in excess by about 100 of last year's, in fact the hall was just small enough for the good gate, when all the birds were staged. This year new staging was introduced, which was a great success. Again Mr. Thompson won cup for best young bird in show, with a grand buff piebald cock. Up to time of writing the points for the handsome silver cup for British and Foreign birds had not been counted, but it lay between Messrs. Gray (last year's winner) and Moorland. The secretarial reins were again in the hands of Mr. A. Hay, and everything passed off without a hitch. The judges were Mr. A. Dippie (Morpeth) for Norwich, Mules, Brit. and Foreign, and Mr. J. Young (Allanton) for the remainder. It was near 2.30 o'clock ere they got through the last spl.; their awards seemed to give every satisfaction.

HARTLEPOOLS.
A Splendid All-round Entry.

Seventh annual show held Oct. 23th, Church-square schools, an ideal place, being lofty, well lighted and nicely heated. Entries came up splendidly in all sections, but Yorkshires, under the patronage of the N.Y.C.C., were especially strong, and the competition very keen. Norwicb had a nice entry, but "straight 'uns." Hybrids and Mules were a grand lot, and some really fiue exhibits were to be seen in the classes provided. The British bird section was provided with ten classes, and contained many exhibits of great merit in nearly every class. Foreigners with two classes were greatly admired, grand teams being staged by Messrs. Nicholson and Son and T. Almond. In Mr. E. Woodhead the society have an ideal secretary, most courtcous and obliging, always ready to assist and give information, being ably assisted by Messrs. Robinson (chairman), E. Pyman, H. Williams, J. Popple, and others whose names we did not ascertain. The judges were Messrs. H. W. Battye (Canaries) and J. Maddison, who carried out their duties to the general satisfaction of all.

DERWENT VALLEY.

A Well-Conducted Show Receives Good Support.

Fifth annual open show of the Derwent C.B.S., held October 28th, and proved to be the most successful ever held in the history of the society. The venue was again the Church Hall, Hamsterley, which is pleasantly situated, and in close proximity to High Westwood Station, this enabling the officials to receive and dispatch the birds with the greatest facility. The hall itself is well adapted for holding a cage bird show, having plenty of room and plenty of daylight, and being quite free from draughts; the only possible fault one can find with it is the somewhat poor light at night. The staging was again a credit to the officials, being in rows three tiers high, each section by itself, with the classes running round the room in regular order, the whole making a very charming display. Entries came up well, totalling 450, a little over last year's, thus proving that exhibitors are not afraid of sending their birds out to shows where they are well looked after. Norwich were undoubtedly the feature of the show, both in numbers and quality, this section averaging nearly 15 per class in 6 classes, most of the birds being very good in type and quality. Yorkshires came next with nearly 13 per class in 6 classes, and these also made a very charming display, many well known winners being staged. Borders averaged about 10 per class in 5 classes, and type and quality again predominated here. A regrettable incident we understand occurred in this section, namely the passing by the judge, Mr. Brown, of the 4 exhibits of Mr. H. Bennet (Kelso), the allegation being that they showed signs of colour feeding. It was the general opinion that each bird would, apart from this, undoubtedly have won in its respective class; Mr. Brown, in fact, considered them the 4 best birds in the section. Crests and Crestbreds were only moderate in numbers, but what was lacking in quantity was fully made up in quality, several very neat birds being staged. British were good both in numbers and quality and competition was very keen in this section. The Bullfinch, Linnet, and Siskin, Redpoll, or Twite classes contained some grand birds, while the other classes were not far behind. Foreign birds were a nice collection and attracted a considerable amount of attention from visitors, the ladies especially being quite charmed with the display. The management was splendid, and the manner in which the work was got through was an eye-opener. The popular secretary, Mr. Joseph Lindsay, had everything in perfect working order, and it is quite a pleasure to meet this genial gentleman. His thorough knowledge of his duties and the practical manner in which he gets through them, stamps him as a most efficient secretary, and his kindly, courteous manner and willingness to oblige everyone gain for him a popularity which he richly deserves. He was ably assisted in his work by an excellent body of fanciers, all workers, headed by the genial and popular chairman, Mr. G. Barkas, and composed of Messrs. M. Armstrong, W. Tomlinson, W. Curry, M. U. Gardner, W. Marsh, and several others whose names we do not remember. The lady workers also deserve a special word of praise, and their services cannot be over-estimated. Their presence at the show gives it an extra charm, and we think it would be a good thing for the Fancy if more shows could get the ladies to assist them. Fine weather favoured the show which was well attended by visitors, and we were given to understand that it will probably be the most successful show ever held by the society. The judges were: Mr. A. Brown (Canaries) and Mr. F. Marwood (Mules, British, and Foreign).

We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. Genuine hand-spun pure hemp, pull lines, guaranteed strong as boat lines, and not to stretch or snarl, 68 yards long, ¼lb. weight, 1/4 each, carriage paid. Lark nets, stave poles, flirt pegs, and everything required by catchers always in stock, but before you buy a stitch of anything send stamp for my full printed list, which gives hints on net making. Following letters are entirely unsolicited and open for inspection at any time. "40 Cae Felin Street, Llanhilleth, Nov. 1st.—Sir,—Received netting, and am highly pleased with it. It is good value for money. I shan't trouble to knit any more while I can buy it at that price for the netting itself is cheaper than I can buy thread for it.—Yours, M. Brelsford." "49, Bourne Avenue, Boston Road, Windsor, October 1st.—Sir,—Please send 18 yards netting. I have had five years' hard wear from last lot, and now it is better than some so-called best on the market, and I have caught hundreds of birds with it.—Yours, Wm. Taylor." "10, Stevens Yard, Newbiggin, Malton, October 10.—Sir,—Please send pair clap nets. I am highly satisfied with netting.—Yours, J. Bradley." "164, Victoria Street, Chadderton, Oldham, October 3.—Sir.—Please send ½ bird lime; it is better than any other I have tried, and I always recommend it. —Yours, S. Kenyon." "34, Peel Street, Burslem, October 30.—Sir,—Received clap-nets, and am quite satisfied with them.—Yours, S. Hall." "37, Grosvenor Place, Carnforth, October 26th.—Sir,—I tried your bird lime some time ago, and it was best I ever had.—Yours, T. Dawson." "6, New Houses, Pentre, Hawarden, October 25.—Sir,—Received clap-nets, and am very pleased with them.—Yours, T. Redfern." "Crosby Moor, near Maryport, October 23.—Sir,—Net and bird lime to hand, and very pleased with them.—Yours, W. Johnston." "46, Park Street, Haydock, St. Helens, October 23.—Sir,—I had a pair clap-nets from you last year, which gave every satisfaction, and after having a year's wear out of them I have sold them for 6d. more than they cost.—Yours, H. Ball." "Wood Street, Guildford, October 17.—Sir,—Your bird lime is best I can get.—Yours, G. Bourne." "30, South Road, Didsbury, Manchester, October 17th.—Sir,—Please forward another ½lb. bird lime; it is just what is wanted for these frosty mornings. I received net trap safely, and have caught 15 Bullfinches and 5 Chaffinches this last week with it. Two years ago I sent to another advertiser, and paid him 16/6 for a pair clap-nets, and when I got them the poles were 5ft. deep, and netting only 4ft. deep, and when I thought of catching a nice lot of birds they flew underneath; so it's once bit, twice shy with me, and I shall not send there again.—Yours, W. Jones." "77, Moore Street, Gateshead, October 16.—Sir,—Netting I had from you two years ago is still as good as ever.—Yours, T. Morris." "Comberton, Cambs, October 12.—Sir,—Clap-nets I had from you two years ago are still in use, and as good as new.—Yours, G. Jolley." "12, Sea View Road, Leigh, Essex, October 6.—Received nets quite safe, and are giving every satisfaction. Thanks for prompt dispatch.—Yours, A. Emery." "10, Pet Darngavel, Ayrshire, October 8.—Sir,—Please send ½lb. lime. I must recommend it, as it is best ever used. Every bird gets caught.—Yours, J. Linden." "Acreland Green, High Easter, Chelmsford, October 17.—Sir,—Your lime is excellent. I caught six Bullfinches in two hours without a call bird.—Yours, W. Beard." Please note everything I sell is on approval, and money refunded in full if every satisfaction not given. If you want genuine articles, send to the man who knows what is required for successful catching, but be sure to send for price list.

These birds are in magnificent trim and most of them in full free song, price 5/- each, seven for 28/-. Exhibitors please note following few facts. These Goldfinches are the real Siberian birds of which I am the direct importer, and no other dealer in England gets the pick of them but myself. I do not import the ordinary Russian Finches then put them on the market as Siberian and say I have the pick of Europe. If you want a real deck-swccoer let me have your order immediately. Honourable Honesty.

There are two words for you. Do you know their meaning? I take it you do. You will all the more appreciate it when you know they are the secret of my success in the bird world. Some unscrupulous persons would say they are not in business, but my way of writing successful bird business is honourable honesty with fair dealing to all men. Just you call in any day (Sundays excepted) and look for yourself. You will be compelled to acknowledge mine the best collection you have ever seen, and for songsters there is not the least doubt I take the lead for quality and cheapness combined. I yearly supply leading bird clubs with contest singers and winners. Just allow me to send you some of my birds on approval (cash or deposit) that you may judge for yourself, for I am confident of your future patronage when you have once seen and heard the quality of my birds. I have now ready for immediate disposal, 1,000 grand 1911 youngsters, well moulted, and cocks in song, including my famous German songsters, the German working man's friend; cocks that will sing by day and gaslight, loud, free, continuous songsters; every bird tested before sending out. ALL WONDERFUL VALUE IN SONGSTERS.

But if you want a good singing cock at 3/6 go to the "Land Sharks," and find you have got a common German hen, not worth its carriage. Whether they call them Norwich, Yorkshires, or Hartz Mountains, the poor little German or Common Belgian hen has to do duty for all. I offer specially selected songsters, every bird proved and tested, either in Norwich, Yorkshire, Hartz., Border, or Lizard, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6. Cages 3d. extra.

W. RUDD, The Bird Specialist, NORWICH.

COME and HEAR THEM

If you cannot come and choose for yourself, I am prepared to send you one or more birds securely packed, on 7 days' approval, at my risk, on receipt of cash or deposit with Editor. I guarantee satisfaction, or cash returned in full. Singing cages, with folding doors, beautifully finished, and fit for any drawing-room, 4/- each. Remember, all my rooms are open every day but Sunday, and fanciers are always sure of a welcome when they call to see my stock.

MODESTY FORBIDS

me to say all I could say about the Leipzig Rollers, but the following letters say more for them than ever I could. So many advertisements from dealers all claiming to have the best strain must tend to confuse the intending purchaser somewhat, but in order to clear away any doubts, and to make assurance doubly sure, I invite all persons wanting a Roller Canary to have a Leipzig Roller from me on full week's trial, and an ordinary Roller at any higher price from elsewhere. Test them side by side for a week and keep the one which suits best. You will notice from this that not only do I say the Leipzig Roller is better than others costing same price, but that they are better than those costing more money. I now have an enormous stock of these Leipzig Rollers; every cock guaranteed in full song day and gaslight, with long, bellow and double rolls, sweet silvery trills, waterbubble runs, soft roulades, piccolo trills, jug-jug of Nightingale, and bell, harp, and flute notes, etc., etc., and warranted entirely free from any harsh or objectionable notes whatever price, 6/6 and 7/6 each; special Bandmasters, which excel in the deep bass and hollow bell rolls, 10/- and 12/6 each; special contest Rollers, whose song can be likened to a cascade of everflowing melody, 15/- each; Leipzig Roller hens, 1/9 each, 3/- couple. For those who like a loud, noisy singer I have a splendid stock of Hartz cocks, every one guaranteed in full vigorous song day and gaslight, 5/- each, two 9/-, seven 28/-. Roller singing cabinet cages, with folding doors, comprising cage and cabinet combined, 2/6 and 3/6 each. Please note following letters are entirely unsolicited, and all received during last few days:—"53, Roundhay-road, Leeds, October 30th.—Sir,—Roller I had from you last year has moulted, and is singing better than ever.—Yours, B. Haigh." "11, Streatfield-terrace, Ryhope, nr. Sunderland, November 4th.—Sir,—Please send me a 10s. Roller. I was at Newcastle show the other week and a gentleman told me they are the best Rollers imported into England, so that is why I am sending for one.—Yours, W. Wade Mangles." (Will the gentleman mentioned please accept my best thanks.—W. Gore.) "3, Nicholas-street, Middlesbrough, November 3rd.—Sir,—Received bird with great satisfaction. Thanking you for prompt attention.—Yours, V. Moody." "6, Coach Houses, Adlington, near Chorley, November 3rd.—Sir,—Pleased to say I received bird and am well pleased with it. Thanking you for a beauty.—Yours, J. Fairbrother." "21, Commercial-street, Harrogate, October 31st.—Sir,—Roller to hand in good condition. The bird you have sent is a good one, and has been singing freely. It is a pleasure to do business with straight people.—Yours, H. Mason." "5, Cybi-place, Holyhead, October 31st.—Sir,—Most pleased to inform you that bird arrived in best condition. Many thanks for value you have given me for money; it sings day and night, and is fit for any Palace.—Yours, F. Hambley." "11, Pinfold-square, Higher Ince, nr. Wigan, October 30th.—Sir,—Please send a Roller at 10s. I have just heard a very good one that came from you, and cost 10s.—Yours, H. Wasley." "211, Bensham-lane, Thornton Heath, Surrey, October 28th.—Sir,—Received Roller safe; he is a fine one. I like his song very much.—Yours, J. Williams." "189, Alliance-avenue, Newington, Hull, October 24th.—Sir,—Have to-day notified Editor to forward you deposit of 10s., in full payment of Roller Canary. I am quite satisfied with the bird, and also your straightforward dealing.—Yours, Wm. Lythgoe." "52, Hammond-street, Preston, Lancs., October 23rd.—Sir,—The Leipzig Rollers I got from you last year have done me great service, and I have sold all my young birds to my friends.—Yours, G. Atkinson." "48, Normacott-road, Longton, October 17th.—Sir,—Leipzig Roller arrived safely. Thanks for prompt dispatch. Am quite satisfied with bargain.—Yours, A. Tudor." "39, Broadway-avenue, Croydon, October 14th.—Sir,—Please send two Leipzig Rollers. Those I had two years ago turned out beauties.—Yours, B. Garland." Please note I am the sole importer of this strain of Rollers, and all cocks are stamped on wing, "Hans Weber, Leipzig," and no other dealer can sell as much as one feather of this strain unless he first purchases from me. All are safely and warmly packed in special travelling cages with seed and water inside, and sent on full week's approval at my risk during whole time either on receipt of cash or deposit system of this paper, and money fully and freely refunded if every satisfaction is not given. Persons who do not care for the long-drawn-out monotonous rolls of the ordinary Roller are specially invited to have a Leipzig Roller on week's trial from me. I do not mind if they have no intention of purchasing the bird, I shall be pleased to send one just to show what an improvement the Leipzig Roller's song is over that of the ordinary Roller. Dealers supplied; send trade card for wholesale list.

Amateurs, Breed Your Own Winners.

If you will allow me, I can put you right in this, with either a pair of Norwich Plainheads, a pair of Yorkshires, or a pair of Lizards, at 12/6, 15/-, and 20/- per pair. I mean, that I will match them scientifically for this purpose personally, and just as though I was doing it for myself. Remember it is absolutely useless spending money on good birds if they are not matched in the correct and best possible way to get good results; hence, it is futile to go to people that know little or nothing about this important branch of the Fancy, whether they call themselves "practical" specialists, or whether they are "special copyists."

CRESTS and CREST-BREDS, matched as above stated and for same purpose, 40/-, 50/-, 60/- upwards.

NOVICES' SPECIAL BARGAINS.

I will match you Norwich or Yorkshires in the correct way; i.e., NOT two buffs, as the majority do when supplying the novice at a low price. All the pairs I am offering here shall have cocks that have started to sing, and shall be selected as strong, hardy birds, likely to do all that you require of them, at 7/6, 8/6, and 10/6 per pair. I will also fit you up with a double breeding cage, with everything complete for use, for 3/6 extra; or a better cage, with sand-drawers, sanitary fittings, etc., for 5/- extra; this latter recommended; with the utmost confidence of satisfaction I offer these bargains.

Travelling cages, 3d. extra in all cases.

Easy payments if desired by joining my Original Bird Club, particulars free.

Next meeting Nov. 25; it is hoped a good rally will turn out, as it is the last night for specials and other matters for annual show.—W. Clubb, Sec.

WEST WEMYSS AND DIS. C.B.S.

Meeting held November 2nd. Secretary reported re table show, October 21st, considered a great success; which speaks well for the fanciers in the district. We are able to show a balance on the right side. Decided, to hold open show next season; officials appointed for same who are fanciers of the right stuff. The prospects are really bright.—J. Henderson, Sec.

DALKEITH AND DIST. C.B.S.

Meeting held usual place, Mr. J. Stirling (Pres.) in chair. This being the end of our financial year, the balance sheet was submitted; it showed income £8 3s. 1d., expenditure £5 1s. 10d., leaving a balance of £3 1s. 3d. to be divided into prize money. Members agreed to leave election of office bearers till next meeting, 5th Feb., when they invite all fanciers within a radius of 10 miles to attend.—Ewing and Steel, Secs.

GLASGOW AND WEST OF SCOTLAND CLUB.

Grand washing competition for prizes presented by the president and a few of the members, took place in Mr. Muir's, Saltmarket, Oct. 31st. As this was a new kind of competition in Glasgow, a great deal of interest was taken in it also a good deal of friendly rivalry among the competitors. Two classes were provided, viz., Champion and Novice. The Novice class had to be postponed until Nov. 14, as the hour was late before the Champion Class was finished. 1st F. Taylor; 2nd M. Craig; 3rd F. Bowman; 4th Watson.—F. Taylor, Sec.

HETTLESTON AND DIST. C.B.S.

Meeting held Oct. 14, Johnstone's Rooms, Mr. McFarlane presiding over a fair good turn out of members. Mr. Hunter (Glasgow), gave an exhibition of hand washing. This exhibition was got up for the benefit of the young fanciers, but I may say that the old fanciers got a good lesson as well as the young ones on how to handle the birds. He is a professional at hand washing. Next meeting, Nov. 11th, when I expect to see every member present; according to rule every member must be clear on the book by this date. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Hunter.—A. Berry, Sec.

GREEN CANARY ASSOCIATION.

Meeting held Oct. 26, Oldham Hall, Mr. J. W. Metcalfe in chair. Secretary furnished a statement of accounts showing a balance of cash in hand amounting to £9 4s. 11d., after all accounts had been paid; this leaves a balance after providing for the season's specials, and everything points to a satisfactory ending to the year's working. Medals have again been exchanged with the Toronto (Canada) Society. A table show of Green Yorks was held, but owing to the inclement weather and the fact that the exhibitors were busy getting their birds away to the Manchester Show, only 15 birds were staged.—Geo. Green, sec.

ANNANDALE C.B.F.A.

On the kind invitation of E. J. Brook, Esq., of Hoddam Castle, near Annan, the members of the Annandale C.B.F.A. and a few friends paid a visit to that gentleman's aviaries of rare foreign birds last Saturday. Although the weather was dull, a company of 21 mustered. Many very fine specimens of bird life were shown to us, some of them most rare, one being the sole representative of its species in the United Kingdom. Great credit is due to Mr. Shannon (the keeper) for the very healthy and beautiful condition of the birds under his care. The company were also shown the Castle gardens, which were in lovely bloom. Home was reached about 6.30, all being highly pleased with this outing.—J. Urquhart, assistant secretary.

NEWCASTLE C.B.S.

Meeting held Nov. 2, Mr. J. G. Hutchinson presiding over a good attendance. The members heard with regret that the secretary, Mr. J. E. Atkinson, was very ill with pleurisy, and hope was expressed for his speedy recovery. Mr. T. C. Crawhall proposed, and Mr. T. Robson seconded, the following resolution: "That this meeting disapprove of the letter which appeared in CAGE BIRDS, signed "Lover of Fair Play," and affirms its confidence in its chairman, Mr. Hutchinson. It also desires to tender its thanks to Mr. Hutchinson for the many sacrifices made and his great interest taken in the welfare of the society." At this stage of the meeting the Vice-Chairman (Mr. Shepherd) took the chair. Mr. Bertram, Mr. Shepherd, and others spoke feelingly in support of the resolution, which, on being put to the meeting, was carried amid applause. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded Mr. G. Young, Mr. Milburn, and Mr. Atkinson, senior, and family, for their great help in connection with the business of the show.—R. Tindale, Hon. Asst. Sec.

LANCASHIRE AND LIZARD F.A.

Meeting held Nov. 4, at Hyde. Decided, that arrangements as to classes at Blackburn Show, and Club Competition with Northern Lizard Club, be left with the secretary. The holding of two club shows for members only was gone into; decided, that we have the first one at Mr. T. White's, Hyde, on Dec. 2nd and 3rd. Judges were selected for first show, and same will be made known in due course. Friend Teddy was just through his paces, and given his final instructions by Mr. T. White, who tried to impress upon Teddy the necessity for less verbosity now he has a chance of showing his ability as a judge of Lancashires and Lizards. Friend Teddy seemed to be of the opinion he would have to be short of breath when he gave over spouting. Date for show at Shaw was left over till next meeting at Hyde, Nov. 18, when classes, specials, etc., will be finally discussed for Hyde Show. As this is same date as the Hyde Society's show, we are hoping for a good muster of members. Following is a record of points gained at Rochdale and Manchester in Lancashire and Lizards: Champion Lancs., A. Hordern 36, T. H. Collinge 32, J. Garner 24, J. Vickers 20, J. Oldham 10, N. Stansfield 12; novice Lancs., W. Ridgard 16, J. Hampshire 9 points. Champ. Liz., J. Dewsnap 53, F. Hamer 50, H. Oliver 37, J. Rukin 26, J. Hampshire 16, E. Ollerenshaw 30, A. Martin 11, W. P. Barnes 11 points; novice Liz., A. E. Bosworth 18 points. I should esteem it a favour if all those who have used Ramsden's colour-feed would send me on their coupons as early as possible.—J. Rukin, Hon. Sec.

LANCASTER PRIMROSE C.B.A.

Final meeting before annual show held November 2nd, when there was a good attendance of members. It was decided to send schedules to last year's exhibitors; others please apply to me.—J. Johnson, 64, Aberdeen Road, Lancaster.

NORTHOWRAM AND DIST. C.B.S.

Meeting held headquarters, October 25th, when Mr. J. Priestley (Halifax) gave an exhibition of washing. He put three birds through in splendid style, to the satisfaction of all present, which proves that he is no novice at the job.—S. Sykes, Sec.

WEST OF SCOTLAND O.S.

Meeting held Nov. 4, Mr. P. Thom presiding. Final arrangements for show were made. Stewards, etc., were appointed. Will Mr. T. Jardine kindly send on address to me? A vote of thanks to the chairman terminated the meeting.—W. Hutchison, secretary.

WIGAN AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Meeting held headquarters, Legs of Man Hotel. In chair Mr. P. Vicker. It was decided to abandon open show fixed for Nov. 24 and 25. Decided, to hold a Members' show (open to Wigan), Mr. H. Tams to judge, Nov. 25. We hope to have a good show next year when trade is more promising.—W. Dyer, Hon. Sec.

PROVINCIAL ROLLER C.C.

Meeting held Swan Hotel, Fountain Street, Manchester, Oct. 28. Mr. A. Foulds in chair. After the business of the meeting, the members had the pleasure of listening to a few birds brought by Mr. Kremner and Mr. Mawhood. As the tours were sung they were called out by the chairman, thus helping the novices to learn to distinguish the various tours. The birds brought were chiefly Glucke birds, and some of them were very good on the hard Glucke, and others on the Water Glucke. All went away delighted at having heard some of the latest birds from Germany.—Tom Routledge.

NORTHERN Y.C.C.

Meeting and table show held Oct. 25. Mr. Crawhall presided. The members heard with regret that Mr. J. E. Atkinson, who was to judge, was ill and could not attend; secretary was instructed to send expressions of sympathy and best wishes for his speedy recovery. A letter was read from Mr. Cuthbertson explaining why he did not mark N.Y.C.C. on his entry form at Chopwell Show; decided to accept the explanation and that the points gained stand. The proposal that novice members judge champion section and championship members judge novice section was agreed to; this arrangement gave every satisfaction.—R. Tindale, hon. sec.

WIMBLEDON C.B.S.

Meeting held 6, The Broadway, Oct. 7. There was an attendance of about 40, nearly half being ladies. A washing exhibition attracted several visitors; Mr. W. H. Stoakley (chairman). Unfortunately, Mr. Attridge (Wandsworth) who was to have given the exhibition, was unable through illness to be present, and secretary had to fall back on two members, Messrs. P. Rorke and E. J. Whittome, assisted by Mr. Dixon, and right well they performed the task, being duly accorded a hearty vote of thanks. There were nominations, and six new members elected. Business relating to annual show transacted. It was stated that the new Mayor, Alderman McSheehy, had consented to open show on Tuesday at 3.30.—H. Smith, Hon. Sec.

PAISLEY, TANNAHILL O.S.

Meeting held Lockie's, 2, St. James Street, Nov. 4, Mr. R. Neil presiding. This being the annual show day, the meeting was well attended. After songs from various members, the chairman presented the society's cup to Mr. J. Fulton, he having won it with his yellow pied hen; he congratulated Mr. F. on winning the Amalgamation. Mr. A. Ferguson also came in for a word of praise in being runner-up in both sections, with his foul yellow cock bird. Reference was made to this being the second year in succession when this society have won the 1st and 2nd Amalgamation; this was toasted with success. Prize-money was paid out and specials handed over to Messrs. J. Fulton, 4; A. Ferguson, 3; W. Neil, 3; J. Malcolm, 2; J. Fleming, 2; J. Price, 2; J. Alston, novice, 2. Songs were rendered during the evening by Messrs. Fleming, Neil, Hamilton, Mason, Donaldson, Forsyth, Allison. Meeting terminated with a hearty vote of thanks to the chairman, also to the pianist, Mr. Mason.—J. Stewart, sec.

NEW CROSS AND DIST. C.B.S.

Meeting held headquarters, the Pepple Hall, Tanners' Hill, Broadway, Deptford, Nov. 2, Mr. Hill (chair). The new headquarters are great, so also was the attendance. An alteration was made in reference to the entrance fee for Nov. 16 show. All members will now have to pay for admittance (3d.); this will go to the funds of the society. Entry fee to be 1/- per cage, 3d. in the selling class; prize money on sliding scale, with no deductions. Fourteen specials were allotted, all well worth going for; so I hope members will make a large entry so as to make our first attempt a success. The rest of the evening was taken up by questions on birdie subjects. Mr. Hill acted as judge. Each member put a question in a hat and each drew, and had to answer the question he drew. The novices seemed a bit knocked, but were soon put right by Mr. Hill, who answered the questions All. This seems a good way to bring the novices out. Mr. Hill was asked to give a bird washing exhibition on Dec. 7, to which he readily consented. A vote of thanks was given him for his valuable assistance.—Barton and Barton, Secs.

SHEFFIELD C.B.S.

Meeting held Nov. 2, Wentworth Cafe, Mr. A. Bradshaw in chair. Stewards elected to act during judging at open show: Messrs. J. R. Webster and H. Lockwood; assistant stewards, Messrs. F. Jones, A. Bradshaw, A. Lawton, and C. W. Hobson; all are true fanciers, who will do their best for the exhibits and visitors alike. Mr. A. Lawton was also given the special duty of seeing all birds off to the stations that have to catch certain trains, an arrangement that will be of great use to distant exhibitors. Tickets for open show and voting papers for election of the officials were given out; all voting papers must be brought or sent to next meeting, Dec. 14. A special point for ticket-sellers to remember is, that £6 worth of birds are to be given away to the friends that buy a ticket and patronise the show. Several important motions re alterations to rules are to be decided at next meeting. Also decided that points specials be in kind instead of in cash. Messrs. F. Jones, C. Tomlinson, and J. Thorpe promised specials. Also decided that a supper and prize distribution be held in January, when the cups and specials will be presented; also that next committee meeting be open to all members. Judging competition and table show also held, winners in former: 1, F. Jones; 2, T. Hemming; 3, W. T. Furniss. Upwards of a score of fanciers made the journey to Manchester Show and had an enjoyable time. Mr. J. Mace was elected a new member.—J. Woolhouse, assist. sec.

ROUND THE SHOWS.

CHATHAM.

The result of the 21st annual show, held November 2nd and 3rd, was most gratifying, a good entry turning up in our section. Considering the show was only open to Kent the quality was tip-top. Mr. Wray had the secretarial duties in admirable order, and he was ably supported by a hard working committee. Mr. A. E. Enfield judged.

TREDEGAR.

Show held Nov. 2nd, Market Hall. Our section was staged very neatly in tiers at the far end of hall, and gave quite a finish to the appearance of the show. The Welsh C.B.C. open special for best Canary was won by Mr. W. Davies with a very typical buff Norwich, and that for best Hybrid, British, etc., by Mr. D. Edwards, with a very neat Goldie-Bullie, which was quickly claimed at catalogue price. The secretary, Mr. E. W. Sutherley, was a very obliging official. Unfortunately, the weather somewhat spoiled the "gate," but we trust the evening made up for the poor attendance of the earlier part of the day. Mr. H. W. Battye judged.

ECCLESHILL.

Eccleshill C.B.A. 17th annual exhibition under Y.U. rules held 4th Nov., Hutton Board School. Only a meagre entry of 258 birds put in an appearance in the 29 classes provided, no less than five of the open Yorkshire classes receiving only half prize money, there not being more than seven entries in these classes. In the novice classes a much better state of things prevailed; in the Yorkshire section there was nearly double the entry in the same number of classes—132 in eight classes; and also in the two Norwich novice classes the entry was good—31 in the two classes. Mr. Nettleton, as secretary, had things well in hand, being supported by Messrs. Slater, Studd, and Sparks as stewards. He also had a lot of assistance from the members generally. Prize money was paid out during the afternoon and evening, which fact should be of great assistance to the management another year. Sectional specials were won by Messrs. Bailey, Chippindale, Fowle, Birkbeck, and Smith. Mr. J. Wilcock officiated as judge, his awards giving every satisfaction.

MUIRKIRK.

Annual exhibition held 4th Nov. The birds were housed in the Temperance Hall, and a very comfortable one it is. The light was good, and the staging and general management excellent, reflecting credit on those immediately concerned. The classes in respect to numbers were disappointing, but the quality usually shown here was well maintained. The Borders had the show all to themselves, the one British Bird class scheduled having perforce to be cancelled; this latter is not a satisfactory state of affairs, when one considers the number of British Bird fanciers within a very short radius. Mr. Davidson's buff marked hen was awarded medal for best bird, and Mr. Findlay gets cup for best local. The management was under the guidance of Mr. Torbett, Secretary, and this is tantamount to saying that everything was done well. Mr. Watson (Douglas) made the awards.

CLEATOR MOOR.

Eighth annual open show of the Cleator Moor F.S., held November 4. The Market Hall, in which the show was held, is well adapted for the purpose, being spacious and well lighted, both by day and night, thus allowing full justice to all exhibits while being judged, also giving visitors the benefit of seeing the birds under favourable conditions. In all, 180 entries were got together in our section—an average of just over 9 per class in the 19 classes that stood with five entries or over. Though lacking somewhat in numbers, the quality all round was good. British birds, as is usual here, were well represented. Yorkshires and Borders were good numerically, though not the quantity one would like to see. Mr. Byrne is an ideal secretary; he is careful and most obliging. He is well supported by an excellent committee, consisting of Mr. J. Rigg (chairman), Mr. B. Gray (vice-chairman), Mr. Sumpton (treasurer), and Messrs. T. Adair, J. McGuinness, J. Sumpton, jun., Jos. Whalley, J. and G. Bainbridge, J. Keogh, R. Fowler, P. Branney, T. Wilde, D. McCarter, W. Beck, C. Adams, E. Jones, and J. Savage. Mr. A. Wellings (Prescot) judged, and his awards were well received.

LONDON & COUNTIES.

Annual members' show held Nov. 4th, "Earl Cathcart," Osnaburgh-street, N.W. Exhibits, though not numerous, were of good quality, especially in the Yorkshire section; Mr. E. Pretty took all honours in the champion section, leading with a very fine upstanding rich buff cock. Messrs. Salter and Gilbert once again fought for honours in the novice section, the former winning the special with a very smart unflig. yell. cock, who had a slight lead of his sire. Crests and Crest-breds came up well, Mr. Willis's well selected team taking premier honours in each section. Norwich were fair, special for best bird going to Mr. E. Pretty's variegated yellow. Mr. Bell scored in buffs and hens with some useful birds. Mr. Austin had the novice section to himself. Mr. R. J. Pretty's nest of four cinnamons looked well; leader a nice coloured yellow cock, beating the Lancashire for special. The A.O.V. class winner was a buff Lancs. Plainhead of Mr. E. Pretty's (here was one of the disadvantages of "Canary farming in the open air" in London; anyway, a chimney fire had left its mark—would have done well for a washing competition). British birds were weak this time, and were amalgamated into two classes, Mr. E. Pretty's charming Lesser Redpoll taking special. In the Finch or Bunting class, "open air farming" scored over house-moulting. Mr. E. Pretty's fine coloured Chaffinch led his nephew's fine coloured Yellow Bunting, who was not quite ready, wanting a little more fining down. Mr. W. Shakespeare judged, and gave general satisfaction.

SWANSEA.

Eleventh annual show of the Swansea and Dis. C.B.A. was held at Workingmen's Club, Alexandra Rd., on Nov. 8th and 9th. The hall was laid out with the usual good taste and looked very attractive, the staging being covered with red baize, which not only enhanced the appearance, but kept the exhibits free from draughts. Plenty of walking room was provided between the tiers, which prevented jostling, and allowed a good view of all the exhibits. Sixty-six classes were provided, but unfortunately this year entries did not come up to expectations, being nearly 100 short of the previous year, which is very regrettable, as this old society has always catered well for all branches of the Fancy, and taken the utmost care of the exhibits, and deserves to be better supported. We trust the "gate" made up for the deficit. The show managers, Messrs. J. E. Jeffreys and J. H. Ford had everything in apple-pie order, the birds all staged in good time and judging started early. The stewards deserve credit for the prompt manner in which the awards were put up, and the welfare of the birds looked after. Exhibitors are indebted to the following hard-working committee:—Chairman, Mr. J. W. Ford; vice, Mr. J. W. Bancroft; and Messrs. Gay, Wright, W. R. Taylor, A. E. Taylor, Hocking, D. Jenkins, Ford, Steer, W. H. Jenkins, and the evergreen Phil Jenkins. The secretaries, Messrs. S. H. George and Fred Heal, were very courteous officials, and left no stone unturned for the benefit of the society. Norwich, Borders, and Yorkshires were great, both in numbers and quality, and gave the judge a hot time. Hybrids were poor in numbers, but what were there were of the first water. British birds, usually the Welshman's great forte, were not so numerous as usual, but the exhibits struck us as being well up to the standard. Principal specials: Norwich, best bird, Mr. W. J. Houghton; best local and Ramsden's, Mr. W. Palmer; best Yorks., Messrs Hawes Bros.; Border Fancy, C.C. silver medal, Mr. D. Jenkins; best Hyb., Mr. A. Shellam; Danygraig cup for best local bird, Mr. D. A. S. Longden, with a ticked Linnet-Canary hybrid; this being the second win, the cup now becomes Mr. Longden's own property. Unfortunately, at the last moment Mr. A. Silver was prevented by ill-health from officiating, and the committee decided to appoint Mr. D. A. S. Longden to judge the British Hardbills, and Mr. Phil Jenkins the Hybrids, Mules, and Softbills. Mr. Battye judged the Canaries.

ST. COLUMB.

Sixth annual show of the St. Columb C.B. and C.A. held in Drill Hall, November 7th. Entries were slightly in advance of last year's, 126 being staged, which was very good considering the show came the day before Bodmin show. The Drill Hall was an admirable place for the show, being well lighted and free from draughts. The birds were excellently staged, so that they were all well displayed and reflected great credit on the committee who had the management of affairs. The president for the year is H. Whitford, Esq., who was backed up on this occasion by a most energetic committee, comprising Messrs. Boney, Cornish, Crapp, Gatley, F. Liddicoat, S. Liddicoat, J. Liddicoat, Penna, Rabey, Tamblyn, Trethewey, Hosking, Hambly, Fradd, C. Salmon, Houghton, J. S. Salmon, George, Bond, Roach, Polkenhorne, and Gregor, Mr. W. L. Salmon makes a most courteous and obliging secretary, and seemed to have everything at his fingers end, so that everything went like clockwork. Special for best bird was awarded to Messrs. Rabey Bros. for their well-known winning light body, dark crest. Mr. C. H. Toy made the awards, which were favourably received.

BODMIN.

Bodmin nineteenth show, held 8th November. Cage birds were somewhat stronger than for some years past, and the quality of the exhibits was considerably in advance of that of some previous shows. Norwich classes contained some of the best known birds in the West of England, and were a show of themselves. Yorkshires were not so strong as we have seen them. It was a pleasure to see the Cinnamons coming up a bit, and the British birds especially; the A.O.S. Small British contained quite two sets of winners. As in past years, the cage birds were well staged in a cosy part of the hall, which was heated by a stove. Mr. Jago was a painstaking and obliging secretary, and Messrs. S. Tickell, N. Shelley and Tonkin ably looked after the welfare of the birds. Mr. Thos. Pope (Plymouth) judged, and his awards seemed to give general satisfaction.

The Young Naturalist.

Prizes of 1s. and two of 6d. each will be given weekly for the best three anecdotes about birds written on postcards. Competitors must be under sixteen years of age, and state whence stories are taken. Two stars indicate the Winning Contribution; one star the runners-up.

*Story of a Goldfinch.

In our garden we have an aviary containing Canaries and other birds. A pair of Goldfinches this year built a nest, and very interesting it was to watch them weave the moss together. They built close to the side where we were constantly passing and repassing, but the little builders took no notice of us. After a time they hatched some young ones. Next year we hope they will build again, and be even more successful than this year.—B. Garner (age 13 years), Bannold Waterbeuch, Cambs.

*How a Thrush Was Caught.

Last winter a nice Thrush was visiting our garden every day, so my father tried several ways to capture it. At last he gave it up. One day my mother was hanging clothes on the line, when she saw the Thrush hopping about the garden quite tame; so she put an empty cage on the ground and put cake crumbs into it. As soon as she left the cage the Thrush went in. Mother picked up the cage and carried it into the house, where the Thrush has remained ever since in full song; it sings by daylight and gaslight.—D. J. Mathias (age 11), 34, Cambrian Place, Sea Side, Llauelly.

A Clever Polly.

One day, when conversing with a friend in Acton, two of his children were amusing themselves together in the same room, when our attention was suddenly arrested by the following sentence: "Hold your row there, do!" uttered in a commanding tone. "Whoever is that?" we asked. "Oh!" said our friend, "it's only the Parrot"; which was a very fine specimen of the African grey kind. "She's an amusing bird, and very clever, too," said our host. "Now listen while I ask her a question: 'Polly, what is the matter with you?'" "Nothing," replied the bird. "Then go and hang yourself," he said. "So I will," responded Poll. She then, with her beak, laid hold of a wire at the top of her cage, from which she suspended herself, gave a shiver, clapped her wings close to her sides, stretched her legs straight out, closed her eyes, and became perfectly motionless, looking as dead as a door nail. She remained in this position about a minute, when our friend said to her: "That will do, Polly." She opened her eyes, and was instantly on her feet again.—Sent by Mary Ford (aged 12), "Daphne," Elms Avenue, East-

I have sent out schedules to all known fanciers (750 in all), writes Mr. Duncan Grant, hon. sec., Lochore and Glencraig C.B.S. Anyone I have missed may have one on receipt of postcard.

I have received so many letters from delighted exhibitors at our late show that I take this opportunity of thanking them all for their kind appreciation, writes Mr. A. Dickson, sec. Kelty and Blairadam C.B.A.

One of our members lost a Crest at the Blaydon Show, writes Mr. G. Harver, the sec. Will any fancier who has got this bird by mistake return it to me, as the owner is a novice and feels the loss very much.

The following additional birds are, we hear, included in Class 187 at the L.C.B.A. (Horticultural Hall) Show, having been omitted through a printer's error:—Dyal bird, White-cheeked, Red-eared, and Black Bulbuls.

The committee of the Croydon F.A. will be glad if any fancier wishing to join (residing within twelve miles of the Croydon Town Hall) will communicate with me, writes Mr. F. W. Capell, 121, Brighton Road, South Croydon.

We are short of entries in many classes, although we have so very many specials; we will therefore accept any entries bearing Saturday's postmark, write Messrs. Ebben and Dartnall, hon. secs., Enfield F.A. Send entries and we will classify.

Schedules of the Sittingbourne C.B.S. are now ready; those overlooked may have one on receipt of a postcard, writes Mr. B. Tidy, sec. The show is open to Kent, and is within easy reach of all towns. A comfortable hall has been secured.

Mr. Ramsden has promised a set of carvers for best bird fed solely on Ramsden's Colour Feed, and I have also had one or two more specials come in since schedules were put in printer's hands, writes Mr. W. E. Allen, sec. Grantham C.B.S.

I am pleased to inform readers that Mr. J. Steel, joint secretary of the Dalkeith and Dis. C.C., is making rapid progress towards recovery after having undergone a serious operation on Oct. 24 in the Edinburgh Royal Infirmary, writes Mr. John Ewing, the hon. joint sec. I am sure all fanciers will join with me in wishing him a speedy recovery.

We have been notified of the following corrections to show reports:—Burton-on-Trent, hybrid class 3rd, G. Edwards (not Longden); Cheltenham, members' cl. yell. and tkd. buff class 1sts, A. E. Wasley (not Wasby); Dysart, A.O.V. class, J. Sneddon showed a yellow Lancashire coppy (not "a grizzled Crest staged as a coppy").

A feature of the Metropolitan C.B.A. show is, we hear, a class provided for the cottage-kept Canary for the children of Battersea.

"Ailing Cage Birds and How to Cure Them"—No. 6 of our popular Nutshell Series—is being reprinted. This explains why some of our readers have not received copies which they ordered, and we trust they will accept this explanation of the delay.

I am leaving the Fancy for a time, and have sold my entire stock of Norwich Plainheads, cages, etc., to Mr. W. Holmes, of Holmwood, near Chesterfield, winner of the Codnor Park and Eastwoods Society Cup last week, writes Mr. A. Wilson (Hopthorne Lane, near Chesterfield).

Since issuing our schedule, we have received specials for third most points in open Yorkshires, and third most points in open British, also 2s. 6d. most points by v.h.c.'s in open classes, writes Mr. G. Bescoby, sec. of the Doncaster C.B.S. Will anyone overlooked kindly write for schedule?

I have just received the oil painting special for most points in show, writes Mr. J. Pitchford, sec. of the Stoke-on-Trent C.B.S. We have had it framed. I am advised on good authority that the value £2 2s., as stated in the schedule, is underrated, and that the picture is worth nearer £5. Albeit, it is really a beautiful prize, and I envy the fortunate winner.

OBITUARY.

It is with the deepest feelings of regret, writes Mr. H. R. Macdonald, of the Thatto Heath and Dist. O.S., that I have to announce the death of Mrs. R. G. Tyson, the young wife of our hon. secretary, who passed away on Nov. 2, after a very brief illness, death being due to pneumonia. Deceased was laid to rest in Eccleston Churchyard on Nov. 6. I am sure all who knew them will readily extend their sympathy to Mr. R. G. Tyson in the hour of his great trial.

Mr. JAMES KING (Percy Main).

The members of the North Shields and Dis. C.B.C., writes Mr. R. P. Fox, the sec., offer their most heartfelt sympathy to the friends and relatives of the late Mr. James King (Percy Main), who passed away on Nov. 3. We have lost a most ardent member, and the bird world has lost a very strong supporter. As a British bird fancier, his name will be handed down for generations, for up to the day of his death he was a keen bird-lover. He was respected by all who knew him, his charming and genial manner making him a general favourite with all.

Mr. A. GORRIE (Edinburgh).

A well-known fancier passed away after a long illness on Nov. 4 in Edinburgh, viz., Mr. A. Gorrie. He was for a few years a member of the committee of the Scottish National C.B.S. Scotch Fancy Canaries were his hobby, and he was fairly successful with them. He won the Paterson Cup at the Scottish National on one occasion for the best young Scotch Fancy. He was also a member of the Edinburgh Western, and secured the cup there on at least one occasion. His birds were exhibited at that show a week previous to his death. All who knew him will join in expressing their sympathy with his wife and family.—Robert Craig (Edinburgh).

Mr. R. Lile, sec. of the Edinburgh Western O.S. (of which Mr. Gorrie was one of the oldest members) also writes expressing the sympathy of his society with the widow and family of the deceased.

The Metropolitan C.B.A. are this Saturday holding their annual show, and it is the great finale for the solid silver cups, spoons, and medals which the society offers, writes Mr. G. Harwood, the sec.

I am pleased to inform you that I have now won the British Bird Cup of the Yorks C.B.S. of Ireland outright, writes Mr. P. Mulcahy (Dublin), having won it three times in succession. I may say I have to thank CAGE BIRDS in no small way for my successes.

A slight error occurs in our schedule; Class 46 should read Clear or Ticked Yellow or Buff hen, writes Mr. Wm. Guthrie, sec. of the Kilmarnock O.C.B.S. Since issuing schedules I have received two extra specials, one for non-fed Norwich and one for Yorks, which will duly appear in prize list.

On going through our schedule I find several printer's and other errors, writes Mr. W. H. Mugford, hon. sec. of the London C.B.A. The diploma for Yorkshire Green is for the best bird not yellow; and in the Green Border section the diploma is for the best bird. The entrance fee to the Foreign bird classes is 2s. With regard to the Crest section, I was under the impression that Classes 1—9 had been guaranteed, but I now find it is only Class 3. Will exhibitors kindly note this?

The Mayor as President.

On account of serious illness our President, Alderman M. Murray, can no longer grace our association, writes Mr. J. M. Macdonald, sec., Wallsend-on-Tyne C.B.S., and our members very much regret this and wish him a speedy and complete recovery. The present Mayor of Wallsend, Councillor Swinburn, J.P., has accepted the position of President, and, with the Mayoress, will visit our show on Nov. 11, when their presence will afford great pleasure to the members and public (we expect a large turn-out). Mr. J. Dixon (Bedlington) judges the Canaries instead of Mr. A. Hay, who is officiating at Blyth. Mr. Hay has promised to keep the Wallsend date for us next year; our members have taken a fancy to him.

Your autumn double number is up to CAGE BIRDS usual high standard, and the coloured plate just lovely, writes Mr. Robert Whitton, sec., Broughty Ferry C.B.S.

I have received a postcard from someone wanting two or three pairs of Canaries, but cannot decipher the address, so cannot reply, writes Mr. Thos. Price (Wigan). The postmark is Edmonton, London, N.

We regret exceedingly to hear that Mr. Atkinson, the popular secretary of the Newcastle-on-Tyne C.B.S., has been down with pleurisy, but his many friends will be glad to know that he is making satisfactory progress towards recovery.

We hear that Mr. R. Lowther has sold his winning Buff Norwich (King George) to Mr. W. H. Howe, of Wellingborough, for a good figure. This bird has secured firsts at Chopwell, Newcastle (Bowl winner), 2nd Morpeth, and 1st Blaydon.

I regret to say, writes Mr. H. Smith, that entries at Wimbledon Show are very short, and it has been decided to extend the closing date till Saturday morning next, Nov. 11. We hope fanciers will rally round us.

We shall have an excellent show this week-end (Nov. 10 and 11), writes Mr. C. W. Law, hon. sec. of the Highgate, Hampstead, and District C.B.S., over 350 entries having come to hand. We hope to see a good gathering of fanciers at the hall—the Spencer Hall, Dartmouth Park, N.W., near the Tufnell Park tube station and Junction Road (M.R.) station.

We hear that Nottingham Show this week-end (Nov. 11 and 13), held in the Mechanics' Lecture Hall, will provide its usual treat for bird-lovers, in the way of a grand display of birds, some of the best in the country having been entered. Visitors to this old-established and splendidly managed exhibition have evidently another treat in store.

Owing to our show at Leigh on Nov. 18 and 19, appearing in your Guide to Shows, writes Mr. R. Charleton, the hon. sec., I have had several applications for schedules, so will you kindly thank all enquirers and state that it is only a members' show with one open Limnet class? This speaks highly for the many hands CAGE BIRDS Guide must get into, and for its usefulness.

Allow me to thank all exhibitors at Luton Show for their support, writes Mr. E. Bloomfield, the hon. sec. I regret not being able to send labels sooner, as it was feared we should not have a show; I hope that every exhibitor, on reading your report, will realise that we have done our best for them.

Being employed on a local newspaper and knowing the value of a good display advertisement, Messrs. J. G. Hammond, your printers, deserve special praise for the display of our Swansea Show advertisements, writes Mr. S. H. George, sec., Swansea C.B.A.

Visitors to Nottingham Show this week-end (Nov. 11 and 13) should pay a visit to CAGE BIRDS Stall, where our books and pamphlets, etc., will be on sale. Mr. Wm. Cottingham (of Nottingham) has charge of the stall, and hopes to make the acquaintance, on our behalf, of the friends and fanciers present.

Mr. H. Davidson, sec. of the Lockerbie F.A., writes drawing the attention of fanciers to the fact that at the Lockerbie Show on Nov. 23 a cup is being offered for the best Border Fancy in show, and another for the best Norwich (non-fed), and that there are in addition a number of other valuable specials (one at least in each class), including gold and silver medals.

I have been reluctantly compelled to extend entries to Sunday morning's post, fearing the result will be disastrous unless we do, writes Mr. W. Sampson, sec. of the Cardiff C.B.S. Since the issue of schedules Mr. Sivill has presented a special of 5s. for most entries in the 15 classes of British. This is in addition to the Points Specials. Novices should observe we are providing four classes for Nor. and four for Yorks. Mr. Ramsden has also presented a handsome breakfast cruet for best fed bird.

We hear that Mr. W. Rudd, the enterprising bird specialist, of Norwich, has recently acquired the whole of a noted fancier's stock of Lizard Canaries, both breeding and young (1911) birds, including some noted winners at our leading shows. All of them, winners as well, he has for sale, and the prices he will ask for them are extraordinarily low. Here is a fine chance for all breeders—especially the amateurs—to acquire first-class stock at bargain prices, which will bring them to the front, and we recommend them to write Mr. Rudd for particulars.

A Novel Method.

Cover the sand trays with a sheet of paper, and put the sand on same. Change paper and sand every two days. Sweep cages out weekly. Have practised this mode for some years, writes Mr. J. Kay (Charlton)

A Great Chance in Crests.

We hear that several of the most prominent breeders of Crests in the Newcastle and Gateshead district are shortly leaving England for Australia, and that some of the best Crests and Crest-breds in the country will have to find fresh homes.

Ten Guineas for a Norwich.

My noted Buff Norwich cock (1st and special, Oxford) won 1st at Leicester last Saturday, and was claimed at catalogue price, £10 10s. I feel proud to have bred such a bird; he was an ideal one, writes Mr. A. Lewin, chairman, Oxford C.B.S. I must also thank you on behalf of my committee for the excellent report CAGE BIRDS gave of our Oxford Show.

To Canada via "Cage Birds."

I exported on Thursday by the steamer "Laurentic" 74 valuable Yorkshire Canaries to Canada through an advertisement in your paper CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. Edgar Broadbent, of Sheffield. Messrs Spratts Patent, Ltd., are undertaking control of the shipment, etc.

£25 Paid for a Young Crest.

The sales at Cheltenham Show were considerably above the average, and a number of birds changed owners, writes Mr. A. S Treasure, sec. The young winning Crest shown by Messrs. Kilminster and Hooper was claimed at catalogue prize, £25. The Rajah of Sarawak visited the show on Thursday and made several purchases.

Changes of Address.

Will secretaries and others kindly make a note of the following changes of address:—Mr. E. Meades (joint hon. sec. of the Plumstead and Woolwich C.B.S.), from Griffin Road to 56, Conway Road, Plumstead, S.E.; Mr. J. Nicholson, from Skipton to 244, Burnley Road, Accrington; Mr. P. H. Harris, from Bedford Square to 127, Drakefield Road, Balham, London, S.W.; and Mr. G. A. Watson, from Parkgate, to 27, Thomas Street, Sheffield.

An Unwise Choice!

Four local fanciers had been "called to the bar" at Sheffield Show, when a fifth party came on the scene with this message: "Mr. ——, you are wanted." Mr. —— went in a hurry. After a few minutes he returned, saying: "Excuse me, gentlemen, whilst I get over the shock." Having pulled himself together, he broke the news: "What do you think, chaps, a well-known local lady has claimed one of my birds for singing purposes, and it's a hen mule!" Mr. ——, however, saw that matters were rectified afterwards.

Sheffield's Successful "Landlady."

The refreshment bar at Sheffield Show, run by the society and managed by Mrs. G. Fletcher (wife of one of the members) proved a paying concern. Mrs. F. makes a capital "landlady," quite an expert, being able to give a joke and take a joke with whoever feels inclined for a few minutes' jovial chat. Many ladies were observed having afternoon tea and enjoying the capital fare provided at nominal cost. On viewing the stock-in-trade after the show closed, we observed that most of the bottles were empty, and all the barrels were tilted!

An Attractive New Class.

A novel, and what seems to us excellent, feature will be found in the schedule of the next Crystal Palace Show, viz., a class for birds staged in cages so decorated as to represent the natural surroundings of the species. The decorations will be judged, and not the birds, and the prizes be awarded for suitability and artistic merit. Any British or Foreign species (singly or in pairs) may be shown in this class. This attractive notion will no doubt commend itself to many bird-keepers who would not otherwise be exhibiting birds, and the expectations of the management that the class will be one of the features of the show ought to be fulfilled.

Reduced Admission to Shows for Cage Bird League Members.

With refereuce to the paragraph in the League column as to the above, we hear as we go to press that:—

At Stoke-on-Trent, Nov. 16, the charge will be threepence instead of fourpence.

At Cardiff, Nov. 15 and 16, the 1s. charge up to 4 p.m. on the first day will be reduced to ninepence, and the charge afterwards, and on the second day, will be fourpence instead of sixpence.

At Swanley, Kent, Nov. 22, there will be reduced charges of ninepence, fourpence, and twopence, instead of the ordinary admission of a shilling, sixpence, and threepence respectively.

Mr. H. Smith, Hon. Sec. of Wimbledon C.B.S. writes: Catalogues with awards will be printed immediately after judging and sent post free for sevenpence; this was omitted from schedule. Entries promise to beat all records. Members of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, will be admitted, if wearing their badges, or on production of their membership receipt, at the reduced fee of ninepence up till five o'clock on Tuesday, and fourpence afterwards and on Wednesday. CAGE BIRD LEAGUERS should attend this show, the first to make the reduction named.

Canary Farming in the Open Air.

A Lecture given by Mr. E. Pretty before the Members of the London and Counties A.C.B.

When a fancier puts up more than a moderate number of pairs of birds his hobby goes somewhat beyond ordinary Canary breeding. It partakes more of the nature of a business, and I therefore make no apology for my title, "Canary Farming." A Canary is not what it is; it is what you make it. In my experience I have found it to be the most hardy and most healthy of any bird I know, and one which is well able to withstand an English winter out of doors with only reasonable protection. It is to be remembered that the open air is the natural element of a bird and it does not feel the cold as some people would make you believe. Often when I have had to break a solid lump of ice out of my birds' water pans the birds have bathed immediately.

Tried for Years.

I have kept my Canaries out of doors now for some years, and I should never think again of keeping them in a room even if I had the accommodation. I have found the most suitable cage to be of the box pattern, not less than twenty-four inches long, twenty-two deep and twenty high. What is meant by a box cage is one with wood all round except for the wire front. I put only two hop perches, these I make of good thickness, about three-quarters of an inch, and set as wide apart as possible. I have no water or seed-pot holes in the front wires, but put the drinking and feeding vessels on the cage-bottom in such a position that the birds cannot foul them from the perches; the birds then feed and drink from the ground, and this keeps their nails at a proper length, so that they seldom need cutting.

The aspect I prefer is facing south, with some kind of protection against excessive sunshine, for in hot weather too much sunshine may easily prove fatal to the birds. In most places some device must be invented to keep off the cats, such as a skeleton framework covered with wire netting. Slugs and mice are likely to give trouble. The former are particularly partial to the egg-food, and should be kept down by a nightly visit, and a box of salt into which they may be dropped as found. Mice may be killed by any one of the vermin killers or trapped in a pail partially filled with water and stood at each corner of the stack of cages.

For Lancashires and Yorkshires the perches should be fixed low in the cage to get the birds well up on the leg; with other varieties, in which reach is not desired, the perches should be placed nearer the top to prevent undue reach. The best time to introduce Canaries to an outdoor life is about the end of March, when the worst of the weather will be over, and the birds should previously have been kept in a cold room, one entirely without a fire. If they have been kept throughout the winter in a warm room, they should not be placed outdoors until later in the year.

The Selection of Breeding Pairs.

In selecting birds to breed from, I pay most attention to size and colour on the cock side, and shape and type on the hen's part, taking the precaution never to pair together two birds possessed of the same fault. A want of any property on the one side must be balanced by an excess of the same on the other; a similar fault in both birds is certain of perpetuation in the young. Size is mostly obtained by judicious crossing with other and larger varieties.

The latter end of March is the best time to get your birds into breeding condition. I prefer to let Nature take her own course, and I do not force my birds. At this time they should have daily a little dandelion leaf, which has been well washed overnight and allowed to dry. The staple food should be good sound canary seed, with a teaspoonful three times a week to each bird of the following mixture in equal parts; white millet, red millet, hemp, niga, summer rape, golden pleasure, linseed and maw seed. On the days when the mixture is not given, the birds should have a little dry egg-food, as I shall explain later. A little tonic should be placed in their drinking water twice a week. I have found the following an invaluable mixture: From a bottle of good port wine take out a cupful; then put into the bottle one ounce of honey and one ounce of citrate of iron, and thoroughly dissolve the citrate by standing the bottle in hot water. Enough of the mixture should be added to the drinking water to turn it of the colour of sherry. A piece of cuttlefish bone hung up above the perches for the birds to peck at must not be forgotten, as this will assist the production of hard shells to the eggs.

When the birds have made up their minds to start breeding, the cage should of course be provided with a nest pan and bracket, the nest pan lined with felt which must be glued in. For nesting material, I have found nothing better than cow-hair; it holds the heat longer than any other substance that I know.

The hen, while sitting for thirteen or fourteen days, according to the weather and temperature, should be fed on plain canary seed, with just a pinch of maw seed added. Green food should be avoided, and only plain water given for drinking. During this time stomach trouble will sometimes appear; if so use maw seed plentifully. If the diarrhoea continues, the hen may neglect to feed her young, but this may be prevented by giving the oil of cajuput mixture, which I shall mention when I speak of birds coming back from a show.

Treatment of the Young.

As soon as the young are hatched the hen must be provided with egg food, and this may be in either of two forms, known as dry feeding and wet feeding. In dry feeding, take for the first four days the yolk of one hard-boiled egg to two Osborne biscuits; afterwards one egg (the white and yolk together) to four Osborne biscuits. The white and the yolk are well broken up with a pestle and mortar, and the biscuit thoroughly incorporated. Personally I prefer the wet feeding, for birds have very little saliva, and it is easier for the hen to disgorge moist than dry food. The wet feeding is managed as follows: Thoroughly grind up the white of a hard-boiled egg and two lumps of sugar, take a thin slice of bread right across the loaf, soak this in water for ten minutes, squeeze as dry as possible in a cloth, well work in the yolk of the egg, and then thoroughly mix with the pounded white. This is quite the best food I know for young Canaries; of course, any quantity may be made according to requirements, but it must not be allowed to become stale.

Treatment of Bad Feeders.

Sometimes the hens are inclined to be lax in their feeding duties, and the first thing I do in such case is to change the food to boiled bread and milk. If this fails, I turn the hen off her nest and place an unlined nest-pan over the young, so that she cannot get back to them. I then leave her for five minutes, take the nest pan off the youngsters and leave her again. Some hens are very nervous, and will not feed in anyone's presence, and this is why I advise going right away from them when trying this method. I have always been very successful in the treatment. I strongly advise never to take away the soft food until the moult is well over, but always give crushed hemp seed and canary seed in separate pots. The birds must not be allowed to get too fat before or during the moult, and the soft food at that time should be plain biscuit powder, damped with a little water and sprinkled slightly with canary seed and maw seed.

The parent birds and young should have soaked rape seed in addition to their egg food, and this is prepared as follows: Put a breakfast cupful of summer rape into a quart jug three parts full of water, and let it soak for twenty-four hours; take it out, let it drain for another twenty-four hours, and if the weather is warm and the seed is good, it will by that time be sprouting; the soaked seed must not be given wet, but must be rubbed dry in a cloth. While the soaked seed is being given, green food will not be necessary.

Moulting for Colour.

When birds are to be colour fed the process should begin at about seven weeks old. At first, this should be weak; crush together with a pestle and mortar eight lunch biscuits, four lumps of sugar, and one teaspoonful of colour food, add an egg-cupful of maw seed, and damp with a little water, or sufficient hard-boiled eggs. Each week add an extra spoonful of colour food until you are giving four teaspoonfuls to the eight biscuits, etc., and then continue at that strength right through the moult. Beginning about August, a little sulphate of iron first dissolved in hot water and then added to the cold drinking water will fix the colour. All birds that are being colour-fed should be screened by some thin material from exposure to excessive light.

Preparing for the Show.

Birds should be washed one week before a show, using the best curd soap, and should be sprayed every morning; nothing fines down the feather better than this spraying; a piece of thin muslin will keep off dirt and smoke between washing day and show day. When they return from a show they should have as their first feed some freshly boiled bread and milk sprinkled with maw seed, and if they look at all queer, oil of cajuput is a valuable remedy. Put four drops of this in an empty drinker, and then pour slowly into it from as high a point as possible water nearly to the top. It is necessary to hold the pouring jug high in order to separate the particles of the cajuput oil, but do not let the drinker run over, or the medicine will be wasted.

AN UNCOMMON AND CHARMING BRITISH BIRD.

THE CRESTED TIT: Drawn from the specimen so successfully exhibited at the Scottish Shows by Mr. E. Taylor (Anniesland, Glasgow).

Foreigners Which Pay the Tobacco Bill

To say Nothing of Holiday Bills and Bills for Food.

Some Experiences of Mr. Fred Kings (Sutton Coldfield).

"Foreign Birds!" The softest whisper of these two magic words is sufficient to rouse me out of the most melancholy mood, and to at once make me happy, bright, and cheerful. When I was a boy my schoolmaster used to grumble at me because I was always drawing foreign birds in my copy book, instead of studying history; at night my mother used to grumble at me for reading bird books in bed; and now I am a married man my wife grumbles at me because I am always sitting up into the small hours reading my CAGE BIRDS instead of going to roost at a respectable time! When a little boy, I started bird-keeping with a tame sparrow, which I kept in a cage I manufactured out of an old soap box and a few umbrella wires; and I got grumbled at by my mother. When I blossomed into youth I kept Hawks, Owls, Magpies, Jays and Parrots, and got grumbled at by my father. When I became a man I kept Emus, Cassowaries, Eagles, Vultures, and Condors, and got grumbled at by my neighbours. Nevertheless, the fact remains that out of the thousands of living things I have kept, nothing has given me such pleasant hours as my foreign birds.

What Solomon Missed!

The keeping of Foreign birds dates from a very early period, but King Solomon was perhaps the first bona-fide Fancier, who kept his collection of various Foreign birds equally as much to the pleasure of his subjects as to his own delight. But even King Solomon, with all his wealth, had not the opportunity for keeping Foreign birds compared with the Fancier of to-day, and I often think what a tremendous price Solomon would have gladly paid for a copy of CAGE BIRDS. Foreign birds can now be obtained so readily and cheaply that there is no excuse for a man to say he cannot afford them. For the beginner, let me recommend seedeaters of the hardier species, such as Budgerigars, Zebra Finches, Java Sparrows, Ribbon Finches, etc., as these birds are wonderfully hardy, will live in the garden aviary all the year round, and are as prolific as House Sparrows and with little trouble or attention will rear several nests of young each year.

Never shall I forget when a schoolboy breeding my first nest of Budgerigars. I had a pair sent me by a friend in Wiltshire for a birthday present. It was in the month of April (not April 1st) and I kept them in the garden in a large cage I manufactured out of an old bacon box and some ½-inch wire netting. They went to nest the following month, and reared me 5 beautiful youngsters (3 cocks and 2 hens) which I used to delight to exhibit to my old schoolmaster as "Baby Parrots." The poor old fellow was not a Fancier, so did not know the difference!

I sold the young Budgerigars and bought a pair of Cockatiels, and shall always remember my old schoolmaster coming home with me to see them. The hen was busy incubating four eggs, and the old man being short-sighted put on his glasses and peeped down into the nest, when the old hen Cockatiel, being of a rather retiring and suspicious nature, pinned him by the nose and held on, which started him sneezing as if he had just taken a huge pinch of snuff.

Another advantage of the keeping of Foreign birds, is that an aviary suitable for them can be readily constructed in any backyard, and in the densest populated town, and they can be kept without being a nuisance to the neighbours, though perhaps to the delight of the neighbours' cats. But cats seldom worry me now. Last year I exchanged some of the Budgerigars with a gentleman in Devonshire, and in return he sent me an air-gun, the smartest little cat-frightener I ever handled.

"Pin Money" for the Ladies.

Foreign bird keeping can be indulged in by the fair sex equally as by the sterner sex, while the Fancier can make his birds pay for their keep, and with a little systematic management they will show quite a nice little balance in their favour as well. I don't say there is a fortune in them, but at the same time they will certainly pay for their keep and trouble—more than can be said of plenty of other hobbies. I know a lady in Wiltshire who makes quite a nice little sum (which she calls "Pin Money") out of her Foreigners every year—while another Fancier, a friend of mine near Birmingham, saves enough out of his Foreigners to pay for his annual holiday at the seaside. As to my own experience, well, that is not a fair test as to profit and less, as I have now become such a keen Fancier of Foreign birds that I sometimes speculate rather large sums to obtain very scarce species, and as many of these costly species do not breed in England. I cannot exactly look on them from the profit-making point of view, but in the light of a luxury. Still, with all this, on balancing up my Foreign bird accounts each year, I find they leave a favourable balance; so taking into consideration that I have had more pleasure out of my Foreigners than anything else I have ever kept, you will readily understand why I am so much in their favour.

One thing, at least, I have to thank my Foreigners for—they saved me a lot of trouble, and worry over the recent Budget. You see I am a rather heavy smoker, and the advance of the duty meant that my "Bacca" would cost me more, but thanks to my Foreigners I go on quietly smiling and smoking as usual, for they not only pay for their keep, but pay for my tobacco all the year round as well. So I get my hobby and my 'bacca for nothing. I hope they won't put a tax on my Foreign birds!

In conclusion, let me advise all amateur Fanciers to commence with the species I have mentioned above, give them proper and careful attention, keep an exact statement of expenditure and returns, advertise surplus stock and young birds in CAGE BIRDS (they will get plenty of replies) and I am confident they will soon experience the same satisfactory results as myself

CANARY QUERIES.

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

Eating and Wasting.

A.H.T.—Your treatment is not correct, but before attempting anything else first see that the birds are kept in a healthful place. Keep them quite free from cold draughts, or extreme fluctuations, and do not allow them to hang in or near to a window, or fire, or burning lights, nor high up near ceiling Keep cages strewn with clean gritty sand, and see they are free from red mites. Give a staple diet of plain Canary seed only. Every second day give a half teaspoonful of summer rape, and on the alternate days give three times a week for a month a piece of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut sprinkled lightly with soft sugar, and finally with a pinch of maw, and twice a week a small spray of watercress or sweet fruit. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, every second day for a week, and afterwards dissolve in each ounce of water every second day for a fortnight a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea, a crystal of sulphate of iron half as big, and add six drops of dilute sulphuric acid. Treat both birds the same, except that you should keep the one that has not moulted rather on the warm side, and also add a light dusting of flowers of sulphur to the bread and milk each time for the first fortnight.

A Squealing Crest (Reader of "Cage Birds.").—The bird undoubtedly get a chill during the moult which has brought on bronchial trouble, which is the cause of the squealing, as you term it. See that all causes of the complaint are removed, as suggested in reply to "S. Crichton," and feed as directed in that reply. Also give the aperient mixture therein named for two days, and follow this up with a fortnight's course of the chlorodyne mixture given in reply to "Keeper."

Seed Samples (S. G. Williams).—The canary is an excellent all-round quality. The rape is probably a mixture of rape-like seeds, and has a proportion of the hot biting kind. Otherwise the sample is very clean and good. For feeding Canaries you should get the wild nutty-flavoured sort, and limit the use of the kind of which sample consists to the mixture used occasionally in small quantities as a change. The hemp is also probably a mixture of various qualities. The bulk of it is of moderate quality only, a small proportion very good, and about the same proportion is decidedly bad. I should not care to use it for high-class valuable Canaries.

Travelling Box (Box).—The small so-called travelling cage used by large dealers to send out birds would be quite the best thing for sending the bird a journey of 70 miles. These are about nine inches long by 5in. by 5in., wired only in front and a perch across the middle from back to front about an inch or rather less from the floor. Throw in a handful of canary seed, put in bird shortly before time to pack up, so that it may begin to pick up off the floor. At last minute offer a drink of water, put in cage a small piece of bread saturated with water, and pack up cage closely in stout brown paper. No holes or anything else for ventilation are necessary or advisable at this season. Label prominently "Live Bird," etc. Proper labels for the purpose are advertised in our columns. Send per passenger train. At end of journey a drink of lukewarm water or milk and a little bread and milk or crushed sponge cake will be all that is necessary.

Doubtful Sex (J. Booth).—I am inclined to think your doubts about the sex of the bird are well founded. Most young Roller cocks begin to mutter more or less almost as soon as they leave the nest, and any healthy young Roller that is well through the moult should be in fairly good song by now. You might give it half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with three or four drops of sherry mixed in it every second day for a fortnight, and a pinch of a mixture of equal parts maw, gold of pleasure, and inga on the alternate days. If it still shows no signs of coming in song after that—well, put it in the harem. But if it gives you trills—or rolls, rather—of two minutes duration, then it will still be a marvel which I, at least, "have never heard the like." Feed as advised in No. 10 Nutshell, but give a staple of two parts canary to one part summer rape.

A Trio (Young Novice).—(1) See Editor's replies under "General." (2) You should have placed it at once in a nice, comfortable and equable temperature, free from draughts, but not overbeated. If no better, do this now, and give a morsel of bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar and a pinch of maw daily for a week or so. In the drinking water give the glycerine, squills, chlorodyne, epec. wine and potassium mixture given in detail in one or two other replies this week. (3) To clear out the mice use the Virus remedy advertised in our columns, afterwards fill up all holes, etc., with cement in which a little finely broken glass has been mixed. For the cockroaches keep a Demon trap or two set baited with a little sweetened moisture, and destroy the "catch" each morning and evening.

Breeding and Ailing Hen (C.B.L. Member).—(1) You may quite safely mate these birds for breeding next season, say, at the beginning of April, provided they are in the proper condition for mating. (2) Your treatment is not giving this hen a sporting chance. Give a staple diet of plain canary only. Every second day give in addition half a teaspoonful of summer rape and a morsel of banana. On each alternating day for a fortnight give a similar quantity of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver emulsion mixed in it and sprinkled with maw seed. Limit the food to these items. In the drinking water give these same medicines as advised to "A. Farmer." You can get small drinkers for giving medicines economically from any large dealer in appliances. Strictly avoid metal drinkers for this purpose.

Not Moulted (W.M.).—It would help this bird to give it a vapour bath, as described in "Our Canaries," and afterwards keep it rather on the warm side and add to the drinking water 20 drops of whiskey, five of sweet spirit of nitre, and a few shreds of saffron every second day for a week or so. See that she is kept quite free from draughts and the noxious fumes of burning lights. Feed as advised to "S. Crichton," but omit the sherry and oil from the soft food, and slightly dust it with flower of sulphur instead, and give also twice a week a small teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, millet, and broken groats. If cough is not better in, say, a fortnight, give her the chlorodyne mixture as advised to "Keeper."

Just Starting (E. Hollis).—You will get a pretty fair knowledge of all the elements required from "Canary Breeding for Beginners" sent you, and if you now get "Our Canaries" you will be well equipped for starting, and should be able to get over every difficulty that arises. The bird bred last March will be quite old enough and ready for breeding at the beginning of next season—say, end of March or beginning of April. Its not singing may be due to moulting. If it is really a cock it should commence to sing as soon as the moult is finished. It is quite a matter for personal judgment whether you start with one cock to one hen or one cock with two hens. If properly worked either plan may be equally successful in result, with the saving of one-half the number of cocks. How to work one cock with two hens is fully explained in the book mentioned, and also in several recent replies in this column.

Sits Panting (S. Crichton).—You omit to say which year it was bred. Keep it in a comfortable temperature—not over-heated nor yet cold, but quite free from extremes on either side, cold draughts, or fumes from burning lights, and do not hang it near ceiling. Give a staple diet of plain canary only. Every second day give half a teaspoonful of summer rape, and each alternate day for a fortnight give a similar quantity of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw seed. Three times a week give a morsel of green food or sweet fruit. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and a pinch of Epsom salts for two days, and afterwards 20 drops of whisky, six each of glycerine and oxymel of squills, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, every second day for a week or fortnight, as may seem necessary.

Soft Moult and Diarrhœa (A. Farmer).—For the latter see that all your seeds and foods are quite sweet and fresh. The treatment prescribed below will, however, probably correct this. Strictly speaking, no room should be "hot" for Canaries either with or without these complaints. If you wished to heat the room for any purpose, a temperature of 54 degrees, which can only be called "temperate," is quite sufficient for practically all purposes. See reply to "S. Crichton," and treat the birds the same as regards food and temperature. Also give the same aperient for two days, and afterwards dissolve a dram of ammoniated citrate of iron and quinine in two tablespoonfuls of sherry, add a teaspoonful of glycerine, and give 20 drops of this in each ounce of drinking water two days in every three until the feathers cease dropping.

Buff Hen with Cold (Keeper).—(1) See reply to "S. Crichton" in this issue, and treat this hen the same as therein advised, especially in the matter of the removing causes. If not better at end of fortnight get a chemist to mix you two drams each of glycerine and oxymel of squills, one dram each of chlorodyne and ipecacuanha wine, and eight grains of iodide of potassium, and give 20 drops of this in each ounce of water every second day for a week or two. You might take advantage of a few fine mild days to remove the bird from the kitchen to a room where no fire is kept, provided it is quite free from draughts and damp, and the bird has been kept well away from the fire for a few days before removal. (2) See Mr. Weston's replies. Query should have been on a separate sheet. (3) If money is an object of importance, and you have no experience at all, you should get a pair of hardy young birds at about half the price you name, which would be just as good "to learn on," and, if the first attempt failed, it would not be quite so discouraging.

Feather Coming Off (T. Shaw).—The most common cause of this continual moulting is exposure to draughts, or extremes of heat and cold. The first step towards curing the trouble is to discover and remove the cause—without this all treatment will prove futile. See that bird is in a fairly equable and comfortable place—not necessarily very warm—but quite free from draughts or damp. Give a staple diet of three parts Canary to one part summer rape. Every second day for a month give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cold liver oil emulsion mixed in it and sprinkled with maw. On the alternate days give a few grains only of hemp and a morsel of banana. In the drinking water give a pinch of Epsom salts for two days; then dissolve a dram of ammoniated citrate of iron and quinine in an ounce of sherry, ad a teaspoonful of glycerine, and give 20 drops of this in the water every second day until feathers cease dropping.

Always Curled Up (R.P.S.).—If you carefully look into this bird's position I think you will find it is either exposed to occasional draughts or extremes of heat and cold. These must be absolutely removed. Do not keep bird near the fire, nor near, or over, burning lights in the evenings. Also carefully examine its cage for red mites, and if any are found, exterminate them. Give a staple diet of plain canary only. In addition, give one day a morsel of banana and a quarter teaspoonful of maw; next day half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, millet, and linseed; and next day a similar quantity of crushed sponge cake. Repeat these three items in the same order twice in each week for a month. In each ounce of drinking water give ten drops of syrup of buckthorn for one day, and afterwards every second day for a fortnight dissolve in the same quantity of water a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea, a crystal of sulpbate of iron half as big, and add six drops of dilute sulphuric acid. Keep cage and perches as clean as possible.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

About Nightingales.

Miss A. Mepham.—I do not know, of course, that your bird is a male. But even assuming it to be of the male sex, it may not commence to sing until the spring is approaching. Nightingales vary in this respect when in cages. Some sing freely during the autumn and winter, but moult in the spring and sing very little indeed during the warm weather—just the contrary, in fact, to that which one would expect—while others sing freely during spring and summer, and are more or less mute the rest of the year. The warm weather songsters predominate, undoubtedly, while all-the-year-round (more or less) vocalists are very scarce—I had a beauty myself a few seasons back. My 'Gales generally get to enjoy ripe fruit (even apples), the favourites being raspberries, peeled grapes (sliced), bananas, and garden currants. They are fond, too, of fleshy berries (elder, privet, black, etc.). A little live food should certainly be given—two or three mealworms and a few gentles, for instance. Good grocer's (shop) currants soaked in very hot water until they swell, then drained and allowed to cool, are very much relished, and a "feed" may frequently be given.

Hybrid Matters.

Hybrid Novice.—(1) As steadiness is so valuable in muling pairs, a house-moulted Greenfinch might have been more suitable for your purpose. I cannot tell you any length of time to keep the fresh-caught Greenfinch in a small cage, as this depends entirely upon its disposition. Some Greenfinches settle down and become steady in a fortnight, others take months. If your bird turns out very wild and untractable, he will be useless; give him his liberty and try another. Use the jonque. (2) It depends upon whether the Britisher is a proved muler. If so, he need not run with the hen until the latter is getting into breeding condition. If untried, then a spell with a hen Canary (or several hens) is beneficial during the winter. (3) It is just a matter of personal choice, as both Canary-Bullies and Greenie-Bullies are of considerable value. (4) Why not try the cock Bullfinch with a variegated yellow hen Canary? (5): No one could possibly say, as individual birds differ so. The chances are very much against her doing so, however.

Loss of Goldfinches.

W. Pugh.—It is difficult to judge the sample of seed sent, for I have no hesitation in saying that it is the dirtiest, dustiest sample I have ever set eyes upon. Surely you do not give it to your birds like this? If you do, then your losses need no further explanation. The canary seed looks small, but otherwise good, and the linseed does not seem amiss. The teazle is small and poor-looking (I should not buy it for my own use), and the hemp—most important of all for Goldfinches—contains many bad grains (brown and dried, not white and "milky," in kernel; crush some yourself and see), and in addition to this it is too large and hard to give to newly-caught Goldfinches—the sort of hemp that many of them could not crack. Get a smaller kind of hemp, which when crushed yields a white, oily ("milky") kernel; and even this should be given lightly cracked to newly-caught Goldies. No birds can live on bad seed—that goes without saying—and unless hempseed is really first-class, Goldfinches are better without it.

A Puzzle of a Bird (J. W. W.).—Your description is very vague (you don't, for instance, say whether seed-eater or otherwise), and what there is of it is very puzzling, especially the "yellow breast." Hazarding a guess, I should think the bird must be a Linnet Mule (i.e., a cross between a Linnet and a Canary). If you think this is not correct, try and describe the bird more fully and state how the plumage is marked, also what the bird's call note and song (if any) are like.

A Trio (W.O.C., Hounslow).—(1) Of the three seeds in the mixture the linseed is good, the canary good but smallish, and the hemp only moderate, there being a percentage of bad grains amongst it, brown in the kernel (when crushed) or entirely dried to dust. Bad hemp can be very harmful, especially to birds which feed much upon it (such as Goldfinches), and I am certain it is the unsuspected cause of many deaths. Some of the canary seed has been shelled by mice, unless I am very mistaken, and these pests soon render seed to which they have access unfit for the food of birds. (2) Have you tried moving the bird from a cold to a heated room (or vice versa, as the case may be)? This usually serves to drop a bird into moult. (3) Good linseed is not harmful to Goldfinches if given in moderation. My own Finches always have it. There is no object in giving "too much."

Size of Flocks (W. Bywater).—Personally I have never seen above 24 to 30 Goldfinches together in a flock, and generally speaking, parties of 6 to 12 have been far more common. But it is a fact that flocks of 50 to 100 (and over) have very often been seen. A friend of mine counted over 40 in a flock not many days ago.

Sixpence a Pound (H.M., Rhymney).—I felt very interested when I read that you had bought thistle seed at sixpence a pound—I promptly put my hand into my pocket to see how much money I had to spare after the fifth of November celebrations! But I put my money back again after I had examined the sample you enclosed, for I found it to be the ordinary teazle seed, and not thistle at all. Either the chemist you mention does not know thistle from teazle, or he mistook your order. Maybe it was the chemist's boy. I have heard of rat poison being sold by these enterprising young men to soothe the feelings of infants engaged in cutting their first tooth. By the way, it is very good teazle.

A Quartette (O.C.S.).—(1) I use sea-sand myself, combined with crushed shell grit. (2) I don't quite know what you mean by "red" sand; if ordinary builders' sand, then this should not be injurious, though it is not sufficiently gritty (too fine). (3) I have never known virgin cork, when used as aviary ornamentation, prove harmful to birds. (4) If your birds are newly-caught—i.e., not properly used to captive life and its changed diet—then no doubt this is the cause of the losses. House-moulted birds, or, at least, birds which have been for some time in captivity, would be best for your purpose. Until you tell me the size of the aviary, I cannot very well suggest suitable birds. If you write me again, say how you have been feeding them, and the number and kind kept together.

Two Items (Would Like to Know).—(1) Sometimes birds which do not moult at the proper season prove very difficult to deal with. Often they will go until the spring before casting any feathers, and at times until the next autumn. A hand-wash, with soap and hot water (rather warmer than usual) has time and again proved an effective means of starting backward birds to moult. After the tub, keep them in a heated room, and steep three or four shreds of meadow saffron (from chemist) in their drinking water. (2) I have never used the seeds of the laurel for Bullfinches, so can give no opinion. I don't see what good purpose they could possibly serve as "colouring agents." What about the list I gave last week in answer to a querist? Plenty of really good and harmless colouring agents mentioned therein.

Breeding Mules (D. T.).—You say you have a "flight" 3 feet long, 2 feet high and 1 foot wide, and ask whether you can put two couples into it for Mule breeding purposes, viz., cock Linnet and hen Canary, and cock Goldie and hen Bullie. In the first place, your "flight" is not so large as some of my own cages (except in height) into which I put one couple; in any case, it is not suitable for more than one pair of birds. Further, to keep two pairs together, even in a much larger cage, is certainly calculated to hinder rather than to make for success. Each pair should have a separate "home." Of course, if your cage had a central division, a hen Canary could be kept in each compartment. Kept all together, both cocks and hens are liable to injure one another fighting. You should read one of the many articles CAGE BIRDS has published from time to time on Mule breeding; or CAGE BIRDS books on the subject. Even the cheap "Nutshell" booklets (on the Linnet, Goldfinch, etc.) have a few words to say concerning breeding with the various birds and method of feeding. It is too long a subject to deal with adequately in this column. Linnet and Canary and Goldfinch and Canary are the best pairs for a beginner, as the hen Canaries will rear the young, whereas hen British birds mostly fail in this respect. Ordinary earthenware nest-pans are generally used; many breeders, however, have their own particular fancy in the way of nesting receptacles. The term "Mule" is generally applied to birds having Canary blood in them, and the term "Hybrid" to birds bred between two Britishers. Strictly speaking, "Hybrid" is the correct term for all.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., etc.

Grey and Cuban Parrots.

T. Williams.—As regards the Grey, stop giving milk, and in addition to the seed mixture supply ripe fruit, plain biscuit, stale crust of household bread, nuts, and a little green food—keep a piece of clean cuttlebone in the cage, and add a pinch of grit (not sand) to the daily supply of seed. For a time, say for a month at least, add one teaspoonful of Byno-phosphates to the daily supply of water, which leave in the cage continually. If the bird is still unduly loose a fortnight hence, please repeat query. Re the Cuban, the same treatment will suffice for this as for the Grey as to the diet—give the bird an occasional dose of Dinneford's Magnesia—one teaspoonful in two tablespoonfuls of water—to keep the bowels moving freely, and at other times Byno-phosphates as for the Grey. Spray the bird weekly with quassia solution, using a fine "mist" sprayer.

Will It Talk?

Long Sett.—Your bird is not a Parrot, but the Australian Roseate Cockatoo, which bears a good reputation in its native country, which does not hold good over here—nevertheless, there have been quite talented birds of this species, though not very numerous, and if you take pains with yours, it should at any rate talk a little; most of them make good minnies, are very droll, acrobatic and chummy. First you must get it tame, avoid anything likely to scare it, once it is tame keep it where it will hear plenty of conversation and not be dull; when it is restful talk to it and teach it by constant repetition—pet and fuss about with it, and it will soon respond. Diet: A seed mixture of two parts each of canary, white millet and oats, and one part each hemp, paddy rice, small maize, dari and sunflower seeds—well mix and keep a supply in the cage. Also supply nuts, ripe fruit, and plain biscuit. Keep a piece of clean cuttlebone hanging in the cage, and add a pinch of grit (not sand) to the daily supply of seed. It must either have water in the cage or be allowed to quench its thirst two or three times daily.

Budgerigars (J. E. Wood).—(1) About size of single Canary-breeder, enamelled creamy-white inside and black outside, including the wire front. Colour feeding quite unnecessary. I should advise showing in pairs, though they may be shown singly. (2) Yes, Budgerigars in a state of nature bathe by rolling in wet grass and herbage, and but seldom "tub" as other species do. Yes, spray as you suggest—use a fine (mist) sprayer. (3) A fair average sample. Nutshell Booklet No. 18 would help you, 2½d. post free from our manager.

Ailing Budgerigar (Lovebird).—Write me per return full details as it is fed, treated, and where it is kept; it is impossible for me to give a satisfactory reply without these details. In the meantime give three drops of tasteless castor oil, direct to the beak, from the end of a quill, and repeat the dose unless full relief is given. In lieu of the ordinary drinking water give a little very weak chilled brandy and water, say, 3 drops to two tablespoonfuls of water; the bird must be kept strictly out of draught, but not in a warm, close situation. Nutshell Booklet, No. 18, 2½d. post free from our manager, should assist you in keeping this species.

Blue-wing Lovebirds (Bluewing).—The Blue-wing Lovebirds, or, more correctly, Passerine Parrakeets, are not free breeders in captivity, but they have been bred in cage. I cannot call to mind any instance of either a talking Blue-wing or Madagascar, but as occasionally a talking Budgerigar turns up, why not a talking Lovebird? Hang up either a husk or small barrel in the cage as a nest receptacle. Diet: Canary, white and spray millet seed, with a few kibbled oats as a change, green food, and a little of any kind of ripe fruit they will take—also grit, cuttlebone and water, for drinking and bathing. They will do well either in your living room, or in an unheated room, but in either case must be subjected to draught.

Lavender Finch (Novice).—(1) A semi-box cage, 12x9x9 inches, enamelled pale sea green inside and black out, including the wires is about as good as any, but the standard show cage, about the above size, will meet the requirements of this species. (2). Besides the magazine you name, and the Fancy Press, there are no others outside the various books. Most of the latter are rather expensive, those advertised in CAGE BIRDS, published at our office, should consult Page's "Foreign Birds for Beginners" (1/1½); Arthur's "Budgerigars and Cockatiels" (6d.); Arthur's "Parrots for Pleasure and Profit" (7d.); "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); "Seeds, Foods, and Wild Plants" (1/2); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); Dr. Creswell's "Hygiene of Bird-keeping" (1/1); "Colour-feeding" (3½d.); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2½d. each): No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 14 "Gouldian Finches," No. 16 "Avadavats," No. 17 "The Grey Parrot," No. 18 "Budgerigars," No. 19 "The Pekin Robin," No. 20 "Waxbills." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. are about the cheapest. Send me a stamped addressed envelope, per the Editor, and I will send you a list of the most suitable—some (many) do not deal with the treatment of the birds in captivity at all. Have you "Foreign Birds for Beginners," 1s. 1½d. post free, from our manager?

FOREIGN BIRD QUERISTS

Lovebirds (W. A. Barr).—I think you had better tell me what kind they are before I attempt to answer your query, also do you intend to keep them in a cage, outdoor aviary, or flying loose in a bird-room? In the meantime feed as advised to "Bluewing" in this issue. Repeat query in full, as I do not retain queries by me.

African Grey Parrot (Anxious).—Undoubtedly shelled walnuts are the best, and as they are usually eaten right up, are no more costly in the end than cheaper kinds, but the bird should not be confined to any one kind—make the above your staple kind, but vary with Hazel and Pea-nuts, both can be purchased ready shelled. Saud is better than sawdust, the latter is certainly not wholesome, as it gets in their moist food and sets up internal irritation. For Parrots which I permit to come out in room or handle, I always keep the wire grating over cage tray, and my birds have clean feet, can be handled and allowed to come out at any time without any preparation.

Amazon Parrot with Swelling (Nemo).—It is difficult to form an opinion, there are quite a number of various swellings, and it would really be best to let a vet. see it, he would operate if necessary and remove it. However, if you wish to treat it yourself, foment with a decoction of camomile flowers, as hot as can be used without causing the bird discomfort, bearing in mind that the eye is a tender place—then dry with a soft cloth and lightly anoint with antiseptic ointment. Carry out this treatment daily, and then let me know how matters are progressing. In conjunction with the above keep the bowels moving freely, not watery loose, by an occasional dose of Dinneford's Magnesia—one teaspoonful in two tablespoonfuls of water. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk sops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever.

To go with Budgerigars (M. C. G.).—As has been often stated in this column, it is most unsatisfactory keeping Finch-like birds with Parrakeets and Lovebirds—though all may go well for a time, sooner or later tragedies become numerous. Red-crested and other Cardinals, Black-headed Silias, and any of the Foreign or English Thrushes and Blackbirds would be all right, but not smaller species. Budgerigars in these degenerate days do not bear the amiable character which they once possessed, as they often fall out among themselves. The better plan would be to put in a pair of Cockatiels, Rosella and Moustache Parrakeets. If you will send me size of your aviary I will tell you whether you have room for all or only part of the above.

What Bird? (Grateful).—So far as your description goes it corresponds with that of the Dugresui's Amazon, in fact, if your description is complete, it is that bird, a very handsome and uncommon species. But I give description to make sure. Fully as large as a Grey; general body colour, including wings and tail green; forehead and fore part of crown red; sides of face below eyes pale blulsh; a small patch in front of the eye yellow; three of the larger wing-coverts are red and the flights violet (puce) blue; beak and feet whitish. If yours is a young bird it may lack the yellow and blue face markings. If this does not correspond with your bird, repeat query, with any further particulars you can give.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 2, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 1s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Puzzled.—Septic fever.

A. J. Smith.—Death occurred from internal hæmorrhage consequent upon rupture of one of the pulmonary blood vessels, probably induced by fright.

W. Ramsay.—Your bird died of enteritis accompanied by splenic apoplexy of contagious origin. The disease is spread either by actual contact, or by mediate contagion by soiling of food with the excrement of affected birds. A course of disinfection is very necessary, and isolation of healthy from the diseased. Once diarrhœa sets in the disease is difficult to combat. Quinine in the form of citrate of quinine dissolved in drinking water twice daily, and if diarrhœa persists, 10 drops of a concentrated solution of Hœmatoxylin similarly administered, and discontinued upon its cessation.

John Glennon.—Contagious Septicoemia (not Septic fever) in which the spleen becomes enlarged and the lungs undergo inflammatory change. It is a very fatal disease, and you will do well to isolate remaining birds, if any, and to ensure complete and thorough disinfection.

PRIZE MONEY PAID.

Croydon; Blaydon-on-Tyne; Ayr; York; Cheltenham; Wisbech.

It is impossible for me to reply to all applicants for the Linnet Mules mentioned in my advert. in last week's "CAGE BIRDS"; I replied to those who sent stamps.—H. C. Ainge (Melton Mowbray).

Correspondence.

Does the L. and P.O.S. Need Rousing?

Sir,—In answer to letter from "Interested" re above, I should like to ask: Who is "Interested?" What does he want? What does he know? Is he a member?

MEMBER, L. and P.O.S.

The Colour of Borders at Liverpool Show.

Sir,—May I ask Mr. Alfred Wellings through your valuable paper if it be true that all my clear birds with the exception of one buff hen, shown at Liverpool Show under him as judge, were put out for being colour-fed, as it was rumoured about in the show on Saturday?

WALTER BAYLEY.

An Explanation from Stonehouse.

Sir,—Owing to a protest being lodged against one of the Linnets which was tested in the secretary's room and alleged artificial colour taken from it, this rather upset our committee, and two birds were neglected to be packed and one was wrongly packed on the Saturday night. It was near the close of the show when the protest was gone into. I hope the owners of the detained birds will accept this as an apology.

WM. MELVIN.

Assist. Sec., Stonehouse Show.

Extraordinary Treatment of Show Birds When on Rail.

Sir,—I am very pleased to see someone has written you on this matter. I regret to say I am a recent victim. I entered four birds for the Manchester Show, and mine came back next morning with the label reversed, and on unpacking the birds one of them was in a pretty plight, feathers strewn about the cage. It looks to me as if the box had been opened and the cages taken out somowhere and left all night, as there was enough dust to write your name on. This is very annoying, for it must be a great temptation to see what's in those "bird boxes" when they are in transit. Can any of your readers say if I have any legal claim on the railway company, or if any one has had the same experience? It is a splendid number you have given us this week in CAGE BIRDS autumn special.

V. E. LITTLE.

The City of Birmingham C.B.S.

Sir,—When I noticed the remark in "Twitterings" that Mr. de Maillet was thinking of again taking up the secretaryship of the above society, I was reminded that it is less than twelve months ago when I heard this gentleman say that never again would he undertake such a terrible ordeal and position. But we do not want Mr. Mole to resign. He has been a splendid worker, and the way he ran the last show was a credit to him. He deserves the praise of the whole of the members and the society's thanks, for although we have a loss, I believe it will be a lucky society in the Midlands to show a profit (try a 50-mile limit show, Midlanders!). There is a strong feeling for amalgamation, and although I am not a member of the South Birmingham O.S., I should strongly advise that society not to tie themselves. But if matters could be put on a sound financial basis it would be an improvement, and the Midlands would have the strongest society outside Manchester and other Northern towns. And why should we not? We are now the second largest city of the Empire.

Which Bird Lays the Golden Egg?

A Poor Opinion of Amateur Birds.

Sir,—I notice a letter from "Bird o' Freedom the Third." The writer certainly is up the pole in regard to some of the statements he makes; I am alluding to the Lancashire and Lizard C.A. Other varieties can look after themselves. He makes use of the following:—"Here are a handful of fanciers forming themselves into two specialist clubs, and dictating to a large society, that unless they are granted fourteen classes they will withhold their patronage." This is untrue, and the party responsible for the statement comes under the heading usually applied to persons making untrue statements—and as long as they can do so under an assumed name they will. I may tell this person that the fourteen classes are voluntarily given, though the writer might have taken the trouble to notice that Mr. Barrass guaranteed one class. All the classes necessary to get our patronage are four for Lancashires and four for Lizards. "B.O.F. the Third" mentions several classes being half prize-money. Has it struck him at all that the aforesaid fanciers keep on paying 2s. an entry for what means a first prize of 6s.? Would the writer like to have classes so made that a fancier could show as a novice or amateur all his life? I can find him men to-day that I know have been showing for twenty years, and yet are showing in novice classes to-day. It is only this last few years that Lizard and Lancashire fanciers could show as novices; they had to fight their way amongst the old hands. We have fanciers in our society now who are entitled to show in novice classes and decline to do so, owing to having shown one season as a novice. They are taking their chances amongst the open classes. Our president, Mr. John Garner, wants me to mention that he remembers the time when Lancashires stood thirty-two deep at the Manchester Show, so that they have not always been a loss to the society. While quite agreeing with the writer that classes filled as he says the novice and amateur classes did at Manchester pay, yet is it the novice or open classes which draw the fanciers? I personally would sooner see a class, say, of nine or ten entries, if sent by professional exhibitors, than I would see a class of thirty novices or amateurs, with perhaps one or two good birds in them. Now, then, Mr. "Bird o' Freedom the Third," the least you can do is to apologise for your misstatement to the L. and L.F.A., and use a little more care before rushing into print.

JOHN RUKIN.

Hon. Sec., L. and L.F.A.

Sir,—Hasn't "Bird o' Freedom the Third" heard the saying: "You can fool all of the people some of the time, you can fool some of the people all of the time, but you can't fool all of the people all of the time"? Yes, the backbone goes to the bottom of the bird and the golden egg comes from near the end. The novice is the backbone of the Fancy, and he also furnishes the golden egg. For the show managers, "Fish for flats"; and how eagerly we novices grab at the bait and get the hook so fast into our gills that we haven't the sense to release it till we have been bled freely. Why don't we novices let the strike fever get hold of us and refuse to show till better conditions are given us? If some of the members who could show in the open would do so, it would give the novice a chance. But when fanciers lend birds to their friends to show, what encouragement does it give us novices to compete? (I was in a fancier's room some time ago, and he showed me a bird he had lent, and it took 2nd in an open class.) No, they like to pipe the tune; and we dance, and that freely, and, what's more, seem to enjoy it. No one can say that I have left the societies owing to my being beaten, but owing to the way I have been had by some of the members. There are plenty of real gentlemen in the Fancy—that I can prove—but also others who would bleed the novice of his last penny.

Is the Yorkshire Canary on the Down Grade?

Sir,—I have read with great interest the correspondence on this subject, and was delighted to see in your valuable paper this week a letter from Mr. Jonas Knight, one of the oldest breeders of the bird of "grace and beauty," and a Yorkshireman to boot. I quite agree with and endorse every word of his letter, and I do not think I am far wrong in saying that his remarks convey the general opinion of the Yorkshiremen. It seems to me that this craze for size is set up by a few exhibitors here in the South, and if they are allowed to have their sway, as they are at present having, under one or two judges, then certainly the Yorkshire will be on the down grade. I had the privilege of visiting a recent London show, and I must say that I was absolutely disgusted at some of the birds that had tickets in the open Yorkshire classes. It was the biggest ones first and foremost, irrespective of type and quality (the two main factors of a Yorkshire Canary). This state of affairs must not continue, or it will end in the downfall of the most popular variety of Canary of the present day. When the Y.C.C. adopted the present standard show cage, they made the cage to suit the bird, but I am sure that some of the Yorkshires that are now winning in the South would be much more comfortable in a Lancashire show cage, or at any rate in one of the same size. Trusting that many more of our leading breeders will give their views on this subject.

TYPE AND QUALITY.

The Cause of Short Entries.

Our Correspondent Considers Delay in Paying Prize-money is Often Responsible.

Sir,—I shall be greatly obliged if you will allow me a little space in what I dare venture to say is a boon to the fancier, CAGE BIRDS, as I have read in our paper from time to time a great deal about the lack of entries at our shows. Some blame the exhibitors; some say the show schedules are wrong—they seem to blame all sorts of things. I blame the show committees themselves. If they managed one most important thing when the show is over in the same way as they manage the other departments while the show is going on, it would be a boon to the Fancy, and especially to the working-man fancier. That is, pay out the prize-money at their very earliest date. This is where the lack of entries comes in. Some will say I am speaking for myself. Well, the working-man fancier only has shillings where some have pounds. He starts to exhibit with a shilling or two, and sometimes depends upon the prize-money from one show to make his entries at the next show. If he has to wait a month for his prize-money he misses sometimes two or three shows, which, you see, may prove to be lacking in entries and at the same time lacking in interest to the exhibitor. Now, as a rule, working-men fanciers are in a majority, and so on the whole the largest exhibitors; therefore the shows depend on them for entries, while they depend on the show committees to help them to make their entries.

WORKING MAN FANCIER.

Yorkshire Union Water Tins.

Sir,—I have made further enquiries re my water tins used at Manningham Show, and find out that my tins, as far as I can see, were the proper sort. May I ask the question what was wrong with them in my Manningham friend's opinion? The tins were the proper shape, and with no sharp edges and of Union pattern.

W. E. FERGUSSON.

The Use of Birdlime in Fife and Forfar.

Sir,—I should be glad if, through your columns, some readers of CAGE BIRDS in the Dunfermline district could give an explanation in regard to the using of bird lime, and say if it is prohibited in the Fife district and if it affects any other district round about (including Forfarshire). I have never before heard of a case of anyone getting fined for using bird-lime.

H. M.

The case "H.M." refers to is briefly dealt with in the following cutting from the Dundee "Evening Telegraph."—Editor. "G. Stewart, tinsmith, Cannongate, Edinburgh, pleaded guilty at the Dunfermline Sheriff Court to-day (Nov. 2), to having at North Queensferry used, or caused to be used, lime upon twigs and whin bushes for the purpose of taking birds, and nine decoy birds in cages, with which he caught one Linnet. The Sheriff imposed a fine of 12s. 6d., including expenses, or five days in prison."

The Wrong Classing of Alleged Mules at Morpeth Show.

Sir,—Having been away from home a good deal of late, my time has been fairly well occupied; hence the delay in replying to the letter of Mr. F. Sokell that appeared in CAGE BIRDS of Oct. 21, re my disqualifying his two exhibits, shown as Redpoll Mules at Morpeth Show on Oct. 14. Well, in the first place I had not noticed the controversy that took place at Chopwell Show (re the report of same in this journal) where these two birds stood 2nd and 3rd in the Light Mule class. Had I seen it, however, the same would not have influenced me in the least. Views held by other people have nothing whatever to do with me. I use my own discretion, without fear or favour, when adjudicating upon a show. I wrong-classed these two birds shown as Mules, and had no hesitation in my own mind whatever as to their being Canaries pure and simple. You say in your letter you have exhibited Mules, etc., for a matter of eighteen years. That may be so, but after such a lengthy experience I should have thought you would have had more sense than to have tried these birds as "clear Mules." The general opinion at Chopwell Show, so I am informed, was that they were Canaries. After judging was over at Morpeth Show I wish to inform Mr. Sokell that the opinion there was unanimous. Since this later show took place, Mr. Sokell, you have had the same tickets served out to you at Newcastle Show—"wrong-classed" by Mr. C. Houlton. Take my advice, friend, and do not waste your money on entry fees, railway charges, etc., by trying your luck again. If one mistake has been made, mistakes galore are not bound to follow. Should you show what are in my opinion really Clear Redpoll Mules under me at any show, I shall be only too delighted to give you full credit. I am sorry to have to pen these few lines in this strain, but your letter on the subject demands such, written as it was in a none too friendly strain.

J. C. BARNES.

P.S.—Is it true that after judging was completed at Chopwell Show, and these two alleged Mules were pointed out to the judge who had given them 2nd and 3rd, by various exhibitors present, an error of judgment was admitted?

Why Do Exhibitors Show Birds?

A Tilt at the Sliding Scale?

Sir,—I can understand an exhibitor making entries in a show where, for an entry of say 1s. 6d., he has a chance of a first prize of 10s., and other prizes in proportion. But what is the inducement for an exhibitor to enter on the sliding scale, even in a members' show? Take for example the case of the recent show of the London Federation of Societies, deservedly in many respects well-spoken-of in your report. The schedule, for an entry fee of 1s., offers (after retaining 2d. in the shilling for expenses) half the remainder for first, the other half being divided between second and third prize birds. One hundred and sixteen classes were provided in champion, amateur, and novice sections, and over 500 were entered, with an average of only over four per class. Now note what happens; twenty classes are cancelled, presumably drawing no entry at all, twenty-eight more classes had less than three exhibitors, leaving only sixty-eight classes where competition is worth calling competition. It is, of course, to the advantage of a society running a show on the above lines to uphold classes with one and two entries, for the exhibitor in the case of one entry gets back as first prize 5d. of his own money, thereby paying 7d. of his own money for the privilege of taking a first prize, and this 7d. goes into the pocket of the society, there being no second and third prize winners to take their portion. There are other shows run on similar lines. One, I believe, adopts the sliding scale in members' classes and stops 3d. in the 1s. for expenses. Another gives open classes, with 21s. in all as prize-money, for 2s. entry fee, but ten entries and under on the sliding scale, so that before they pay full prize-money in any class they have 22s. in hand from entries in that class! An exhibitor, when he enters, can only guess what competition he will meet or whether he will meet any. I fancy, therefore, one important inducement he has to enter is that he may be able in your advertisement columns to puff his bird as "first last time shown" and "first only time shown" (quite true, no doubt); but are not societies in this way almost aiding and abetting something approaching to misrepresentatiou of the merits of the birds? There are too many shows now, and I should say shows of this description are better left out. I may add that having the three sections—viz., champion, amateur, and novice—is one of the main causes of small classes and no competition.

VICTIM.

The Cage Bird Union.

Secretary Optimistic as to Its Future.

Sir,—At the end of September I sent a circular to every society in England and Wales. I thought it best to do this in preference to putting a notice through the Fancy Press, so that every society would have an opportunity of putting before its members the question of remaining in the Union or not. I have received a good many replies, both for and against. The number who has said "for" are quite sufficient to keep the Union going until the troublous times are over, when I am quite sure a Union can be built up of real service to the Fancy and without any coercion whatever. Will those societies who are in favour of the Union please send on their delegate's name and address at once, and then the future working of the Union can be put before them? Please note address.

The Chortle of an Anti-colourfoodite.

Sir,—Speaking for myself, I am still here on terra firma, though I would not have announced the fact had not Mr. H. Moore mentioned me by name in connection with his insinuation that I would try to suppress any anti-colour-feeders' opinions. As you, sir, could have informed him, my "blue pencil" exercises no influence whatever over your columns, neither would I endeavour (I have never yet done so) to suppress honest and practical criticism against the practice of colour-feeding, and believing, as I do, that no amount of honest and unprejudiced investigation is to be feared by colour-feeders, I was glad to see the suggestion that it should be scientifically investigated. I was, therefore, genuinely pleased to find that the suggestion (which, by the way, would not have appeared had your policy been to suppress the opinions of anti-colourfeeders) so far elated one crest-fallen roosted as to make him buck up and crow so loud!

CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

Sir,—I am sorry to have to answer Mr. H. Moore's letter, "A Chortle from an Anti-Colourfoodite." I think it is a pity he did not add a little more to it in the way of sense, and then he might have signed himself "H. Moore-Sense" I should think he backed Senseless (not Willonyx).

G. PYE.

Sir,—Knowing me as you do, I am astonished that you should allow Mr. Moore to cast an aspersion upon my character by suggesting that I was in your company watching Willonyx win instead of attending to business on the occasion when Mr. Johnson told readers of CAGE BIRDS that colour-feeding spoils a Greenfinch. As a teetotaler, non-smoker, and anti-everything that is incompatible with a virtuous existence, I take it very hard indeed that I have to suffer thusly simply because on occasion I have told querists that Yellowhammers, Blackbirds, etc., need to be colour-fed to win under present-day conditions. Which happens to be true. Mr. Moore has evidently not noticed that the day of the colour-fed Greenfinch and Siskin seems to be passing, and I am delighted that this should be so, for I am not a lover of these species when "fed"; still, so long as colour-fed birds continue to be awarded the leading positions at the shows, for so long shall I consider it my duty to answer "Yes" when I am asked if it is necessary to colour-feed them for exhibition purposes. But, Mr. Moore, we do not use "hot" pepper, neither do we give only a mouthful of seed every three weeks. I don't exactly know what kind of implements those are which you term "odds bodkins"; but I feel that for making such misstatements (as you surely know them to be) you deserve to have a very long bodkin inserted into a tender portion of your anatomy. That would indeed be a "pretty pass, I ween!"

G. E. WESTON.

How to Get Rid of Mice.

Sir,—Can any of your numerous readers advice me as to the best way of getting rid of that awful little pest, the mouse, failing the usual remedies of cat or poison (I have two dogs!)? The mice follow the cages from room to room, and even get inside. They carefully avoid all traps.

ANTI-MOUSE.

[Our correspondent should have stated the kind of cages he refers to and how they are (presumably) supported against the wall. Mice are easily kept from climbing into stacks of breeding cages by the use of tin "guards" fixed to the supports.—Editor.]

The Seaham Harbour C.B.B.A. to be Resuscitated.

Sir,—We propose re-starting the Seaham Harbour and Dis. C.B.B.A., and should be glad if you will draw fanciers' attention to the fact that a meeting will be held on Nov. 11 at seven o'clock in the Station Hotel, Seaham Harbour. Will fanciers who are desirous of joining please attend to help make arrangements?

A Substantial Adjustable Seed Crusher.

Sir,—I have tried in vain to obtain a substantial and lasting seed crusher which can be adjusted so as to simply crack seeds, and not grind them and their husks into dust, or allow them to filter through untouched and whole. I know there are cheap and useful (in their way) articles on the market, but I do not find that they properly suit one's needs. A friend of mine has an old coffee mill—a large one, with an adjusting screw. It works excellently well. I have myself bought two or three old mills, but they have all been failures. Years ago someone wrote to the Fancy Press saying where a steel machine with adjustable rollers could be obtained for about 7s. 6d. I hope that good fancier will see this appear, and repeat himself in your next issue; or will someone else also help by giving information?

Some Details of the Next Crystal Palace Show.

Sir,—My committee have considered the suggestions received in answer to my letter published in your columns, and have decided that the classification be as at the last show, with the following additions:—New Classes:

Unflighted Yellow Norwich Hens.
Unflighted Buff Norwich Hens.
Unflighted Yellow and Buff Yorkshire Hens.
Any Variety White Canary.
Lesser Redpoll.
Mealy Redpoll and Twite.
Any Species Wagtail.
Two Cage Classes.

Mounted Cages—Bird and Cage, the cage furnished with natural surroundings appropriate to the bird shown. In this class the cages and decoration will be judged, not the birds, and the prizes will be given for suitability and artistic merit of the decoration. Any bird, British or Foreign, may be shown, singly or pairs, in these cages. I shall be pleased to hear from anyone willing to subscribe to the Special Prize Fund.

Proposed New Society for Juniper Green (Midlothian) and Dis.

Sir,—It has been decided to call a public meeting for the purpose of starting a new cage bird society for Juniper Green (Midlothian) and district. The meeting will be held in the schoolroom, Juniper Green, on Saturday, Nov. 18, at 8 p.m., when we hope to see a large turnout of fanciers and others. Everybody will be made welcome.

The W.C.O.S (Plymouth) Norwich Cup.

Sir,—Mr. Pope, in his letter of last week, states that Mr. House is not the only judge who has awarded the cup to a bird which could not fulfil the conditions. If I remember rightly, the rules at the time Mr. Pope is referring to stated "only young birds shall compete for cup." If a bird should happen to get its flights and tail damaged, and the owner has to draw them (the bird still being eligible to compete), any judge is liable to make a mistake, but I do not think there is any excuse where the rules distinctly state "all birds must be nonflighted."

Disgusted Exhibitor.

Sticking at the Half-prize-money Limit.

Are Members Sometimes to Blame?

Sir,—I should like to ask a question through the columns of your esteemed paper, Cage Birds, viz.: Should not all members of a society which is holding an open show make their entries first? I know of cases where they wait and see how many entries they get in a class before they enter. If they only receive eight entries in a class, the members do not enter; but if they only get five or six entries, then the members enter in up to eight. Of course, this might seem all right from a financial point of view on behalf of the society; but is it fair to the exhibitor who is willing to pay his entry, risk his birds, pay his carriage, to only receive half prize-money where "the oracle" has been worked? We could easily know that the members had entered first by the cage numbers issued to outsiders, and if this was done it would be more encouraging to exhibitors, as when a society holds an open show it should be based on justice, and the officials be just as willing to lose as gain, as they have the gate money, etc., to help them out. I should like to have other fanciers' views on the matter, as I am sure it concerns every one of us.

Work for the R.S.P.C.A.

The description of a recent stag-hunt at Dorking, must, one would think, give the R.S.P.C.A. and its subscribers something to which they might turn their thoughts, rather than busy themselves in trumping up charges against bird-keeping. In such a direction they would command the support of everybody. It appears that after having afforded the members of the Warnham Hunt a "splendid run of six miles" the thoroughly exhausted victim of "sport" crawled through the thoroughfares of Dorking and took refuge in a stable. The stag lingered for half an hour in agony before death mercifully released it from its sufferings. The Earl of Rosebery has stated in a recent speech that the most pathetic sight on earth is the look of a dying deer. The members of the Warnham hunt did not trouble themselves about the pathetic scene, for while their victim was in its death agony they were outside the stable congratulating each other (male and female) on the fast run which they had so greatly enjoyed.

The Leicester Case.

By the courtesy of Messrs. Fowler and Fowler, of Leicester, solicitors for the defendant in the brace-bird case reported last week, I am enabled to give further particulars of the evidence tendered on behalf of the R.S.P.C.A. There can be no wonder that the magistrates dismissed the case without calling on the witnesses for the defence.

The police constable who was first called swore that the brace had caused swelling and chafing, that the bird was obviously in pain, and, with the brace on, was much cramped. In cross-examination he admitted that he had had no experience of handling birds; he had taken ten minutes to remove the brace which was capable of being taken off in thirty seconds; he was unable to find (in court) any marks on the bird, even with the aid of a magnifying glass, and did not know how it was that the marks to which he had sworn had disappeared. The evidence of this constable was "corroborated" by another member of the police force, who said that there was blood on the brace when removed, although he could not explain how the blood had got there through a skin which was now admittedly unbroken.

Then came an inspector of the R.S.P.C.A., who swore that there were abrasions on the bird caused by the brace, and that the skin was slightly broken. He, also, could not explain the rapid disappearance of the alleged marks. Mr. Fowler asked him if he were aware that if the skin had been injured as alleged it could not have healed in the time which had elapsed, and he said he was not so aware. Then, after another constable had been called to bolster up the case,

Mr. Fowler, defending, said that the police thought at first that they had a case of catching Goldfinches, and when they found they had not, for the defendant had not been catching that day, they trumped up this charge of cruelty. He submitted that the only cruelty inflicted on the bird was at the hands of the police, who had taken more than ten minutes to remove the brace. He said that a brace, properly used, caused no inconvenience to a bird, in fact many pet birds in gentlemen's houses were braced instead of being kept in a cage. The magistrates dismissed the case, as above stated, and so ended another abortive prosecution.

A New Concession to Members.

Members will be interested to hear that arrangements are being made under which a reduced price of admission to some forthcoming shows will be charged to members of Cage Bird League who wear their badges or produce their membership receipts. Further reference to this matter will be found on our "Twitterings" page of this issue.

Posters for the Shows.

In response to the suggestions of several members, neat posters have been prepared conveying an invitation to visitors to shows to join Cage Birds League and assist to protect our hobby. Many Secretaries have already expressed their wish to have these posters for display at their exhibitions, and I shall be glad to forward copies to any applying for them. I hope, therefore, that all Secretaries will take advantage of the offer now made, and apply for the Posters forthwith.

Handbills for the Shows.

Many applications have been received from Hon. Secs. of Societies for a supply of our handbills for distribution, and parcels have been despatched to all applicants. A number will be sent gratis and post free to the Secretary of any forthcoming show who may write me for them, stating the number he will require. The name of the society will in each case be printed at the foot of the handbills sent. A copy of the bill was printed in last week's issue.

OUR LEAGUE SEALS.

These pretty seals are printed in gold and colours in exact fascimile of our Badges, and are an ornament to envelopes, notepaper, postcards, billheads, etc. All members should use them; price eightpence per hundred, post free. Smaller quantities at the hundred rate, but with one penny extra for postage.

OUR FREE BOOKLETS.

I have still some of each of the sixpenny pamphlets on British Bird Culture and on Canary and Hybrid Culture, and, as long as they last, one of either will be sent gratis to all new members applying for a copy at the time of joining. Old members who have not yet had a copy may receive one on sending a penny stamp for postage. Only one copy of either book can be sent, and when the stock in hand is exhausted, I may not be able to get a fresh supply, so applications (with membership fee) should be sent to me without delay.

The subscription to Cage Birds League is one shilling annually, and the badges sixpence or one shilling. The sixpenny badges are in three forms: (1) a button for coat lapel, (2) a pendant for watch chain, (3) a brooch for lapel, cycling cap, or for lady's wear. The badges at one shilling each are mounted in 9-carat rolled-gold, and are in two forms only: (1) a pendant for watch chain, (2) a brooch for a lady or for cycling cap or coat lapel. Members should distinctly state which form they prefer.

One-half of such donation or subscription may be allotted to any individual object of the* League.

VICE-PRESIDENTS.

The qualification for Vice-Presidentship is an annual subscription of not less than half a guinea, and one-half of this subscription may be allotted to either the Literature Fund, the Defence Fund, or towards the purchase of special prizes to be given at any show nominated by the subscriber. Failing any such special allocation, the subscription will be devoted to the development and progressive work of the League, to advertising its objects and promoting its ideals.

Mr. Cowgill has been appointed judge of cage birds at the Dublin P.P. and C.B.A. Show on Nov. 22 and 23, writes Mr. J. Gibson, the sec.

Middlesbrough report credits Mr. Walker with winning 1st, special, and 3rd in the young unflighted class; it should read Waller.—R. H. Waller (Whitby).

I had a pleasant surprise on getting Cage Birds of Oct. 28 to find my unflighted buff hen depicted on the front page. It is a splendid likeness, and reflects great credit on your artist. —J. W. Richardson (Newsham).

I was at Portsmouth C.B. Show on Oct. 19, and found it an ideal hall. The birds were well staged, and received every attention; while the management was all that could be desired, writes Mr. F. J. Evans (Hindhead). I had my prize-money within two days.

Liverpool O.S. Fourth Annual Show.

A Thorough Success.

The Color of Border Fancies Again Called into Question. Judge Passes Many Birds. Alleging Them to be of Doubtful Natural Color.

The 4th annual exhibition of the Liverpool O.S. took place on Nov. 3 and 4. The St. Martin's Hall, in which the function was held, is a very spacious and excellent building, nicely lighted, free from draughts, heated comfortably, admitted by all to border on the ideal. The schedule issued was a capital one, and the response to the liberal inducements brought the fine total of 890 entries. Most of the leading specialist clubs patronised the venture.

The catalogue opened with the Yorkshire Greens, and the "cream" of the birds were in evidence. The principal winners in the champion section were Messrs. McDermott, T. Rowlands, F. Handley, C. Hickson, H. A. Nimmo, and McNulty. The novice classes contained many very meritorious birds, Messrs. J. Brindle, R. Malone, Hamilton, Algie and B. Wood being represented by exceptionally smart exhibits. The Yorkshires made a very nice collection, Friend Mundell appearing happy in his selections. Splendid exhibits were shown by Messrs. F. Allen, Ogden Bros., W. Binns, W. H. Shackleton, W. Broughton, Dykes, and Thornton and Bower.

A Revival in Norwich Greens.

The Norwich Plainheads contained many well-known warriors, the most noted, perhaps, in these classes being the cl. yell. and unflighted cock and the unflighted cl. buff, shown by Mr. J. E. Davies. Others worthy of special mention were the cl. yell. hen (Mr. F. Cunliffe) the buff hen (Mr. T. H. Dent) and the cl. buff cock (Mr. R. Anderton). The amateur section filled well, real gems being on view belonging to Messrs. J. Edmondson (a cl. yell. capable of doing well in any company), W. Ordish (cl. buff in A1 order) and J. Owen (a charming buff hen). The Cinnamons were great, Mrs. F. E. Deacon, and Messrs. E. Godley, A. Bentley, and J. E. Hartup staging birds which fought out some rare battles without blood being shed. Mrs. Deacon had quite a field day, claiming no less than 4 firsts, 3 seconds, and other honours. A triumph for the "weaker" sex.

One of the events of the show was the revival of the Norwich Green. We noticed new fanciers showing in this variety. There is, we are sure, plenty of room for them, and with a little perseverance and a bit of luck thrown in they will soon come out on top. It is an established fact that the Norwich were on the down grade as regards numbers, and we require new aspirants in this variety. The quality has advanced wonderfully; this, no doubt, has been brought about by the discontinuance of the Crest-bred as a stock bird to produce size, which was the rage some time back. The type of the Green compares very favourably with the Clear Norwich. We were very pleased to see Mr. Deacon exhibiting again; he informed us he is compelled to put business considerations before his hobby.

The Talk of the Show.

Quite the talk of the show was the number of Border Fancies that were put out for alleged colour-feeding. The owners may say they have received no pepper, but the majority of those present seemed to think it was evident they had received something outside ordinary seed. There was a vast difference in some of the exhibits, even from the same stable. The head and neck of some of the Buffs was ablaze with colour. We heard a whisper at Manchester Show about this colour, one exhibitor even admitting marigolds were given the birds freely during their moult. The question arises, Is this colour-feeding? We should like to hear the exhibitors' views on this matter. The birds, both in quality and numbers, were quite up to former years. Some charming Greens were put down by Mrs. Fildes, Messrs. Johnson, McQuillan, Walker, and Docherty. Mr. Fildes had the honour of staging the best Green Canary in the show, with her Buff Green. It's a great feat to beat the Green Yorkshires and Norwich. We congratulate the lady.

The winning Goldie, we heard, was sold for £5 10s., while the sales totalled £26 10s. There was a splendid attendance. The long distance birds were away at 3 p.m., and all railway birds by 5.15 p.m., while the show was cleared by 6.30 p.m.

Some of the special winners are as follows:—Best Green, Mrs. Fildes; Border, Large; Members' Green York., T. Rowlands; do., Clear, McNulty; do., Nor. Green, Deacon; tea service, Mrs. F. E. Deacon; Most points, Greens, Rowlands; Clears, Binns; Novices, Pomfret and Brindle; Green Marks, Dykes; Green Nor., Deacon; Champ. Nor., J. E. Davies; Amat., Whitaker; Champ. Cinn., Mrs. F. E. Deacon; Novice, Hales; Green Bord., Johnson; most points Cl. Bord., Large; Mules, R. H. Jones; Brit., Captain Hurst; Hyde's, Lawson; Sandiford's, Godley.

Compliments from the President.

The President, Col. W. Hall Walker, M.P., officiated at the opening ceremony, his speech being one to greatly encourage the members, as he paid them many compliments on their magnificent show. The committee are a band of workers (not shirkers). Each and all did their level best to ensure success, and are well worthy of all the kind words we heard spoken of them. The staging was A1; every specimen could be seen at a glance. The stewards were Messrs. J. Walker (President Green Club), T. Rowlands, R. Parry (Ruabon), J. Wright, C. Robinson, W. Hales, V. H. Deacon, J. Lloyd, J. Thornton, E. Lawson (the worthy Treas.), G. B. Daniels (Chairman), G. Green, and T. McDermott. With such a list as this one can hardly wonder at the management being of such a superb character. Not a hitch did we note. Almost all the birds were got into the showroom the night previous, many of the society members working all Thursday night, staging same. A rule enforced in this go-ahead society is that when a person decides on joining the club he is bound to sign an agreement that open shows must be run each year. Last, but by no means least, are the worthy Secretaries, Messrs. Metcalfe and Hillmen. Pulling well together, controlling masterfully even the minutest details, always most courteous and obliging, and always doing the right thing at the right time, their efforts earn them the goodwill of everybody. They are truly great assets to the Society. The judges were Messrs. W. Mundell (Yorks.), W. Vardy (Champ. Nor.), W. Dormer (Cinn. and Amat. Nor.), A. Wellings (Bord. and Brit.). Their awards, which gave general satisfaction, were promptly made, and the prize cards up in very quick time.

WEST BROMWICH.

Fifth annual show, held Nov. 8th, and proved a great success. The entries came up extremely well, being an advance of nearly 100 over last year, which constitutes a record. Quality, too, was better than in any previous year, Norwich and Yorkshires being very strong in this respect, many high class exhibits being staged. The open Novice classes were really good, both in numbers and quality; several of the winners would have done well in the open. The venue was again the large room of the Dartmouth Hotel, which is quite free from any draughts. The exhibits were nicely staged, and we need hardly add they were well attended to by a keen and enthusiastic body of fanciers who did all possible for their well being and comfort. Mr. A. Jones is the popular Chairman of a strong Committee. Mr. W. G. Andrews is the hard working and energetic Hon. Sec., and he had everything in smooth running order and was most courteous to one and all: he seemed, naturally, pleased with the result of his labour. Mr. J. H. Payne made the awards, which appeared to please all.

BRIGHTON.

Encouraged by the success which attended their first venture, the committee of the Brighton C.B.A. put forth a well arranged schedule for this year's show, held on November 8th and 9th, in the North Road Concert Hall, a far better venue than last year's, and one which allowed of the birds being seen to far greater advantage. The morning was very dark, and all the judging had to be carried out by the aid of the electric light. There were three prizes in each class, but in classes of over 15 the vhc card carried with it a prize of 1s. 6d. The entry received was splendid, totalling as it did 516, 130 in advance of last year, and one upon which all concerned are to be most heartily congratulated, specially when one considers the number of shows being held in the South this week. Not only was the entry good, but the quality also was most excellent right through. Norwich had 163 in the seven classes, and a better lot has seldom been seen at a South Coast show. Mr. Wade's yellow tkd., which won in the novice, was a good one; although not staged so well as it might have been, it won well. Yorks. were indeed a sight; they totalled 114 in the seven classes, and so high was the quality and so keen the competition, that it was hard lines indeed only one set of cards could be awarded, as amongst the unnoticed crowd were many exhibits which doubtless have won and will win again. The conclusion we came to at some of the earlier shows was confirmed here, and there is no doubt that Yorks. in the South have made most rapid strides of late; type and quality have both been improved, whilst the extra length has not been obtained at the cost of increased size, quite the contrary, as greater length has been gained with improved type. The Novices were a strong lot, and the birds of Messrs. Alford, Redwood, and Hall could have given a good account of themselves in the open. Members were good, but not extraordinary. British birds made a grand show, and the great majority were excellently shown. The British Bird and Mule Club special fell to a very nice Dartford Warbler shown by Mr. Evans. Foreigners made an interesting section, and a nice display in the members' classes wound up a most satisfactory and pleasing show. The committee of management was composed of the following enthusiastic fanciers, and they attended to their duties in first-class style: Messrs. C. Pearson (chair), J. B. Absalon (vice-chairman), J. Roast (treasurer), A. Burtenshaw, J. Boxall, E. F. Brooks, E. and W. Cadman, F. Dandridge, A. Flook, H. James, R. Sharp, S. Sparks, A. Goble, T. A. Small, and W. Swaysland. Messrs. W. H. Gibbs and H. Akehurst made a most tactful, courteous, and indefatigable brace of secretaries, and under their direction everything went as merrily and smoothly as a wedding bell. Mr. C. A. House judged.

SWINDON.

The entry in the cage bird section at this nature, held Nov. 9, was but moderate. Exhibitors nowadays seem to fight shy of the mixed shows. The birds were accommodated on the platform and the steward in charge was careful of their needs, and did everything possible to make them comfortable. The Swimming Bath is an excellent building for the purpose of such a show, and the committee must have worked like galley slaves to get the show straightened out, considering the building was not available until mid-night on Tuesday. The Foreigners were a splendid collection, and a great attraction, and to the winner in this class was awarded the silver goblet for best bird in show. First prizes were withheld in classes of less than eight entries. Mr. T. J. Ambrose judged.

SOUTHEND.

Fifth annual show of the Southend and Southern Counties O.S. held Clarence Hall, November 8th and 9th. The hall is a fine building, and capable of holding, with comfort, a thousand or more birds. The entry this year did not come up to expectations in consequence of the date unfortunately clashing with other fixtures. Yorkshires formed the principal item, and these were of good quality. The Norwich were a good lot for quality and finish, although as a whole lacking somewhat in size. British birds were not numerous, but a few good ones faced the judge. A feature of the show was a drawing competition got up for the benefit of young fanciers; this received quite a large entry, including some very creditable works of art; the first prize went to Miss Margory Churchland for a good full-page work of many birds. The essay competition received a large number of entries, all the competitors being invited to attend the show. The show was opened by the Mayor of Southend, with the Vicar, the Rev. Dormer Pearce, in the chair. In the course of his remarks upon bird-keeping the Mayor said that no better object-lesson was wanted than the tameness and docility of the Skylark opposite him in a home-made cage of cheap construction, but strong and roomy; and while he saw such examples he could not but agree with those who kept birds under such admirable conditions. The show was capitally managed by Messrs. Pattrick and Franks, ably assisted by Messrs. Lockwood, Cundy, Cunnington, Hutson, Jeffries, Lee, Nichols, Askew, Bunney, and Lonsdale. Mr. W. C. Lockwood did the secretarial duties in a very able manner. Mr. Mundell judged Canaries and Mr. Dewhurst the remainder.

PONTYPRIDD.

First open show, held Nov. 8th, in the Victoria Hall, a capital place for an exhibition of this kind. The cage bird fanciers were fortunate in securing the very best position in the hall, with good light in the day-time and well lit by electricity at night. The entry was fairly good, especially as the society can only boast of about 4 or 5 C.B. members, and no doubt they will try and strengthen this section before next show season. The staging was splendidly arranged, and at a nice height. The judging in our section was rather late starting (the whole show being too much for one man to tackle in the time), hence the hall was somewhat crowded while the judge was still at work, making his task anything but a pleasant one; while reporting had to be conducted under adverse conditions, it being almost impossible to get near some of the classes. Under the capable management of Mr. Gordon McLucas (sec.) and a hard-working committee, everything passed off very nicely, and promised to end in a financial success. We hope so, as the society well deserves this to be the case. Mr. J. N. Harrison judged.

LOWESTOFT F.S.

Twenty-third annual show, held Nov. 8 and 9, in the South Lowestoft Baths, which makes a very fine hall, being very roomy, while an excellent light is obtained. The exhibits were exceptionally good, especially the Crest and C.B. classes. Mr. Corke's Crest won the sp. for best exhibit in show, and Mr. Hart that for best Norwich Plainhead. The show was opened by the Mayor of Lowestoft, J. E. Thirtle, Esq., supported by many ladies and gentlemen. The energetic and able secretary, Mr. E. L. A. Crow, with Mr. Hart Kirk, and several of the committee were very busy with the birds, and the management was splendid. Mr. W. E. Greeves placed the awards, and gave every satisfaction.

Successful Debut of the Sheffield O.S.

A FLYING START.

A Huge Attendance of Bird-lovers and a Fine Entry of 664 Birds.

The initial exhibition of the Sheffield O.S. took place on Nov. 3 and 4, in the Cutlers' Hall (the leading hall of the cutlery capital). Two exceptionally spacious rooms, splendidly lighted, beautifully decorated, heated by modern apparatus, and perfectly ventilated, were utilised for the staging of the exhibits. In one room the Canaries were on view; in the other the foreign and British birds and Mules; truly a capital arrangement. This progressive and enterprising Society issued an exceptionally good schedule, and were favoured with the patronage of some of the leading specialist clubs. As a result, there was gathered together a galaxy of "birdy talent" for visitors to feast their optics upon. A walk round the show room convinced every one of the excellence of the birds—indeed it is many a long day since the "sooty citadel" was invaded by such an array of feathered gems.

Yorkshires opened the capitally arranged catalogue, and were of a remarkably meritorious description. The breeders of the "long and slim 'uns" had many studies to dwell upon—truly a magnificent collection. The novice classes filled exceptionally well. Norwich contained many stylish and characteristic specimens, and the novice section here also pleased greatly, two outstanding birds being the winning Yell. and the Cl. Buff. Crests and C. Breds were admitted to be a grand lot. A local enthusiast, Mr. J. W. Crookes, claimed 2 firsts, 2 seconds, 1 third, besides other honours, staging some real beauties.

Delighted Everybody.

British and Hybrids held several of the finest examples known at the present time, and delighted hosts of visitors with their lovely colours and dainty dresses, a sight to be remembered for many a long day. The Yellow Greenfinch-Canary Mule, shown by Mr. Somerfield, scored again, this making its 34th first prize. What a record! Foreign birds were both numerous and gorgeous—the special attraction of the Festival. "Full houses" were the order of the day (and night) around the benches on which they displayed their marvellous plumage. Mr. Thos. Taylor (Gateshead) with his yellow-wing Blue Sugar Bird, gained the spls. for best and rarest in the show. Other spl. winners are as follows: Messrs. Dykes, Wilkinson and Elliott, Ogden Bros., A. Cooper, Morrison, Craven (2), Edwards, W. N. Turner, Mallinson and Son, J. P. Moir, G. Wilson, T. Taylor (3). J. W. Crookes (2), A. J. A. Marley, J. Milne, P. Walsh, R. Bond, Martin and Archer, A. Somerfield, W. Baxby, F. Howe, J. M. Walsh, and G. Fletcher, Sandifords, E. Robinson, Ramsdens, C. E. Hall.

Speaking of the management, this was remarkably fine throughout; every detail, large and small, was judiciously attended to. Everything went as smoothly as the proverbial marriage bell. The staging, three-tier high, had been carefully thought out, so that every bird could be seen at a glance, and those responsible for this arrangement are to be complimented. Mr. T. Dawn, the worthy chairman, is "true steel," and the exertions he put forth in the good of the cause were wonderful. On the Saturday night the perspiration fairly ran out of him. Mr. J. A. T. Woodall (vice-chair) is also a "willing horse," getting through a great amount of work without a murmur, while the treasurer, Mr. J. W. Drabble, is the right official for this very important office. The committee consists of well-known and practical fanciers, all of whom put their shoulders to the wheel, every praise being due to them.

Two Well-Tempered Blades.

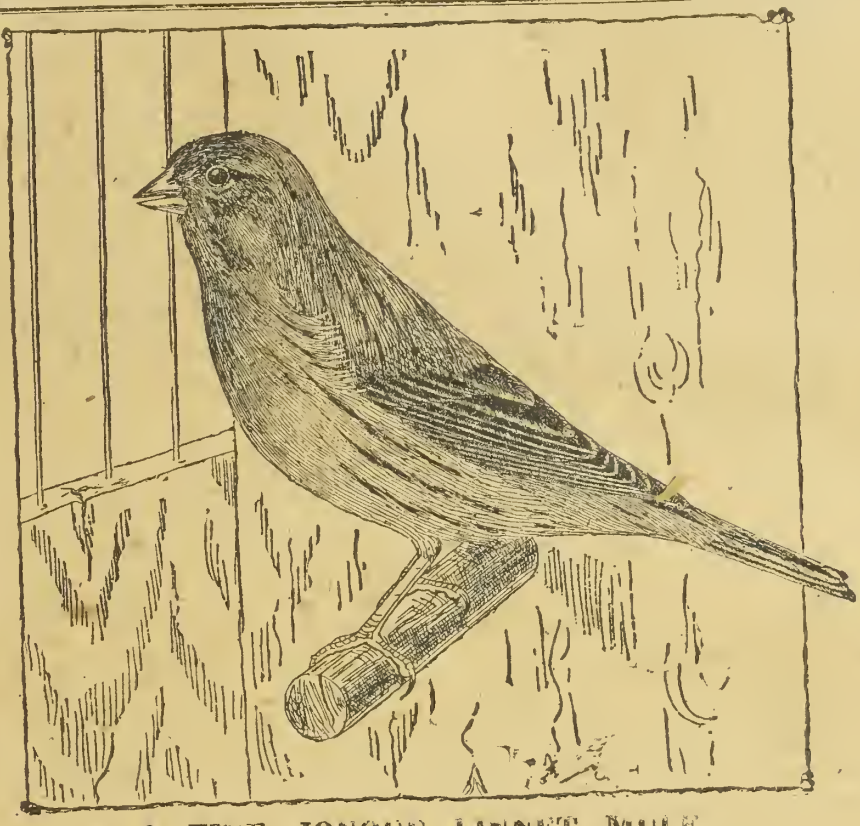
The secretaries are Messrs. T. Bishop and R. Colton. What workers, to be sure. Their services were heavily called upon, but they controlled all details masterfully, always kept "top side" of their duties, and were ever courtesy personified to all who claimed their attentions. Decidedly a brace of officials who know to a nicety the essentials which go to the successful running of an open venture. The Society is fortunate to have them at command.

Amongst the very many visitors we noted J. Binney, Esq. (Clerk of the Peace of Sheffield), Dr. J. G. Mylan and wife (Sheffield), Dr. A. M. Deane (Dewsbury), Rev. J. Smith (vicar of Baslow), Coun. and Mrs. P. Benson (Sheffield), Messrs. J. W. Ramsden (London), J. Beswick (Stockport), Simpson (Worksop), H. Wilkinson (Stocksbridge), A. Towl (secretary of Grimsby), G. Bescoby (secretary of Doncaster), and many others whose names escape our memory. Mr J. C. Barnes, here, there and everywhere, chatting to birdy friends from far and near, seemed to be spending a happy time.

A. Balfour, Esq. (Master Cutler) officiated at the opening ceremony. His speech was most appropriate, and he paid some well-deserved compliments to the officials. Mr. T. Dawn (chairman) presided. Dr. J. G. Mylan, well-known as a lover of foreign birds, proposed a vote of thanks (seconded by Mr. J. A. T. Woodall) to the Master Cutler for his kindness in honouring the Society and its show.

The Hobby for All.

Dr. Mylan declared that everyone should have a hobby, and he found none more suitable and fascinating and health-giving than the keeping and studying of cage birds, and most particularly British and foreign birds. Mr. Balfour thanked the audience for their presence, and proposed a vote of thanks to the visitors, coupling Mr. J. W. Ramsden's name with it (he had "stepped in" to see the show), and the judges for the manner in which they had performed their very difficult duties that day. Mr. Ramsden returned thanks for the kindly reference to the visitors, and Mr. Chas. Houlton for the kind appreciation of the judges' services.



The stewards, up-to-date in their methods, were Messrs. G. Fletcher, A. Somerfield, J. Mace, and T. Turner, a quartette who acted promptly and well. Mr. A. Somerfield and his young sons attended to the feeding and watering of the whole of the exhibits in first-rate style. The judging was in the hands of Messrs. J. H. Roe (Canaries), and C. Houlton (British, Foreign, and Hybrids).

STONEHOUSE, N.B

Fourth annual show held Public Hall, November 4th. The hall is an admirable one for the purpose, being lighted from both sides and roof. The exhibits were staged down the centre of the hall, and on one side. The executive might perhaps do one better next season by having the cage bird section either at the end or both sides of the hall. The duties of secretaries were in the able hands of Messrs. Hamilton and W. Melvin, who are both young, but have nothing to learn in the matter of running a show successfully. They are backed up by a few hard working stewards, headed by their president, vice-president and treasurer (Messrs. Cuthbertson, Mather and Sorbie respectively). The entry all over was much the same as last year's, but the quality was better still, some prominent exhibits being amongst the winners in all sections. Perhaps the British bird section might be said to be the best. In the Border section some of the exhibits arrived late. We learn that they were sent by Mr. T. Halliday, and Mr. McKenzie; in the former instance some of the birds arrived in time, and bis buff foul hen won the B.F.C.C. medal. Mr. McKenzie's birds did not arrive until judging was finished. Mr. A. Chalmers (Kirkintilloch) placed the cards in the Norwich section, and conjointly with Mr. J. Patterson (Cbirnside) in the British section; Mr. Patterson judged the Borders; and their awards left no room for grumbling. The visitors simply "swarmed" in, and the hall was well filled in the afternoon and evening.

CHELMSFORD.

Unhappily the cage bird section of the Chelmsford O.S. show, which was held in the Corn Exchange on Nov. 7th and 8th, with the other sections had a decreased entry, whilst the quality with few exceptions was not as good as usual. Mr. Rippon won the special for the best bird in the show with a remarkably fine yellow Norwich, a bird of grand type and quality. The birds were nicely staged on one side of the hall away from all draughts, and in a most excellent light. Messrs. Ballard and Rippon, the hon. secs., had all the arrangements in most excellent order, and in these gentlemen our Chelmsford friends have two grand officials, and it is a matter for deep regret that Essex fanciers did not rally round them in a stronger manner. Mr. T. Heath judged in his usual efficient manner, and his awards were well received.

BOURNEMOUTH.

Twentieth annual show of the Bournemouth C.B.A. held Nov. 7 and 8, Central Hall. The show was opened by Dr. Hosker. The entry was very good, numbering over 700 exhibits, and some of the very best were on view. The British bird section was the best we have seen in the south this season. The hall, though well lighted, was not quite large enough there not being much room for visitors. The management was of the best, and Mr. Brooke (the sec.) and his committee worked very hard for the comfort of both birds and visitors; he is an able organiser. Mr. J. Robson judged.

BO'NESS.

Boness and Dis. F.A. 7th annual show held Masonic Hall, 4th November. This hall is well situated, being only a few seconds' travel from the station; it is well lighted by large windows on the south and north sides, with entrance on the west end, and meeting the eyes of all who enter is a fine stage at the east end of the hall. Here was a fine display of beautiful cups, namely the Ure challenge cup, the Verney cup, and the Scottish British Bird and Mule Club cup, and the exhibits, which put the finishing touch on the scene, were of excellent quality. Norwich were a fine lot, and Borders were well represented. The British contained some of the best we have seen, and we must make special mention of the grand team of Softbills exhibited by Mr. Taylor (Glasgow), a splendid Bullfinch cock exhibited by Mr. Bald (Bathgate), and the large Goldie-Bullie Hybrid shown by Mrs. McLennan (Edinburgh). The office-bearers were a fine lot of fellows, composed entirely of hard-working men and real fanciers. Hon. Pres., H. Lloyd Verney, Esq.; Pres., Mr. T. Bell; Vice-Pres., Mr. T. Scotland; Sec., Mr. T. Cameron is a fine chap, full of energy, most obliging, and keeps everything moving just like clockwork. The society could not have chosen a better man for the duties a Secretary has to perform. The treasurer is Mr. R. Stevens. Committee: Messrs. J. Spowart, J. M'Gillivray, T. Scotland, W. Moreland, R. Boyd, J. Baird, W. Masson, W. Newbigging, J. M'Gregor, T. Brown, C. Liddle, W. Blair, J. Kema, G. Duncan, J. Baird, R. Liddle, J. Struthers, J. MARKINCH.

The Colour Question in Border Fancies. Rumoured Boycott of a Judge.

Thirty-eighth annual show, held Masonic Hall, 4th November. The entries were a shade under in number this year, most noticeably in the Border Fancy section where there were but 28 entries in 9 classes. Mr. Lambie was officiating, and he judged Dysart show the previous Saturday, where he shelved certain birds, alleging they were of doubtful natural colour, i.e., showing signs of being colour-fed. We heard it rumoured that the falling off of entries to-day must be attributed to this shelving of the birds, and that the Border men must have made up their minds to boycott him. Mr. Lambie also took the Norwich, but in this section he had a capital following, some rare quality birds being staged. The Scotch Fancy classes filled fairly well, and the quality was something grand, some of the winners of the City shows being forward and again coming out on top. The Scots Fancies were judged by Messrs. J. Black (Arbroath) and J. Stenhouse (Kelty). The British Bird section did not fill very well, a thing we cannot account for, several classes having to be cancelled. Mr. Bald (Bathgate) judged this section, and his awards were well received. The Society officials were put to very much inconvenience by the Postal authorities making a serious blunder with the exhibitors' cage numbers, a great many having gone astray, and this gave the society a lot of extra work to do on the show morning; but they had everything ready in good time for judging. The society are well favoured by having a capital set of fanciers at the head of affairs. Mr. Mitchell, the Secretary, is the right man in the right place, and he is ably supported by a hard-working committee, who attended to the wants of all the birds with right good will. The hall in which the show was held is very suitable. We thought the staging a little bit too high for the birds. The show was fairly well patronised during the afternoon.

GREAT YARMOUTH.

Great Yarmouth F.S. annual show held Corn Hall, Howard Street, November 2nd and 3rd. It is a very nice hall for the occasion, being well lighted and free from draught; and although there were fewer entries than last year there was an improvement in the quality of the exhibits; we noticed some very nice young Crests and Crest-breds, which should make up very fine another year, and the Norwich were an improvement on last year's. We noticed our old friends, Messrs. H. Smith and F. Barton, busy attending to the birds, and great credit is due to the secretary, Mr. Trory, and all the committee for the arrangement of the exhibits, and we hope next year will see a larger entry, which the committee well deserve. That well-known judge, Mr. J. Mackley, placed the awards, and gave entire satisfaction.

LEICESTER (Hand-in-Hand).

Show held Nov. 4 and 6, Assembly Room of the "White Swan," Market Place. The entry was not quite so large as last year, when there was a record show for this society; this year it was about equal with former years. Norwich came up in good numbers all round, and some very nice birds were staged in most of the classes. Some of the winners could do with a little more size, and with the same shape and quality and carriage, we should see standard specimens. The leading birds in the Yorkshire classes were very smart. In the Lancashire class (12 entries) there were to be seen some remarkably good birds in grand order. The novice open Norwich were very good, particularly the buffs. Hybrids were well represented, and we noticed two clear Goldie-Canaries, two Canary-Bullfinches, besides other choice birds. British birds were very good, led by a nice lot of Goldfinches. Bullfinches were a strong class, and the winner was a gem for condition. Linnets were not so good as we are used to seeing amongst Leicester fanciers, and they want a little more attention. The Siskin-Redpoll and Twite class was most notable for the number of fine moulted Redpolls. The A.O.S. Hardbill class was led by a good Hawfinch, a fine Bramble, and a pretty Yellow Bunting 3rd. A splendid Redwing led the Softbills large class with a very fine Ring Ouzel second. Mr. Robson judged Canaries, and Mr. Chas. Houlton the Hybrids, British, and Foreign birds. The light was good, and judging was over in fine time. The Sec. (Mr. W. Freestone) got through his work well; he is a sticker and no doubt about it, and was ably assisted by Messrs. Hale, Moores, Sarson, Walton, Kilsby, Pole, Peberdy, Hulse, Noakes, etc.

EAST HAM.

East Ham C.B.S. members' first annual show held Nov. 4th, Hartley Street Schools. For a first venture the show was a huge success, entries numbering well over 200. It was a most interesting show, some birds being staged that are not often seen at members' gatherings. The Yorkshires were well represented, and although there were some good birds among them, they hardly came up to the Norwich for all-round merit. The latter were very typical, well fed, and the majority well staged. In the matter of staging, the Yorkshire exhibitors bardly appear to grasp the importance of showing a bird to the best advantage, many being put back in consequence. Mr. South's fine yellow won special for best Yorks., which it well deserved, being quite typical with neat head and wings. Some fine Hybrids were on view, the pointed Goldie-Canary exhibited by Mr. Parker and the Goldfinch-Bullie by Messrs. Morris and Adams being much admired. Mr Walker staged a very fine Chaffinch, and Mr. Oliver a smart Siskin and a highly polished Starling. The team of Softbills shown by Messrs. Morris and Adams were quite high-class. The show was ably managed by Mr. B. C. Smith, who was the right man for the job; he was ably assisted by Messrs. Fox, Oliver, Morris, Adams, and others. The exhibition should be quite a financial success, as many visitors turned up during the day. The president (Alderman J. Brooks, J.P.) kindly opened the show, and made a few appropriate remarks respecting the good our hobby does in the homes of fanciers. The handsome cups belonging to the society were competed for, and were won by Mr. Fox (Novice), and Messrs. Morris and Adams (Hybrids and British). The latter also secured spl. for best in show with a beautiful Lesser Whitethroat. Mr. H. Norman judged.

YORK.

York C.B.S. 6th annual show held Nov. 4th. The management was again able to secure a room in the Exhibition Buildings, the most perfect place for a cage bird show we have seen; it is a big, lofty room, quite free from draughts, and has a nice even temperature. Entries came up splendidly; in fact, they constituted a record for the society, numbering in all 429. The Norwich P.C. allotted their patronage here, and 166 Norwich were staged, some real toppers being put down. Messrs. Pickering and Wright won Mr. Sandiford's medal for hottest fed bird. Mr. Zimmerman won the silver cup and teapot for most points; Mr. Moffat won silver medal for second most points. The staging was splendid, reflecting every credit on the management. The plants, which were arranged amongst the birds, made quite a picture. Mr. Thompson (secretary) and Mr. Sissons (his assistant) had everything well under control, and were most ably assisted by a band of real hard-working fanciers in Messrs. Campling, Chittenden, White, and Wright. The chairman (Mr. Zimmerman) was always there when wanted. The committee soon found out that the number of entries were too many for one judge, and so called upon Mr. Battye to assist Mr. Hirst. Judging was then over by half-past one o'clock, and the awards of both were well received. Marked catalogues were to be had early, which makes things very easy for visitors.

The Latest Tyne-side Success.

Fine Entry at Blaydon: Good Display in all sections: Management A1 Workers.

Eighth annual show held Nov. 3rd and 4th. The venue on this occasion was the Council Schools, and although not so well adapted for the purpose as the Drill Hall (where it was originally intended to hold the show) it answered the purpose very well, the worst fault being the somewhat poor light at night. The staging was very nicely arranged, being in rows the full length of the room, with the Foreign Birds and Large Britishers at the end of the room. The only fault, if it can be termed a fault, was the length of the rows, and we would like to see the society adopt the method employed by other large societies of having breaks here and there in the rows of staging, to enable visitors to cross from one side to the other without having to travel right round. The whole of the arrangements were in the capable hands of the genial chairman, Mr. J. Hands, who acted as show manager, and the fact that not the slightest hitch occurred is ample testimony to the thoroughness and care bestowed by this well known fancier upon everything under his charge. In Mr. G. Havver the society possess a secretary who is, without a doubt, a most capable official, with a thorough knowledge of the duties appertaining to his position, and the manner in which he gets through his work is a credit both to himself and the society, while his quiet, courteous, unassuming manner, combined with his willingness to oblige everybody, makes him deservedly popular with all who come in contact with him. These two gentlemen were ably assisted by a grand body of fanciers, composed of Messrs. T. Brown (vice-chairman), J. W. Clark (treasurer) and G. T. Ellwood, G. Simpson, J. Carr, J. H. Cross, T. Leek, J. Clark, C. Vallans, J. Lee, J. A. Carr, R. Pattinson, T. Fletcher, C. Graham, J. Dobson, G. Dobson, W. Purvis, J. Davidson, R. Havis, J. Fyson, and J. Hillary. Entries came up well, totalling 757, a matter of 8 or 10 over last year's total. The winner of the Challenge Cup for best bird in show, Mr. W. Marshall securing this honour with a grand Crest. British, Mules and Foreign Birds were only moderate in number, but quality was quite up to the average, and here again many well-known winners were staged and attracted a great deal of attention. The principal special prize winners were: Challenge Cup for best bird in show, W. Marshall; Northern Crest Club specials: Best Old Crest, W. Marshall; best Young Crest, J. G. Hutchinson; best young C.B., R. S. Bewick; Northern Border Club's medal for best young Champion Border, J. Johnston; Mr. G. Dobinson took Sandiford's medal for hottest fed bird, while Hyde's special went to Mr. J. Hands. Members' classes made a fine display, and several grand birds were shown here. In this section the silver cup presented by Messrs. Walter Wilson, Ltd., for most points with three nominated birds was secured by Mr. W. H. Butler. Despite the threatening weather of the morning the day kept fine, though cold, and the attendance of visitors on Saturday afternoon was very good, and gave satisfaction to the officials. The judges were, Messrs. J. Robson and H. W. Battye.

SANDY.

A nice little show was that of the Sandy Fur and Feather Society, which was held in the Town Hall on November 4th. Some very nice exhibits were staged, and the competition was fairly keen. The competition for the points cup was very keen between Messrs. Palmer, Kingstone, and Thompson, only three points separating the three, and Mr. Palmer being the lucky winner with sixty points. Messrs. Kent and Milliner made a most excellent pair of secretaries, and the stewards, under the direction of Mr. Western, the chairman, worked hard and well. Mr. C. A. House judged.

BRECHIN.

Once more we have the pleasure of recording another very successful show under the auspices of the Brechin C.B.S. This is the 48th annual show. The Society has weathered many a storm and is still going strong. The show was held on Nov. 4th, in the usual venue, the Templars' Hall, an ideal show-room, which has been so often described. The room was somewhat cold, and consequently many of the birds in open cages did not do themselves justice when judged; otherwise the results in several cases would probably have been different. Entries were a bit down on last year's, the numerous shows held in this part at this time no doubt affecting the entries. Brechin might be termed the "Border City" of Scotland. Borders certainly came out well, and were the feature of the show. The quality all over was of a high order, the competition being very keen in all the classes. Mr. Gray, who came in for a good share of the spoils, won the challenge cup presented by Mr. G. J. Melville. The Norwich classes contained some really high-class specimens, many of the classes being keenly contested. Mr. Harris (Montrose) was cup winner in this section with an unflighted cock. The British on the whole were a good collection. Mr. G. Mitchell makes an efficient, courteous, and practical secretary, and is ably assisted by a hard working committee of true fanciers. The Norwich were judged by Mr. W. Bishop (Stirling); Borders by Mr. J. Hutchison (Dysart); wild Birds, etc., by Mr. J. Stewart (Arbroath), and on the whole the awards gave every satisfaction.

Combined show of the above-named societies held October 28th in the Grindley Street Hall. It was the 64th show of the former society and the 26th of the latter. The secretaries, Messrs. R. Lile (of the Western) and A. Stavert (of the O.S.), are a brace of able workers who deserve every praise for the success of the venture. They were admirably assisted by Mr. Tom Ballantyne (the president of the Western Society) and Mr. W. Allan (president of the E.O.S.). The entry for the Western Society was 330—a record number—and the judges were Messrs. J. Carson and J. Hogg (for Scotch Fancies), J. Thomson (for Border Fancies), and J. Adams (for Norwich and British). For the Edinburgh O.S. an entry of 294 birds faced Messrs. Carlaw and Park (Scotch Fancies), and A. Cochrane (the remainder). TUNSTALL.

Third annual show of the Tunstall C.B.S. was held On Nov. 2nd. The "Crown and Anchor" Hotel, Market Square, was the venue. The large room in which the exhibits were very tastefully and judiciously staged, is well lighted and spacious, and is absolutely free from draughts. The chief feature was the Norwich section, the birds here being truly a choice collection. The British birds also were greatly admired. The Novice and Members' classes contained some stylish exhibits, many being capable of doing well in the "higher circles." The committee of management consists of the following enthusiastic and hard working officials, viz., Messrs. Potts, Jephson, Brough, Furnival, Symcox, Jones, Evans, James, Moseley, Averill, Wilkinson, Johnson, Smith, Hassall, Hughes, J. Parr, and A. Parr. Messrs. Evans and Brough, the worthy secs., work well together, are courteous and obliging, and were always doing the right thing at the right time. The stewards were Messrs. Pitchford (Stoke C.B.S. Secy.), Podmore, Hassel, Davies and Greatback, junr., who all worked magnificently and assisted in no mean manner to the success of the carnival. The exhibits of Messrs. J. E. Taylor (Bradford) and W. G. Poole (Stratford-on-Avon) arrived too late for judging—12.35 p.m. when these exhibits arrived—the railway company again, we presume! Judging commenced early and cards were quickly placed. The show opened in good time. Mr. J. C. Barnes (Sheffield) judged, and his awards were well received. Special winners:—Best Yell. Nor., Mr. W. Bowyer; Buff, Mr. R. Hall; Yell. Yorks, Messrs. Wilkinson and Elliott; Buff, Mr. T. Hawley; Yell. Nor. (Novice), Mr. H. Evans; Buff, Mr. J. W. Dalsell; Yell. Yorks. Novice, Mr. G. Lea; Buff, Mr. G. BEDFORD.

Ninth annual show of the Bedford and Beds. C.B.S., held Town Hall, Nov. 2nd. Entries were not so numerous as in previous years, but the quality was very much in evidence, and there was a really grand show of Norwich. The opening ceremony was performed by Mrs. W. Roff. Mr. A. Keech captured the challenge cup for most points; in fact it was difficult for anyone else to get a look in. It was worth going a long way to see the magnificent collection of Mr. Timaeus' Foreigners, which made a show by themselves. The Committee, ably led by the Chairman, Mr. H. Gentle, and the Secretary, Mr. E. Wiggins, had everything well in hand and cards were up before dinner. Mr. Geo. Gardner made the awards, and gave general satisfaction; he went for colour and type.

GREAT SHOW by the Y.C.B.S. OF IRELAND

A RECORD ENTRY.

The Yorkshire C.B.S. of Ireland third annual show was held on Nov. 2nd and 3rd at the Central Hall, Westmorland Street, Dublin. The venture was a huge success, the entries being in excess of that of any previous show. Yorksbires naturally were the backbone of the exhibition, most of the best birds of the Green Isle being staged, and among them were some wonderfully good specimens. This variety is making rapid strides towards popularity over the water, and each year sees an advance in type and quality. There is also a great improvement in head qualities, position, and length, although Irishmen have still something to learn in the matter of staging. Mr. Devins (Sligo) put up a fine show and did exceedingly well with them, although he just missed winning the Rung Cup, his clear buff hen making a good fight of it with Mr. Hawkin's yell. cock, a bird of fine length and quality of feather. Mr. Neville, of Cork, staged a topping clear bird, which was much admired. The yellows generally were better than the buffs. The novices made a grand display, the classes provided for them were well filled. Some of the winners were quite high class. The chubby Norwich do not appear to find much favour with the men of Dublin, as only two classes were provided. The birds, however, were of good merit and quite typical. Mr. Faith (Banbridge) supplied the leader in both cases. The British birds were a fine collection, and a good deal of interest was centred in this section, as the competition for the British bird trophy was expected to be unusually keen. Mr. Mulcahy (Dublin) proved to be the winner, but with only two points to spare from Mr. Birse, who staged some very fine birds, his grand Hawfinch securing special for best in section. This is the third year Mr. Mulcahy has won in the British bird classes, and the trophy therefore becomes his own property. The show was splendidly managed. Mr. C. Holley has apparently quickly grasped the duties of secretary, and everything went off exceedingly well under his guidance. He was assisted by a good committee; among them we particularly noticed Messrs. Fry, Gillen, Sheridan, Cloke, Stewart, and others. The fine hall was well patronised by visitors during both days. Mr. H. Norman judged all classes, and had a big task, but was so well served that he got through in good time.

MARYHILL.

Maryhill and Dis. O.C. 35th annual show, held Burgh Hall, 4th Nov. Office bearers: President, Mr. H. Pringle; vice-president, Mr. J. W. Anderson; treas., Mr. A. Hannah; sec., Mr. R. A. G. McKissock. Judges: Messrs. A. Clark (Rutherglen), and T. Park (Govan). Entries were not quite so numerous compared with former years, and in some instances birds that were entered were not forward, owing, no doubt, to the unfavourable weather conditions. Members have had, many of them, a had breeding season; still the birds staged were a fair average lot. Cup for best bird in hall fell to Mr. G. G. Aitkenhead's yell. pied cock. The same gentleman was very lucky in being the owner of the best bird of opposite sex, in winning the "Jardine cup." Sec. McKissock had everything connected with the show in splendid working order. In the earlier part of the day visitors were few in number, but things were improved further on in the afternoon. The judges' decisions seemed to give general satisfaction.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.

Sixth annual show of the Stockton-on-Tees C.B.S. held November 4th, Temperance Hall. It was our privilege to see a really good show. The hall is a capital place for an exhibition of this kind, and with a capable secretary like Mr. J. W. Lowes, and a hard working committee, this society can look forward to the future with confidence. Mr. Lowes informed us that the committee had worked so hard that they had sold sufficient tickets beforehand to make the show a financial success if they did not take a penny at the doors, and as they had a capital "gate" we saw nothing but smiling faces amongst the officials. In addition to the sec., Mr. Freeman (chairman) was in evidence all day with the committee, Messrs. Saunders, Nicholson, Nicholson junr., Yeatcs, Ducas, Acheson, Angell, Bean, Walker, Dawson, Broadbent, Shepherd, Briscoe, Chesworth, Tait, Pearson, Foster, Massheder, Mason, Rounds, Buckley, Wheeler, Riley, Clemnett and Galloway. Yorkshires with six classes were a grand lot, both in numbers and quality. Norwich with an equal number of classes, were a really nice display. Mules and Hybrids were strong in numbers, and many grand birds were on view. British birds, as is usual in this district, were a hot lot, and competition was very keen. Mr. Nicholson had a white Sparrow on view in this section. Foreigners were a lovely lot, and had a crowd of admirers round them all day. Mr. Halliday judged Yorkshires, Mr. T. Dixon Norwich, Mr. Tams British and Foreign, Mr. T. Hill members' Canaries, and Mr. F. Marwood members' British.

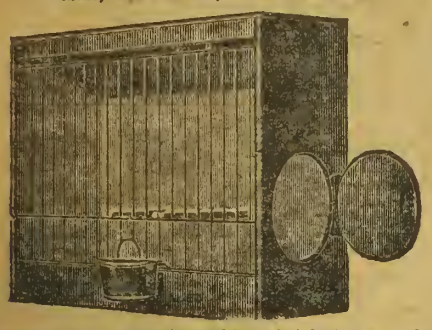
NOT ONE OR TWO



but hundreds upon hundreds of testimonials have been published in this paper from purchasers of my catching appliances. I do not wish to boast, but have no hesitation in saying that I have published more testimonials in one week than any other net maker has in a year. Surely this fact should prove to you who is really the man to supply genuine articles at rock bottom prices. Everything I sell is guaranteed exactly as described, and you are at liberty to smash them up if you find them not so, and I will refund every penny of your money. Clap-nets made from superfine thread netting, ¾in. mesh, 3 yards long, 5½ft. deep and 4ft. fly, 4/- pair, ditto 4 yards, 5/-; 5 yards, 6/-; 6 yards, 7/-; 7 yards, 8/-; 8 yards, 9/-; 9 yards, 10/-; 10 yards, 11/- per pair. All clap-nets have two nets to the pair, each net guaranteed size as stated, and all are fitted complete with hemp lines, stave poles, and pegs ready for immediate use. These nets are the only clap-nets on the market that are geared or armed all round, and have no old-fashioned socket and iron arrangement about them, the fittings I supply being far better and easier to work. Sparrow-nets, made with extra stout ¾ mesh netting, fitted on best quality bamboo poles, with latest improved elbows, 15ft. poles, 5/6; 17ft., 6/-; 19ft., 6/6 complete. Latest improved self-acting spring net traps (all metal, not a particle of wood about them) 24ins. long 18ins. wide, 1/- each, ditto 18 by 14ins., 9d. each. These net traps are different to any other on the market, and although far larger, may be carried in the pocket, and are invisible when set. May be used with call bird inside them, and do not go off with a bang. Carriage on these traps, 3d. extra. Round or square topped call cages, all wire tops and wood bottoms, 4d. each, 3/- dozen. Loose thread netting, as used in above clap-nets, 7ft. deep, 3d. yard, 9ft. deep, 4d. yard, 12ft. deep, 5d. yard. Lark netting, 1½in. mesh, 10ft. deep, 5d. yard. Extra stout netting for use on rough ground, ¾ mesh, 9ft. deep, 5d. yard; ¾in. mesh netting, 8ft. deep, 5d. yard; all netting post free. Real original Japanese bird lime, guaranteed absolutely strongest made, and only lime to hold birds in rain or fog, ¼lb. 6d., ½lb. 10d., 1lb. 1/6; sample 3d., all postfree. Please note this is the original Japanese lime as advertised and sold by myself only for years past, and must not be confused with any other so-called Japanese lime offered by persons who have merely copied name of my lime, but cannot copy quality (see testimonials below). Genuine hand-spun pure hemp, pull lines, guaranteed strong as boat lines, and not to stretch or snarl, 68 yards long, ½lb. weight, 1/4 each, carriage paid. Lark nets, stave poles, flirt pegs, and everything required by catchers always in stock, but before you buy a stitch of anything send stamp for my full printed list, which gives hints on net making. Following letters are entirely unsolicited and open for inspection at any time. "40 Cae Felin Street, Llanhilleth, Nov. 1st.—Sir,—Received netting, and am highly pleased with it. It is good value for money. I shan't trouble to knit any more while I can buy it at that price for the netting itself is cheaper than I can buy thread for it.—Yours, M. Brelsford." "49, Bourne Avenue, Boston Road, Windsor, October 1st.—Sir,—Please send 18 yards netting. I have had five years' hard wear from last lot, and now it is better than some so-called best on the market, and I have caught hundreds of birds with it.—Yours, Wm. Taylor." "10, Stevens Yard, Newbiggin, Malton, October 10.—Sir,—Please send pair clap nets. I am highly satisfied with netting.—Yours, J. Bradley." "164, Victoria Street, Chadderton, Oldham, October 3.—Sir.—Please send ¼ bird lime; it is better than any other I have tried, and I always recommend it. —Yours, S. Kenyon." "34, Peel Street, Bursiem, October 30.—Sir,—Received clap-nets, and am quite satisfied with them.—Yours, S. Hall." "37, Grosvenor Place, Carnforth, October 26th.—Sir,—I tried your bird lime some time ago, and it was best I ever had.—Yours, T. Dawson." "6, New Houses, Pentre, Hawarden, October 25.—Sir,—Received clap-nets, and am very pleased with them.—Yours, T. Redfern." "Crosby Moor, near Maryport, October 23.—Sir,—Net and bird lime to hand, and very pleased with them.—Yours, W. Johnston." "46, Park Street, Haydock, St. Helens, October 23.—Sir,—I had a pair clap-nets from you last year, which gave every satisfaction, and after having a year's wear out of them I have sold them for 6d. more than they cost.—Yours, H. Ball." "Wood Street, Guildford, October 17.—Sir,—Your bird lime is best I can get.—Yours, G. Bourne." "30, South Road, Didsbury, Manchester, October 17th.—Sir,—Please forward another ¼lb. bird lime; it is just what is wanted for these frosty mornings. I received net trap safely, and have caught 15 Bullfinches and 5 Chaffinches this last week with it. Two years ago I sent to another advertiser, and paid him 16/6 for a pair clap-nets, and when I got them the poles were 5ft. deep, and netting only 4ft. deep, and when I thought of catching a nice lot of birds they flew underneath; so it's once bit, twice shy with me, and I shall not send there again.—Yours, W. Jones." "77, Moore Street, Gateshead, October 16.—Sir,—Netting I had from you two years ago is still as good as ever.—Yours, T. Morris." "Comherton, Cambs, October 12.—Sir,—Clap-nets I had from you two years ago are still in use, and as good as new.—Yours, G. Jolley." "12, Sea View Road, Leigh, Essex, October 6.—Received nets quite safe, and are giving every satisfaction. Thanks for prompt dispatch.—Yours, A. Emery." "10, Pet Darngavel, Ayrshire, October 8.—Sir,—Please send ½lb. lime. I must recommend it, as it is best ever used. Every bird gets caught.—Yours, J. Linden." "Acreland Green, High Easter, Chelmsford. October 17.—Sir,—Your lime is excellent. I caught six Bullfinches in two hours without a call bird.—Yours, W. Beard." Please note everything I sell is on approval, and money refunded in full if every satisfaction not given. If you want genuine articles, send to the man who knows what is required for successful catching, but be sure to send for price list.

YOUR PATIENCE

is at last rewarded. I am pleased to inform the many enquirers that I have just received the first consignment for this season of the genuine large Siberian cock Goldfinches. These birds are in magnificent trim and most of them in full free song, price 5/- each, seven for 28/-. Few real exhibition specimens, very large (but not large as Thrushes), with broad skulls, deep, square, expansive blazes, grand moonings and buttons, and fit for keenest competition immediately, 7/6 and 10/- each. Exhibitors please note following few facts. These Goldfinches are the real Siberian birds of which I am the direct importer, and no other dealer in England gets the pick of them but myself. I do not import the ordinary Russian Finches then put them on the market as Siberian and say I have the pick of Europe. If you want a real deck-sweeper let me have your order immediately. Among these birds are a few cage-moulted cocks (probably been used by Siberian catchers), which I have put aside and have for sale at 7/6 each; all on approval as usual, and money refunded in full if perfect satisfaction not given.

Honourable Honesty.
There are two words for you. Do you know their meaning? I take it you do. You will all the more appreciate it when you know they are the secret of my success in the bird world. Some unscrupulous persons would say they are not in business, but my way of writing successful bird business is honourable honesty with fair dealing to all men. Just you call in any day (Sundays excepted) and look for yourself. You will be compelled to acknowledge mine the best collection you have ever seen, and for songsters there is not the least doubt I take the lead for quality and cheapness combined. I yearly supply leading bird clubs with contest singers and winners. Just allow me to send you some of my birds on approval (cash or deposit) that you may judge for yourself, for I am confident of your future patronage when you have once seen and heard the quality of my birds. I have now ready for immediate disposal, 1,000 grand 1911 youngsters, well moulted, and cocks in song, including my famous German songsters, the German working man's friend; cocks that will sing by day and gaslight, loud, free, continuous songsters; every bird tested before sending out. Cocks, 4/6, 5/-, 5/6, 6/- each; matched pairs for breeding songsters, 6/-, 6/6, 7/6, 8/-. German trained St. Andreasburg Rollers, with full change of song by day and artificial light, bred and trained by leading contest winners in their home land, with full volume of song, free from harsh or choppy notes, cocks, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6 each; hens, 2/-, 2/6, 3/- each. High-class long slim typical Yorkshires, in all colours, clean moulted, cocks 5/-, 5/6, 6/-, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6; a few extra good specimens for exhibition, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-; accurately matched pairs for breeding, 7/6, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6; superior quality, lengthy hens, 2/-, 2/6, 3/-, 3/6, 4/6. L. Storey, Practical Bird Specialist, Crowle, Doncaster.

MODESTY FORBIDS

me to say all I could say about the Leipzig Rollers, but the following letters say more for them than ever I could. So many advertisements from dealers all claiming to have the best strain must tend to confuse the intending purchaser somewhat, but in order to clear away any doubts, and to make assurance doubly sure, I invite all persons wanting a Roller Canary to have a Leipzig Roller from me on full week's trial, and an ordinary Roller at any higher price from elsewhere. Test them side by side for a week and keep the one which suits best. You will notice from this that not only do I say the Leipzig Roller is better than others costing same price, but that they are better than those costing more money. I now have an enormous stock of these Leipzig Rollers; every cock guaranteed in full song day and gaslight, with long, hollow and double rolls, sweet silvery trills, waterbubble runs, soft roulades, piccolo trills, jug-jug of Nightingale, and bell, harp, and flute notes, etc., etc., and warranted entirely free from any harsh or objectionable notes whatever price, 6/6 and 7/6 each; special Bandmasters, which excel in the deep bass and hollow bell rolls, 10/- and 12/6 each; special contest Rollers, whose song can be likened to a cascade of everflowing melody, 15/- each; Leipzig Roller hens, 1/9 each, 3/- couple. For those who like a loud, noisy singer I have a splendid stock of Hartz cocks, every one guaranteed in full vigorous song day and gaslight, 5/- each, two 9/-, seven 28/-. Roller singing cabinet cages, with folding doors, comprising cage and cabinet combined, 2/6 and 3/6 each. Please note following letters are entirely unsolicited, and all received during last few days:—"53, Roundhay-road, Leeds, October 30th.—Sir,—Roller I had from you last year has moulted, and is singing better than ever.—Yours, B. Haigh." "11, Streatfield-terrace, Ryhope, nr. Sunderland, November 4th.—Sir,—Please send me a 10s. Roller. I was at Newcastle show the other week and a gentleman told me they are the best Rollers imported into England, so that is why I am sending for one.—Yours, W. Wade Mangles." (Will the gentleman mentioned please accept my best thanks.—W. Gore.) "3, Nicholas-street, Middlesbrough, November 3rd.—Sir,—Received bird with great satisfaction. Thanking you for prompt attention.—Yours, V. Moody." "6, Coach Houses, Adlington, near Chorley, November 3rd.—Sir,—Pleased to say I received bird and am well pleased with it. Thanking you for a beauty.—Yours, J. Fairbrother." "21, Commercial-street, Harrogate, October 31st.—Sir,—Roller to hand in good condition. The bird you have sent is a good one, and has been singing freely. It is a pleasure to do business with straight people.—Yours, H. Mason." "5, Cybi-place, Holyhead, October 31st.—Sir,—Most pleased to inform you that bird arrived in best condition. Many thanks for value you have given me for money; it sings day and night, and is fit for any Palace.—Yours, F. Hambley." "11, Pinfold-square, Higher Ince, nr. Wigan, October 30th.—Sir,—Please send a Roller at 10s. I have just heard a very good one that came from you, and cost 10s.—Yours, H. Wasley." "211, Bensham-lane, Thornton Heath, Surrey, October 28th.—Sir,—Received Roller safe; he is a fine one. I like his song very much.—Yours, J. Williams." "189, Alliance-avenue, Newington, Hull, October 24th.—Sir,—Have to-day notified Editor to forward you deposit of 10s., in full payment of Roller Canary. I am quite satisfied with the bird, and also your straightforward dealing.—Yours, Wm. Lythgoe." "52, Hammond-street, Preston, Lancs., October 23rd.—Sir,—The Leipzig Rollers I got from you last year have done me great service, and I have sold all my young birds to my friends.—Yours, G. Atkinson." "48, Normacott-road, Longton, October 17th.—Sir,—Leipzig Roller arrived safely. Thanks for prompt dispatch. Am quite satisfied with bargain.—Yours, A. Tudor." "39, Broadway-avenue, Croydon, October 14th.—Sir,—Please send two Leipzig Rollers. Those I had two years ago turned out beauties.—Yours, B. Garland." Please note I am the sole importer of this strain of Rollers, and all cocks are stamped on wing, "Hans Weber, Leipzig," and no other dealer can sell as much as one feather of this strain unless he first purchases from me. All are safely and warmly packed in special travelling cages with seed and water inside, and sent on full week's approval at my risk during whole time either on receipt of cash or deposit system of this paper, and money fully and freely refunded if every satisfaction is not given. Persons who do not care for the long-drawn-out monotonous rolls of the ordinary Roller are specially invited to have a Leipzig Roller on week's trial from me. I do not mind if they have no intention of purchasing the bird, I shall be pleased to send one just to show what an improvement the Leipzig Roller's song is over that of the ordinary Roller. Dealers supplied; send trade card for wholesale list.

NORTHERN BORDER & S.F.C.C.

Meeting held Nov. 6th; the chairman being absent Mr. Smith filled the post. Owing to our esteemed vice-chairman having left this country for Australia it was necessary to fill this post, and Mr. Johnson proposed, and Mr. Montgomery seconded, that Mr. Smith be elected vice-chairman; this was unanimously agreed to. Correspondence was then read re special allotted for competition at Newcastle; Mr. Christie proposed, and Mr. Greenwell seconded, that three highest birds be judged at Gateshead by the same judge; this was agreed to. The Secretary then announced that next meeting, Dec. 4th, Mr. Johnston (Wallsend) would give a lecture on "The Green Border." This is a night no one interested in the Border should miss, as Jim has already shown at the meetings that he has a fund of knowledge which is worth having. All are welcome. Secretary was instructed to get samples of medals. A matter re advertising the Club was discussed, but was allowed to drop. Mr. Newcombe (Sunderland) has kindly granted a special of a show cage, to be won by the novice exhibiting the best green or cinnamon at Sunderland Show. Then came the judging. The exhibits were disappointing in regard to numbers. Mr. Smith was the only member to bring birds; he staged a yellow and a buff, and they were well discussed, the buff being declared the winner hands down.—J. N. F. Scott, Sec.

We are open to accept assistance from other members of our society who are willing to give a helping hand in making our show one of the best, and so help to keep up our good reputation as "The Palace of the North." Specials were taken, and if our members will do their utmost to get as many as possible before next meeting, will assist the secretary greatly in the arrangements for schedule. We are giving an increased classification — 88 classes open; 11 novice—8 classes more than last show. Limit classes have been arranged: two for each section, which we hope will meet with success. We have received the patronage of most of the specialist clubs, and have cups and specials galore.—A. Holden, Sec.

WELSH C.B.C.

Meeting held Nov. 6th, White Lion Inn, Nantybwch, Mr. D. H. Tedstone presiding. Several new members were enrolled. We are pleased to find that several old members have toed the line once more. One member applied for his points at Tredegar show, but as he did not pay his sub. until after the judging this was refused. Another member wrote asking for an extraordinary general meeting to be called, but the Committee did not think he gave sufficient reasons for this. It was decided to hold a meeting, after Pentrebach show, Nov. 30th, to fix date, etc., of next club show. Unanimously agreed that last year's cup holders hold same until the annual general meeting. The members wish to thank Mr. J. Sandiford for again offering us a valuable cup, to be competed for at all shows held under our patronage. The Committee then dealt with the services of the late Sec., Mr. G. T. Jones, and it was decided, after passing a vote of thanks, to bring the matter up at Pentrebach. Secretary announced that Mr. T. H. Melhuish had written informing him he had met with an accident, and the members all join in sending Mr. Melhuish the deepest sympathy and wish him a speedy recovery. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the chairman, and also Mrs. Hughes, for the loan of the room.—A. E. Brown, Hon. Sec.

YORKSHIRE UNION OF C.B.S.

Council meeting held Nov. 11th, Butchers' Arms, Great Horton, a good attendance of delegates being recorded. Mr. F. Armstrong (Halifax), vice-president, occupied chair, in the unavoidable absence of the President. Mr. A. Radley (Skelmanthorpe) again made application for reinstatement, but the Council decided not to consider the question until the end of season. Mr. Seth Radley (Skelmanthorpe) was reported by the Skelmanthorpe Society for showing as a novice in the Union Novice Classes, although reading in the same house as a champion exhibitor, the offence taking place at Laisterdyke and Bradford West Shows; and as the said champion exhibitor was the suspended fancier, Arthur Radley, it was ultimately passed by a large majority that no birds should be exhibited at Union Shows coming from the rooms of A. Radley. With regard to the prize-money which had been won at Laisterdyke and Bradford West Shows, it was passed by the Council that no action be taken in regard to same at present. This will probably come on in due course, following upon the decision of the Council with regard to the exhibitor being ineligible to compete in Novice Classes. The Council also passed a resolution to allow the first Saturday in December to stand as an open date for the Bradford National Show, which is held for a very deserving charitable object. Judges for next year's Union Shows were then balloted for; result: Oct. 5, Huddersfield, Mr. A. Hirst; Oct. 12th, Manningham, Mr. H. W. Walsh; Oct. 19th, Great Horton O.S., Mr. H. Sutcliffe; Oct. 26th, Windhill, Mr. J. C. Barnes; Nov. 2nd, Oct. 26th, Windhill, Mr. J. C. Barnes; Nov. 2nd, Brighouse, Mr. P. Mason; Nov. 9th, Halifax, Mr. W. A. Cowgill; Nov. 16th, Bradford (East), Mr. H. W. Battye; Nov. 23th, Great Horton Good Intent, Mr. C. A. House; Nov. 30th, Queensbury, Mr. R. Halliday; Dec. 7th, Bradford National, ——; Dec. 14th, Sandy Lane, Mr. J. Greaves; Dec. 21st, Skelmanthorpe, Mr. W. Cruise; Jan. 4th, 1913, Shipley, Mr. J. Robson; Jan. 11th, City of Bradford, Mr. W. Mundell; Jan. 18th, Bradford (West), Mr. J. Bailey; Jan. 25th, Tong and District, Mr. F. Armstrong. Tong and Dist. are to be complimented upon their pluck and determination in deciding to hold an open show, and I feel sure the members of the Union will rally round them when the time comes. With regard to two members who made application to join Union societies, it was decided to defer this until further information was brought before the council.—H. Hill, Sec.

Under the White Rose.

GREAT HORTON O.S. Annual Show, held last Saturday, proved to be the best Yorkshire Union turn-out so far this season. The numbers came up exceptionally well, and our old friend House had a good morning's work set him to go through the 541 birds staged; and it is a good point that the room is very well lighted, and has plenty of space to fix up several judging tables, so that the birds had ample time to get steadied down after being moved on to these tables, always two classes, and sometimes three, being ready for the judge; this little matter saves a considerable item in the judge's time.

THIS was the sixth show of the season, and on looking up the numbers exhibited at each show the fact strikes one that they have not been as well patronised as usual at the fore part of the season, several of them having had somewhat heavy losses to contend with. Three out of the six had an average of only thirteen per class, which to those in the know spells financial loss to a society. Then, again, taking the total entries and the number of classes provided at these six shows, we have only an average of fifteen per class, just sufficient to pay prize-money. This means that all other expenses, judges' fees, room rents, printing, and a host of other small items have had to come out of societies, and when a society has a run of bad luck, with a drop of a few pounds each year, it is bound to take effect somewhere. Many arguments have taken place during the last week or two as to the cause of this meagre entry. Some attribute it to one thing and some to another; but it is a matter that will have to be thrashed out in the near future.

YORKSHIRE UNION and the Cinnamon Marked Y.C.C. each held a meeting on Saturday last in connection with Great Horton Show, when matters of pressing importance were brought forward.

CINDERELLA Show arrangements are going forward, and the schedules are expected to be in the hands of fanciers very shortly. It only now requires a bumping entry to make the show a thorough success. The tickets are selling very well indeed, and a good "gate" is assured already. It is therefore in the hands of fanciers to make the venture worthy of repetition.

STRAIGHT UN.

Wild-Bird Life.

Outlaws of the Air.

In some districts where the shot gun is not often used, the outlaws of the air—Hawks, Owls, Magpies, etc.—manage to flourish. These places are generally situated near towns. They are mostly wide stretches of common land, parks attached to large residences, or places partly given up to building purposes, where large trees, centuries old, still exist. In such places the gun is seldom used, so that the larger birds are not interfered with. A Hawk in the air is always an object of interest. We can generally tell by his actions if he is hunting for a meal or simply "loafing" in mid air. We should sadly miss him from the landscape, as we should the bold Magpie and the bright-winged Jay from the woodlands. As a rule, the sporting farmer does not interfere much with these birds unless they approach too near his poultry yard or hen coops. The gamekeeper is undoubtedly the greatest destroyer of these interesting birds. He shoots without trial and hangs without hope of reprieve. It is his business to rear game, and unfortunately Hawks and young Pheasants do not agree, and so he is quite beyond the reach of any softening influence. The writer has frequently examined the remains of victims strung in rows upon the gallows, and these do not always contain birds harmful to the gamekeepers' calling. The Woodpecker and the Nightjar are frequent victims, and so strong is the prejudice against these birds that no amount of argument can alter the older keepers' opinions and ways. Of the larger birds the Buzzard still survives among the Welsh mountains, and in similar districts. On parts of Dartmoor he is quite a feature in the landscape. He sails slowly in wide circles on his broad wings, calling now and again to his mate with a peculiar cry, far-reaching, and often heard when the bird is so far up in the blue that the naked eye is unable to follow him.

Singing Contests.

NEWTOWN (Leeds).

Week-end contest held Nov. 11, Prince Albert Inn, when 12 birds were entered. Judges, Messrs. E. Wood and C. Lorriman. 1st and 2nd divided between J. Chippendale and A. Binns; 3, A. Lorriman.—E. Wood, Sec.

SHEFFIELD.

Contest held Nov. 12, Newmarket Hotel, Sheaf St. Mr. Webster gave three good prizes for time singing. There were 20 birds entered for the prizes, and some first-class singing was heard before a good company. 1, Brown; 2, Driver; 3, Thompson. Contest will be held above hotel, November 19th, 1 o'clock, when some specials will be given by Mr. Webster: open to all England.—A. Brown.

LEEDS.

Linnet singing contest held Old Bird House, King's Head, Shannon-street, Nov. 12, when 39 birds sang. Winner was offered £3 for his bird, which he refused. 1, Summers; 2, 3, Stead; 4, Lunn. Judges, Messrs. S. Hardcastle, W. Naylor and A. Jennings. Having received a letter from Manchester re arranging a contest for Linnets with Salford, I have put it to our club, but our members think it too early in the season to take birds so far away, as it would be dark before all the birds could be put on the nail. We have such a lot of members, over 50 in number. I should very much like to have a day off. I may say I have taken in CAGE BIRDS for 9 years, and I think it is a very valuable paper.—T. C. Summers, Sec., 4, Back Craven Street, Woodhouse, Leeds.

Quality singing contest for Linnets, held Skinner's Arms, Buslingthorpe, Nov. 11th, when 20 birds (best in Yorks.) competed for three good prizes:—1, Turner; 2, Sellars; 3, Sellars. Also Nov. 12, grand contest, when 37 birds sang. The room was packed with friends; by the time the first two birds faced the judges there was not standing room. The singing was a perfect treat to listen to. Judges, Messrs. W. Simons, Bise, Madden. Next Saturday, 2.30 prompt.—C. Clayton, Hon. Sec.

ALNWICK.

Alnwick and Dis. C.B.S. annual show held Nov. 14. Taken all over, the entry was a satisfactory one. Canaries were a good show, Norwich being well represented by the leading North Country exhibitors. Yorks. were nice classes, some real good birds being staged, while Borders, as of yore, were forward in good force. Mules were a grand lot, and the British birds were extra good, some of the classes being exceptionally strong. Foreigners taken on the whole were a gaudy collection, some real high-class exhibits being staged. The show upheld its reputation for being one of the best on the Borders. The worthy secretary, Mr. R. Forster, had everything in apple-pie order, and was ably assisted by an enthusiastic committee, who were real workers and no mistake. Good management has always been the feature of this show, and this year it was ably upheld. Fanciers can rely on the birds being well cared for and given a rapid return. Mr. H. W. Battye judged Canaries, and Mr. A. Cockrane the Mules and British, and their awards were well received. Mr. Maddison won sp. for best bird in show with his clear Goldfinch-Can. Mule.

ANOTHER MAGNIFICENT SHOW AT CARDIFF.

Mr. Sampson once more "holds the reins." A Good Display in all Sections.

Fifteenth annual show of the Cardiff and Dist. C.B.S. was held 15th and 16th Nov. at the St. Andrew's Parish Hall, Cathays. The hall was admirably adapted for a cage bird show, being well lighted, free from draughts, and very roomy. We were pleased to see our old friend, Mr. W. Sampson, again at the head of affairs as show manager and secretary, and, needless to say, under his expert guidance everything worked very smoothly. We congratulate the Cardiff Society on being able to induce him again to take up the reins of office. He was ably assisted by a hard-working committee of well-known fanciers, in Messrs. E. J. Banks, E. J. Davies, H. J. Ford, A. Harrington, F. Hopson, F. D. Jones, T. H. Melhuish, H. C. Smith, A. Shellam, A. Simons, and E. Thorne. The show stewards (Messrs. R. Brown, J. Baker, W. Chedgey, F. Howard, E. James, A. Maggs, A. Roberts, J. Sivill, and W. Weeks), deserve great credit for the manner in which they carried out their duties. Messrs. Smith and Shellam undertook the feeding of the exhibits, a sufficient guarantee to exhibitors that the birds were well cared for. Norwich were a grand lot, some real toppers being put down. Yorks., as usual, were put down in great force, and were a magnificent lot; they gave the judges a warm time to separate. Borders were well to the fore. These "wee gems" are getting quite the feature of our Welsh shows. We notice the lady visitors take a great interest in this variety, a sure sign that they are bound to become very popular. Mules and Hybrids turned up well. British birds were, as usual, a fine lot, and some topping birds were exhibited. Mr. J. H. Payne judged odd, and Mr. J. Robson even numbers.

Two £10 10s. 0d. Cups go Begging!

Bristol F.A.'s coming of age show was held at the Coliseum, Park Row, Nov. 14th and 15th. This is one of the best halls, if not the best, outside London for a show of this sort. It is capitally lighted by day, and one flood of electric light at night. We never heard one grumble of lack of light. The hall was kept at an even temperature and was absolutely free from draughts. The entry was unfortunately about 100 down, there being only 300 birds. What is the cause? Was it the clashing of Wimbledon, Nottingham and Cardiff? Or was it lack of interest of the cage bird members? Yorks. and Nor. made a grand show, and there were some fine Cinnamons; hut the Crests and Crest-breds, Lancashires, British and Mules were, we are sorry to say, cancelled. Only fancy! two 10-guinea challenge bowls had to go begging for owners. For the Cinnamon 11-guinea challenge bowl there was an exciting contest between Mr. E. Godley and Mr. W. A. Dormer, both of Blackburn, each having two shares in the bowl. It fell to Mr. Godley to secure the trophy outright. The 10-guinea challenge bowl for best current year Yorks. was won for the first time by Mr. L. Dykes (Bradford). In the members' the tankard for most points in Nor. was won by Mr. Tristem; Yorks. by Mr. Lovell; British and Mules, Mr. Tilley. The officers of the Association are: Mr. Tottle (President), Mr. F. Cook (Chairman), Mr. Fish (Vice-chair), Mr. T. H. Maggs (Financial Sec.), Mr. G. T. H. Maggs (Gen. Sec.). The Cage Bird Section Committee: Mr. T. Keegan (Supt.), Mr. C. Tilley, Mrs. Garland, Mrs. Roberts, and Messrs. Brown, Buckland, Greenslade, Ind, Lovell, Silcox and Tristem. Mr. G. T. H. Maggs is a splendid official and knows how to run a show well. Many and well deserved were the congratulations on his able management. Owing to so many classes being cancelled, the judge, Mr. Vardy, was written to and asked to cancel his engagement, and Mr. Payne took the whole of the classes and gave every satisfaction, as we heard not a word of grumble. Upon going into the show it was noticeable that some members and the whole of the officials were wearing a black ribbon at the back of their badges, and upon inquiry we found that this was a token of respect to one of the Vice-Presidents (Mr. S. R. Shipley) who passed away on Saturday night after a very brief illness. Deceased has been for many years one of the most hard working members in connection with the show.

Meeting held Nov. 7th, Mr. W. H. Fulcher in chair The third annual washing competition took place for novices only, when nine competitors took part. Some merriment was created by the remarks passed, but all seemed to take everything in good part. As you looked on you could not help smiling; each one was working away very diligently, as if everything depended upon them. Each one intended taking home the gold centre medal; in fact, one member thought he had won it, but it was not to be. Then he blamed the wife, saying she must have given him a dirty towel to bring with him. It was a grand competition and resulted in a very close finish. The judge, Mr. W. Robinson, was given a task to select the winner. He declared Mr. Whitelegg the winner with a Yorks., saying it was very well got up and was fit to be put on the show bench. Mr. J. Vint was close up with a nicely washed Norwich. Each competitor was satisfied the best had won. While the birds were drying part of the annual show business was dealt with. It was moved that next meeting night be the last for nominations for new members if they want to compete for the president's silver challenge cup. I think I can promise that the society can see its way to give a gold medal to the runner up; so if anyone is desirous of becoming a member, please hurry up, and send in your name at once to me. No entrance fee; subs. 4s. a year.—J. Spencer, Hon. Sec.

OBITUARY.

Mr. H. BOXALL (Chiswick, W.).

We very much regret to hear of the death of the father of Mr. Frederick Boxall, chairman of the London Federation of C.B.S. Mr. Henry Boxall died on Nov. 6 at Melina Road, where he had resided for many years in a house built by himself. He was a member of the old Fulham District Board of Works, the Hammersmith Vestry and Board of Guardians. Mr. Boxall was an active member of the True Briton Lodge, Manchester Unity; also a director of the Second Mortgage Building Society in Bridge Road. Although not on the active list of fanciers, he took a keen interest in the Fancy, writes Mr. F. Boxall, and was well-known to the majority of fanciers in the West London district. The cause of death was a paralytic stroke. Mr. Boxall was in his 76th year. The funeral took place on Nov. 9 at Hammersmith Cemetery.

Mr. P. CHRISTISON and Mr. J. BELL (Brechin).

The members of the Brechin C.B.S., writes Mr. G. Mitchell, the sec., have to record the loss of two of their members in the persons of Mr. Peter Christison, Montrose Street, who was buried on Oct. 28; and of Mr. John Bell, who was buried on Nov. 11. The society can ill spare such worthy members, and the Fancy lose two very ardent supporters. The sympathy of all brother fanciers will go out to the widows and families of these highly-respected gentlemen.

Will all who had tickets for our late show kindly let me have money for all sold, also all unsold tickets, we having to pay for all tickets not returned to Messrs. Jennisons, writes Mr. H. Boothman, sec., Manchester and Dis. C.B.S. Having received so many kind letters from exhibitors at our late show, I take this opportunity of thanking them through your paper for their kind appreciation.

Wright (York) will judge. The society is giving 2s. 6d. to each class towards prize-money, and the members have worked to get a special for each class. The show will be opened to the public at 3.30 p.m.

I have been asked by Mr. John Steel (Dalkeith), who is at present in Edinburgh Royal Infirmary, having undergone a serious operation for appendicitis, writes Mr. W. B. Smart (Loanhead) to thank the many fanciers, through the medium of your paper, who have so kindly written to ask for him and to let them know that he is making a speedy recovery, as he finds it impossible to answer each one individually.

With a view to getting our members to attend meetings and show more interest in the society, we are having a table show at our next meeting, Nov. 20, writes Mr. J. Lewis, sec. Spen Valley C.B.S., for novices only. Four classes will be provided—A.V. Yell. Cock; Buff; Yell. Hen; and Buff. Good specials will be given by Messrs. Wharton, T. Smith, and B. Wood for most points. Judge, Mr. J. W. Wharton.

The show of the week is held this Friday and Saturday (Nov. 17 and 18) by the City and Suburban Society at the Church Institute, 60, Paddington Street, off High Street, Marylebone. Johnson (best Yorks) and Mr. J. Fleming (best Border). Mr. Dixon, of Wigton, will judge the Nov. show.

Friends of Mr. Atkinson, the Newcastle secretary, writes Mr. T. C. Crawhall (Newcastle) will be pleased to know that after a severe relapse on Sunday, Nov. 5, he is now on a fair way to recovery. His illness has been very severe, and exhibitors at the late show will excuse any delay there has been in forwarding prize-money. Thanks to the kind assistance of his friends, Messrs. Young and Milburu, prize-money has now been despatched.

Every bird fancier will be interested to know that Messrs. Fred Bax and Son (the well-known and old-established bird seed and food specialists) are now conducting all their business from 319, Mare Street, Hackney, London, N.E. We understand that there they have every facility for executing orders even more promptly than heretofore. Messrs. Bax and Son have long held a high position among those who supply bird foods, and for their reliable dealings and moderate prices. Price lists and samples of their specialities may be had free on application.

Something Like Enthusiasm!

A well-known London Crest fancier made the journey to Nottingham Show (some 250 miles) at the full ordinary fare for the pleasure of spending just one hour amongst his favourites. He arrived at 6 p.m. and left at 7 p.m. How's that for enthusiasm?

Merry Meeting at Highgate.

The Highgate, Hampstead, and Dis. C.B.S. are holding their prize distribution and concert on Thursday, Nov. 23, at Spencer Hall, Dartmouth Park Hill, from 8 to 11, writes Mr. C. W. Law, the hon. sec., when Mr. George Garner has promised to give the prizes away. All friends welcome. Admission free.

Helping the Sale.

Will members who have tickets from the Codnor Park and Eastwood Open Show kindly return them, also money for those sold, to enable me to balance show report, writes Mr. J. H. Mitchell, the sec. Also, will members note that a members' show will be held on Dec. 9 at the Queen's Head Hotel, Riddings; 30 classes will be provided. A Yorks Canary will be given by the secretary for a certain ticket number chosen by an independent gentleman. Members who are willing to have tickets to sell for the good of the society, please apply for same.

Manchester News.

I now take the opportunity of thanking Cage Birds for the splendid report given of our late show, writes Mr. H. Boothman, hon. sec., Manchester and N.C.O.S., which I think was a complete success. Mr. Raynes was taken ill the Friday previous to the show, and Mr. Spencer had to be called in at the last minute, and I am sure a great deal rested upon him and Mr. Hayward to make the show such a success. I could never have managed without them. I would have written before, only I was knocked up after the show (I got a chill), and was busy getting prize-money ready for sending out.

Strange "Mule" on View.

At the City and Suburban Show held on Friday and Saturday this week-end (see advertisement on this page) Mr. G. E. Weston has promised to put on view, writes Mr. A. W. Curtis, the show manager, a bird said to have been bred from a cock Goldfinch and a hen Goldfinch Mule. Mr. Weston, I understand, thinks the bird's apearance bears out this description of its parentage (i.e., three-quarters Goldfinch, one quarter Canary), though it has given rise to much controversy, one well-known judge having stated that, in his opinion, it is only a freak Goldfinch. This strange bird should attract visitors interested in Mule breeding.

Items from Nottingham.

Our stall at Nottingham Show was ably looked after by Mr. W. Cottingham (of 9, Peveril Street), who did a great business with Cage Birds publications, our handbooks and "Nutshells" being prime favourites. Local bird-lovers can always obtain them from Mr. Cottingham, at his address as above. Mr. Pass, the well-known cage-maker, of Hucknall, Notts, had a special display of cages, cage-fittings, etc., on his stall, and was kept busy booking orders from the moment the show opened. Another Nottingham fancier, Mr. G. A. White (81, Parliament Street), makes excellent wicker hampers for birds journeying to shows etc., and will be pleased to send a price-list to all enquirers.

What Happened at Banbridge?

The following mysterious communication we print exactly as received:—"Banbridge Show was a great success. The judges were in great form. After six hours' judging they adjourned to the Imperial Hotel. After a substantial meal they adjourned for light refreshments. At the eleventh over Warrick clean bowled Yorkie. The Umpire, John Jamieson, drew the stumps. The Lurgan Light Horse arrived on the scene and escorted the two pros to the train. On arrival at Belfast, Major O'Neill, with detachment of Irish Constabulary, accompanied them to their respective transports. Oh, Wullie! when shall we twa meet again?"

The L.C.B.A. Show: An Appeal.

As will be seen from the advertisement contained in this issue, write Messrs. Mugford and Tyson, secs. of the London C.B.A. Show, our Association have been obliged to extend the entries closing date until Monday. Up to the present not one per class has been received. This cannot be for the want of a good classification, prize-money, or specials, of which there are 400. We do hope fanciers will rally around us and send, if only a few. It is a very anxious time for us, and we are powerless without the support of the many, and venture to think that no society deserves support more than the L.C.B.A. Prize-money will be paid as soon after the show as possible, and all birds will be returned, together with magnificent prize cards, by the night mails, arrangements having been made accordingly with the railway companies. Schedules will be sent to all applicants.

A Baronet's Black Cockatoos.

The interesting collection of Cockatoos belonging to the late Sir Charles Lawes-Wittewronge, comprising five Banksian, four Gangas, five Roseate, and two Leadbeaters, was purchased by Mr. Hamlyn, of St. George's Street, East, this last week. We understand that four of the Banksians—one male and three females—were sold the same day to a well-known bird-lover for a sum considerably over three figures. It is pleasing to know that they will be kept loose in a very large aviary, as they were kept during the last five years by their late owner. Their tameness is remarkable, the Banksians all flying and perching on the head and shoulders of the late Sir Charles whenever he entered their aviary, and all feeding from the hand. The mere fact of anyone having five Banksians (Black) Cockatoos is remarkable. The sixteen birds were at liberty in a huge garden covered over with wire netting. During the last twenty years Sir Charles must have had twenty-five Blacks of various sorts. These birds were his particular favourites.

Through a Birdroom Window

By the Rev. C. D. FARRAR

No. 16.—My Avadavats.

Nothing gives me so deep and serene a satisfaction as a bird shop, but wealth will never be mine, and I shall never be able to buy all the birds I want. If I behave myself and respect the Decalogue, when I die I shall go to one of those delightful places where foreign birds are for sale. How a rich man can visit a foreign bird dealer, as many do, without spending pounds and pounds, I can never understand. Many many years ago I paid a visit to a seductive emporium; on all sides I saw birds that, to use a Yorkshire saying, "I could have done with"; but nobody gave them to me. I therefore sadly made up my mind that as I couldn't then afford what I wanted, I must be content with what my slender means could pay for.

My object at the time was to get hold of something that nobody had bred in order that I might therewith win a medal. As I look back on that time, it seems an unworthy motive. Why should one want a medal for breeding a new species for the first time? It ought to be pleasure enough to do it without hope of reward; but, alas! human nature being what it is, rewards and punishments, as "judicious Hooker" saith, must be taken into account.

After a lot of studying, I came to the conclusion that if I wanted an inexpensive bird, and one which, so far as I knew, had never been bred—Avadavats were the birds for me. Now, from a long experience, I knew that this would be no easy task. Of course, it is easy enough to buy Avadavats, because, like the poor, they are always with us, but it isn't half as easy to get them to live. The females have a most horrid way of dying without any rhyme or reason, and always just at the moment when you think success is going to crown your efforts in the way of a nest and eggs.

The Point of View.

They always remind me of the buoyant old widower who had worn out three wives. When he told his minister that he was about to marry again, he remarked that he had been very unfortunate in burying his wives. "Aye," he replied, "did ye ever ken ony body that was sae bothered as I hae been in puir deein' creatures of women?"

Knowing, therefore, as I did the deein' propensities of lady Avadavats, I thought the right proportion would be about 6 to 1. I at any rate invested in six females and two gentlemen. My readers need not think that I am here contradicting what I said about my poverty. Avadavats are not expensive birds; I believe I only gave eight shillings for the lot!

I picked out nice, alert, tight feathered birds, and carried them off home. It was well on towards summer, so I thought I should not suffer many "slings and arrows from outrageous fortune"; but there I was wrong. You never will know the climate of the British Isles. There can be a frost at any time.

The very first night I put these birds out there was a frost—what Shakespeare calls a "nipping" frost, and it nipped off two young ladies, and made another look very "thick" and unhappy. Needless to say, it made me feel the same, for here were half my chances gone. I made up my mind to catch the remainder of my stock and cage them till the weather was more settled. This was my salvation; and I felt quite proud of my cleverness. I think I was rather like the Highlander who was nearly drowned on a stormy night in crossing a ferry. On reaching home he told his wife of his narrow escape. "Oh, Donald," she answered, "Providence has been very good to you." "Yes, Mary," he replied, "but I was pretty clever, too, myself!"

After my sad experience, I determined to wait and to be quite sure of the weather. Accordingly, it was not till mid-June that I ventured to turn out what were left of my Avadavats. My readers will remember that I lost two hen Avadavats at one fell swoop, and that another was thick and puffy. This left me two healthy cocks and one hen. Experience has taught me never to tempt Providence by turning out birds in odd numbers as to sex. I therefore determined to try the healthy pair and see what they would do. There was not much self denial about my proceedings, as it is never much use to expect to breed off a sickly bird, more especially a hen.

All my hopes lay in that tiny pair of birds; and as I wanted to get a medal I knew that I should have to be quick and lucky. It is all very well to say that you should try to breed for the simple pleasure of the thing. In a better world, maybe we should do this sort of thing. In this present vale of tears we want to be first; and therefore my opponents are, for the time being, my enemies, and I rejoice to see them in the lurch. I had had the satisfaction a good few times in the past, and I hoped to add one more leaf to my laurels. That I did so you will see if you care to finish this story.

When the mornings became "real African," my cock Avadavat began to sing. I can't say it was exactly melodious; but, no doubt, the little hen thought it charming. Do not all girls think their lovers delightful, before they marry them? Still, speaking candidly, I should not say the Avadavat has much of a voice.

Cupid at Work!

Nevertheless, I always like to hear a cock begin to sing, because it generally means that his mind is lightly turning to thoughts of love, and when, a few mornings later, I saw him sitting by the hen and jumping up and down on a twig, and making a general ass of himself, I began to suspect that there might be something in it. Nor was I disappointed. In a few days I noticed them busy carrying about long grass bents, and evidently intent on nesting operations. They took a long time to fix up a site; there seemed to be so many eligible bushes in the aviary. While they were making up their minds I went through agonies of suspense. If we hear that Guy Fawkes was fretful in "Little Ease," we are not pained at Guy Fawkes' lack of Christian resignation; so I hope my readers will not think I was unduly to blame. I have not been able as yet to attain the correct impassivity of an Anglican congregation, though I daily minister to one.

At last they found the very place they had been looking for—a low box tree of thick and ample growth, quite near to one of the aviary windows. I was unspeakably thankful, as now I should be able to watch all the work of house-building without exciting any undue suspicion on the part of my little friends; for did not that great broad face appear regularly every morning and night to replenish the water and seed trays? He was a harmless, necessary evil.

I spent many a happy hour in watching the growth of that nest. It was composed entirely of long grass, half dried; was placed quite low down, within three inches of the ground; was a round ball, and warmly lined with feathers; and there was a beautiful little hole towards the light. The only fault I could find was that the interior, being as dark as the inside of a wolf's mouth, I could see nothing.

A Happy Ending.

As the hen sat steadily I hoped for the best, and after what seemed countless ages I was rewarded one morning by seeing the cock enter the nest clearly on feeding intent. After this it was merely a question of fine weather, and I should win. Micklefield is not Africa; and I felt that everything depended on the thermometer keeping up. Only let there come a good drenching downpour, such as is often enjoyed in this sunny clime, and all my hopes would be literally drowned. I have gone through this sort of thing so many times, that I am always anxious when the nests are about; an Avadavat's nest is such a poor flimsy thing in face of a torrential downpour; more flimsy even than a lady's summer blouse!

Fortunately for me, the weather kept propitious, and one fine morning I saw a little snuff-coloured bird with a black beak following the old Avadavats about chirping to be fed. Then I knew that my long agony of waiting was over, and that I was the proud possessor of a British-bred Avadavat. What did it matter that there was only one?

When I came to dismantle the aviary in the back end, I took out the nest and found inside it two tiny white eggs, rather elongated in shape, but clear. These I religiously kept until they were broken by the too eager hands of one of my children. The nest I still have, hung up on a nail in my study, above a very beautiful picture of a group of Avadavats that came out in a bird paper many years ago.

And now, like Venator, I am tired out, and I find the linen looks white, and smells of lavender, and I long to be between a pair of sheets that smell so; so good night!

My Experiences of Canary Breeding

By R. CHARLESON (Leigh).

When the young get about three weeks old I put them in a nursery cage in front of the old ones, until I see that they are feeding themselves, then I put them in a large cage—the larger the better—to enable them to get plenty of exercise which assists the growing of the bones. Never mind their getting wild. Keep one or two show cages at the front, until the birds get about five or six weeks old; then cage them off—one bird one cage, if possible.

Then comes the time of steadying and training. I always make a practice of handling the birds very often whilst in their show cages, and when I am at home I like to take them downstairs for a few hours and put them on the table, as I think this is a good way of steadying them, owing to persons constantly passing to and fro. I forgot to mention that I always crack the seed for the young when they have left their parents, as I think they start to crack their own seed sooner, getting hold as they do of whole seed amongst the cracked. I never give them much egg food after they leave their parents, until I am ready to start colour feeding, because they always seem to gorge themselves, whereas they can't with the cracked seed; it takes them longer to eat a lot.

When Color-Feeding.

As regards colour feeding, this is a thing of which I am not in favour, but we have to do it if we want much chance. I like to get the colour-feed well into the birds before they drop any feathers. From the little experience I have had, I prefer hot and cold pepper in the proportion of 1lb. of cold to a quarter lb. of hot, unmixed. I say "unmixed," because I think that if you try and mix the hot and cold together, you are apt to get the hot in lumps, owing to its being more oily; therefore I say keep it separate. When you are mixing your egg food, just put the quantities of each in that you require, and mix them well, then you will be certain of having the hot and cold in as you wish. I always take the seed boxes off until the birds have eaten the quantity of food I have given them. I prefer also to have the room darkened, as I think the colour comes out better than when the birds are left in a strong light. The bath is very essential; give it almost every day if possible, providing the weather is favourable, as I think it is the only thing that will tighten up the loose feathers; that is if it is at all possible to do so; and it will help to get their tails into position; if they have no bathing water their tails are apt to get frayed at the ends.

If ever I have a bird stuck in the moult, I always use a few drops of sweet nitre in its drinking water; then I cover the cage up, and use saffron instead until near the end of the moult. I don't use linseed through the moult, as I find that most Canaries will not eat it. But to answer the same purpose I put a teaspoonful of linseed meal in the colour food when I am mixing it; then the birds are bound to eat it, and I don't see why it shouldn't do as well.

As regards winter treatment I always put the hens into a large flight, so that they get plenty of exercise; and I give them a teaspoonful of mixed seed once a week; also once a week a spoonful of inga seed, as I think this a great help for the coming breeding season, preventing to a great extend that unwelcome thing, egg-binding, with which most of us here are acquainted. When I have a hen eggbound I always believe in steaming it; and I oil the vent well with olive oil. I never drop any in the beak, as I think the hen is in too weak a condition to allow of a relaxative. Bear in mind that it is not the hen's bowels that cause her to be egg-bound, but probably something is wrong with the ovaries or the place that holds the egg; or it might be that the egg is turned the wrong way. There are lots of things that may be the cause of it. I generally give a tonic to the hen when I see she is ready for a wrink; from my experience I think dandelion juice reigns supreme.

The cocks I keep in separate cages as they do too much fighting, but I give them a spoonful of mixed seed once a week, and once a week a little maw seed.

A Dread Disease Combatted.

That concludes my experience so far, but I might as well say a few words on my last and most drastic experience, the Canary fever, or septic fever. First of all, beware of buying strange birds, also of buying strange cages, as I am strongly of the opinion that that is the way in which my cases started. I wrote a letter to CAGE BIRDS, which, as most of you are aware, was published; and just think of my joy on receiving a letter the following week from a perfect stranger in Bradford telling me that if I would follow his advice he would send me another pair unrelated with which to make a fresh start, making four birds in all, with the two which our worthy treasurer gave me. His advice was this, and it is also mine now to anybody who experiences septic fever, although I hope none of us ever will again take all your cages, perches, drinkers, in fact everything that is in your room, into the yard. Starting with the room, paste all the air holes up with paper; then get a good sulphur candle, and set it burning in the room; leave it and start with your cages, etc., disinfecting them with a solution of 1 gallon of boiling water, ½lb. of soft soap, 1 pint of paraffin and some disinfecting fluid. Then when they have dried, whitewash your room and cages, and don't take anything back into the room unless it has gone through the process of disinfecting. I have had cause to thank that gentleman several times since then for his friendly letters, and also for the good his advice has done me and what may come of it. I think I have told you all I know of interest—perhaps nothing that you did not already know, especially the old hands; so I will conclude my paper by thanking you for your kind attention and also anybody in anticipation for any enlightenment where I am wrong.

CANARY QUERIES.

Roller Hens for Breeding.

L. Cork.—It may be quite possible for you to select hens good enough for breeding with a good Roller cock from the Roller hens which are bred from untrained Rollers. But it is very much like working in the dark, because the cocks among their progenitors not having been trained, you can know very little as to their potentialities, or whether they would readily acquire and retain a really good type of song, or be more prone to rapid deterioration and acquire objectionable notes on leaving the company of the tutors. If your intention is to get a really good trained cock to improve the general type of song, you might select one or two of the hens which have the softest and mellowest call-notes, and are freest from any objectionable nasal or harsh notes, and mate these with him, keeping them well out of hearing of the common cocks. Later on all the young cocks might be placed under his tuition, and the faulty singers weeded out as described in Part XVI. of "Our Canaries," which you should obtain. The general quality would certainly increase each season under proper management, but it would take several to work them up to really high-class singers. Practically all the tours you name, except the "schwirre," are high-class ones. The latter is considered somewhat risky. There are plenty of bad notes besides these good ones. Get the Nutshell booklet on the Roller.

Treatment in Winter.

K.—The ordinary treatment given in "Canary Breeding for Beginners," etc.—see our advert.—for the winter months is the best method of keeping hens in prime healthy condition. Temperament, however, plays a certain part in the question of non-feeding hens, and individuals always occur which are all that could be desired in health and condition, and in such cases no system of feeding of treatment beforehand is of any avail. The best you can do is to aim at keeping the birds in the hard, robust condition indicated. Plenty of exercise is a great aid towards this, and a wholesome, liberal, yet not over-generous, feeding is essential. Keep them in the largest cages you have—in small groups in large flights or aviaries for preference—where they can get the maximum amount of active exercise, with a certain amount of wing exercise. For staple food give plain canary ad lib. Once a week or so give a small teaspoonful per bird of egg food, crushed biscuit, or sponge cake, or an equivalent quantity of bread and milk. Give one or other, but not all, of these once each week, or three times in a fortnight, or you may ring the changes with them. In addition, give a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts rape, hemp, inga, millet, and teazle once or twice a week. Occasionally give a little green food, when fit for use, or a morsel of sweet fruit or carrot. Keep cages clean and dry, and strewn with gritty sand or sawdust—if the latter is used give grit in a small vessel. Allow birds to bathe freely in mild weather.

Feathers Puffed Out (F. J. M.).—First carefully catch the bird and examine the feet and claws. It is possible that the claws are overgrown, and have been caught fast in the wires or around the perch, and the foot injured by the bird's struggles to get free. Hence the trace of blood. If this is so, bathe the foot, or feet, in a warm solution of boracic acid, then dry, and anoint with zinc ointment. If nothing is wrong with the feet treat as follows for a fortnight: Give a staple of plain canary seed only. Every second day give a piece of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut with two drops of cod liver oil on it, and lightly sprinkled with soft sugar. On the alternate days give a morsel of banana and a small pinch each of maw and summer rape. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of buckthorn for two days, and afterwards every second day for a week dissolve in each two tablespoonfuls of drinking water a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea, a crystal of sulphate of iron half as big, and add six drops of diluted sulphuric acid.

Wild Poppy Seed (F. J. K.).—No harm would result from giving this seed to Canaries as a tit-bit in the same way as you would give the maw of commerce. The sample is nice and clean, and I should not be the least chary of using it in the manner suggested. In fact, I gave the sample to my Canaries.

A Question of Temperature (A. Farmer)—In replying to this correspondent last week I am made to say that the proper winter temperature of a bird-room should be 54 degrees. This was either a slip of the pen or an error of the comp. It should have read 45 degrees.

About Asthma (J. Kirkland).—This so-called asthma is in no sense a "catching" disease, so you need not fear the other birds taking it, save only in the sense that if the other birds are exposed to the same causes which brought it on in this bird, they, of course, are just as likely to fall victims. You must, therefore, take steps to remove the cause. Appropriate treatment to relieve the condition you will find in several replies every week. It is quite possible for the birds so affected to breed successfully, but the progeny always have an inherited predisposition to the complaint. In building up a strain it is always best to rigidly weed out all asthma sufferers and debar them from reproducing their kind. It pays also in the end to do so.

Birds Not Doing Well (Liverpool Green).—There is nothing whatever wrong with the seeds, of which you sent samples, to account for the birds not doing well. No. 1 is a well-ripened and extra good quality of Canary. No. 2 not quite so well ripened nor good in quality, but still very good. No. 3 is practically same as No. 2, but may be a trifle better flavoured. I place them in order 1, 3, 2, and No. 2 is quite good enough for any purpose. You should have given some particulars as to how, or in what way the birds are not doing so well as you wish. Get "Canary Breeding for Beginners," "House's Manual," or the early parts of "Our Canaries," and see if your general management is correct, or write again and mention these particulars, when I may be able to discover what is wrong.

Paint and Cough (Newstart).—(1) From the smell of the paint lasting so long I should imagine it was poor, slow-drying stuff. Try the effect of evaporating two tablespoonfuls of strong vinegar on a hot plate or shovel with the ventilators closed. In a few minutes open ventilators, and allow odour to pass off. Repeat once each day for a few days. Birds need not be removed, as the process is harmless, but usually excellent for removing smells. Pardon my ignorance, but I do not know what "cheeked serking" is, of which your house is built, so cannot say if it will be warm enough. Better write again and say what the material is like. (2) This bird probably caught a chill in being removed. Keep it in a comfortable place, free from draughts, and give the medicine advised to "Anxious."

Borders Loose in Feather (Grateful).—Possibly they have not had quite enough time to "fine down" yet. In addition to the staple diet give a pinch of summer rape every second day. On each alternate day for a week give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw seed. Give a morsel of banana, apple, or watercress, two or three times a week, and once a week omit the rape seed and give instead a small teaspoonful of a mixture of two parts each hemp, inga, and millet, one part each teazle, black rape, and groats, and a half part each maw, gold of pleasure, and linseed. For about a week before a show give this mixture in place of the rape every second day, and in drinking water add 20 drops of port wine, in four ounces of which you have previously dissolved a drachm of citrate of iron and quinine and two teaspoonfuls of honey. Allow the birds to bathe freely in suitable weather. You should get Parts IV. and V. of "Our Canaries," for the fullest information on this subject.

Aviary and Breed (Amateur).—The aviary would be more of a bird room than anything else. It must depend very much upon the surroundings whether the highest or lowest side should form the front. If you have a wall to build against let the highest side form the back; otherwise, it will be immaterial which is front. By making the highest side the front it would afford an excellent opportunity to display your artistic bent by training roses or creepers over the front. Starting at 3ft. from the floor, another 3ft. above is quite ample space for glass, and all space above the 6ft. would do to train creepers over. Too much glass will make the place too cold in winter. See there is a gutter at lower side to carry off rain. (2) For singing alone common Rollers would be best for your purpose. Other hardy breeds suitable are Borders, Norwich, and Yorkshire, either of which might be crossed with Rollers to improve their song.

To Make Him Sing (Anxious).—It is not always an easy matter to get a bird "touched" with asthma to sing freely soon after the moult. They usually prefer to wait until the "breath of spring is in the air." You must see that he is quite free from draught or fumes of burning lights. Give a staple diet of two parts canary to one part summer rape, and for the next fortnight give every second day half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw seed. On the alternate days give a morsel of banana, and a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, millet, and teazle. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of buckthorn for three days, and afterwards 20 drops of whisky, six each of oxymel of squills and glycerine, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, every second day for a fortnight. A mealworm a day would be very beneficial. After this course of treatment feed bird as advised in the Nutshell Booklet on the "Roller," except that the above staple may still be adhered to.

A Yorkshire Duet (Doctor).—(1) An eye marked or lightly wing marked buff, bred from two clears, or one clear and one slightly ticked, for choice, would be the best mate for the variegated yellow cock next to a clear buff. The bird must, of course, be suitable in other points—size, shape, style and feather being placed before colour. In your case, where there are frills, more or less, feather must be given a very prominent place in choosing a mate. The hen should be as close and boxey-feathered as possible. (2) A Yorks. or any other of the smaller breeds bred fairly early this year, say in the first or second brood, or not later than mid June, will be physically capable of running with two hens next season. A later bred bird would be better limited to a single hen.

Not Singing (A. Wickes).—The continual loss of feather is the cause—the cure is obvious. But you must first remove the cause of this continual moulting, which, considering your room is quite warm, will probably be found in great fluctuation. Perhaps there is a great difference between the day and night temperature. If so, you must try to remedy this. Give a staple of plain canary. Every second day half a teaspoonful of summer rape, and on the alternate days for a fortnight a similar quantity of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw seed. Twice a week give a small teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, millet, and teazle. In the drinking water give a pinch of Epsom salts for two days, and afterwards six drops of tincture of gentian and three of tincture of steel every second day for a fortnight. Allow it to bathe when so disposed.

Another Asthmatic (Quack).—Barring the dietary, which is very unsuitable, your treatment should have relieved the bird somewhat. The following course will do far more good. First of all endeavour to discover and remove the cause as frequently advised. Give a staple of three parts Canary to one part summer rape. Do not soak any of its seed. Every second day for a fortnight give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw seed. On the alternate days give twice a week a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, linseed, and millet, and on each of the remaining days a scrap of watercress or morsel of banana. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and a pinch of Epsom salts every second day for a week, and afterwards 20 drops of whisky, six each of oxymel of squills and glycerine, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, every second day for a week or fortnight, as may seem necessary. The Nutshell booklet on "Ailing Birds," 2½d. post free, from our manager, would be a help to you.

Not Moulting, etc. (Perplexed).—(1) Place the hen in a fairly warm temperature, but see that it is free from draughts and extreme variations. Give plain canary only as staple. Every second day give separately a pinch of rape, and on the alternate days a piece of bread the size of a hazel nut soaked in cold milk, drained, lightly dusted with flower of sulphur, and sprinkled with maw seed. Twice a week give half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts millet, inga, linseed, and broken groats, and occasionally a scrap of green food or fruit. Continue this feeding for three or four weeks. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of buckthorn and a small pinch of Epsom salts every second day for a week, and on the alternate days 20 drops of whisky, as much chlorate of potash as will cover a threepennypiece, and a few shreds of saffron. (2) See that this cock is free from draughts and extremes of heat and cold, and treat for a fortnight the same as advised to "A. Wickes."

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by G. E. WESTON.

Hens for Muling (Prudence).—If you get variegated Yellow Norwich hens, of good size and substance, then you have about the best possible type of birds for Dark Mule breeding; Cinnamon or Crest-bred (not too feathery) hens would be good, however, if Yellows, and possessed of substance. To stand a sporting chance of breeding a light Mule, under the circumstances you mention, I advise you to go in either for Clear Lancashire Plainhead hens (good ones are expensive, though) or clear-body, pink-eyed Yorkshire hens. I think that the firm mentioned will treat you fairly.

Food for Reed Buntings (Reed).—Like all the Buntings, the Reed cares little for any seed other than canary, which must be its chief item of diet. I have found them pick up coarse oatmeal and groats, and also a few seeds from amongst wild.

Food for Snow Bunting (Birdonia).—Feed this bird on exactly the same lines as advised "Reed" this week. We may publish a "Nutshell" on the subject later on.

Some Berries (Heaton Mersey).—I have never used the berries in question, so cannot advise you on the point, which, however, if you live in the country you can soon settle for yourself by watching to see whether the wild Thrushes, etc., come to feed off them. I don't suppose they would be harmful; but of the fruit of ornamental shrubs I have had practically no experience.

Quality of Ants' Eggs (Inquirer).—Am sorry your query did not reach me in time to answer in our last issue. I think that the ants' eggs you submit are really high-class, and certainly beautifully clean (free from rubbish). But, at the same time, I think there is an admixture of freshly prepared cocoons with some of older date, though the latter are decidedly in a minority. The price, of course, is high, and ought to command a first-rate article.

A Cinnamon Lark (R. B., Southport).—Strictly speaking, these rare-feathered specimens can only compete at shows where a class for "pied" Albino, and rare-feathered birds" is provided. And not many include one in their schedules. If shown in an ordinary Lark class, or Softbill class, some judges might admit it. But the majority would either mark it "wrong class," or pass it by—the result in either case being the same, i.e., you pay your entry money for nothing.

Giving in Marriage (Constant Reader, Hadlington).—You must use a certain amount of discretion in choosing mates for the British Goldies you mention. If you pair them with huge Norwich type hens about three or four times as large (bulky) as they are themselves, then clear eggs are practically a certainty. The hen can always be appreciably larger than the Finch, but there is a limit, beyond which it is unwise to go. For very large hens, extra large Finches should be selected. Even amongst genuine British-caught Goldfinches, some are quite twice as large as others.

seed mixture. They should be given a little of a high-grade insectile food (such as is used for Nightingales) frequently, prepared in the usual way, also two or three mealworms. They like live ants' eggs when in season, and flies and small grubs of various kinds. They also like to nibble at grass in seed, and seeding chickweed, shepherd's purse, etc.

Sex of Bullfinch, etc. (Amateurs).—Am glad to hear you find your Bullie such an entertaining little pet. I am very fond of the species myself. The cock is easily told from the hen, as the young cock assumes a bright red breast immediately he casts his nestling plumage (i.e., in the autumn of the year in which he was born). If your bird shows no sign of crimson on the breast, it must be a hen; she has the breast always a greyish-black, sometimes with a brownish tinge in it. I think that all the Greenfinch needs is a liberal daily supply of cracked sunflower seed. Bullie would relish one or two (don't give too many) as well.

Blackbird's Sore Feet (John Farrell).—"Sore feet" is somewhat vague, and I am at a loss to know whether you mean that they are "raw" and tender, or have hard growths ("corns") on them. In any case, see that the bird has good wide perches (not less than one inch in width), and that they are kept clean. Cover the cage floor very thickly with peat moss litter (i.e., the peat moss broken into very small pieces), which is to be bought very cheaply at all large stores selling poultry foods, corn, hay, etc.,

also at florists and shops selling garden and vegetable seeds. If inflamed and swollen, steep the feet twice daily in hot water (not too hot, of course) for a short time, and afterwards dry and anoint with a little "Zambuk" ointment. If any hard lumps are present, their removal is very uncertain, but you should paint them over with a little tincture of iodine. You must, of course, persevere with the treatment for a time.

A Stock Mixture (C. Mackercher).—The following stock mixture would suit your little collection "down to the ground," as the saying goes, viz., teazle, 3 parts, canary two parts, summer rape and linseed 1 part each by measure. In a separate dish give every day a tablespoonful each of hemp and cracked sunflower, and twice a week add a similar quantity of a really good wild seed mixture. In the summer (hot weather) reduce the linseed until only the merest sprinkling is present; also do not give the hemp so freely. If you cage up the birds, then divide the "tit-bits" amongst them, but give the Bullie hardly any hemp at all.

Flycatcher out of Condition (Flycatcher).—I am afraid the bird's condition arises largely from the troubled times it experienced in its youth, and that you will have difficulty in getting it into "show condition." Besides, the Spotted Flycatcher is really a very difficult bird to keep at the best of times—much more so, in my experience, than the Pied Flycatcher. You are treating it very well, but to the stock food I think I should add a little of a really high-class insectile food (about 1/6 to 2/- a pound). Don't use olive oil, but mix well amongst the daily food supply a large saltspoonful of extract of malt and cod liver oil (in combination). It is unwise to give many mealworms (unless you squeeze them out, after cutting off their heads, over the food). You could give the gentles (well scoured ones) freely if killed first by being placed in a piece of muslin over scalding hot steam. Don't let them bathe too freely; it is a mistake in winter with delicate insectivorous birds, I can assure you.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., etc.

Madagascars and Blue-wings.

Mrs. B. J. M.—I should leave the birds together at present, but keep a close watch on them, and on the first signs of quarrelling remove the Blue-wings, though, I expect, it will be the Madagascars that will attack the Blue-wings, if any young are hatched out, but unless quarrelling ensues leave them as they are. Do not annoy them with close examinations, and do not pry into the husk while the birds are inside; a peep-hole should be arranged by which you can observe without opening the cage. As the cage is but small, it will be best to remove the Blue-wings as soon as Madagascars are ready to leave the nest, and the young birds, if reared, should be removed as soon as their parents cease feeding them. Put in a few pieces of plain biscuit when the young are hatched, but it may not be eaten. Diet: Canary, white and spray millet, a few oats, greenfood (fresh lettuce at this season), grit, cuttlebone, and water.

Ailing Guinea Fowl.

G. P.—I should isolate these from your poultry till they are fit again, and it will be a wise precaution to mix some roup powder with their soft food as a preventative. As for the guinea fowl, bathe the swollen parts with a hot decoction of poppy-heads, and bathe the nostrils with warm water containing a little permanganate of potassium, or similar antiseptic. Also give regular doses of roup pills (some reputable make), keep the drinking water tinged with permanganate of potassium. The birds should be kept in a dry and sheltered run till the trouble yields to treatment. The said run must then have at least the top three inches of soil removed and be limewashed before being used again for other stock. After fomenting the swollen parts, dry and smear them with the ointment you have been already using. The hen was evidently infected when it came into your possession, and has infected the cock birds, and the recent damp wet cold has accentuated the trouble. The trouble has reached an acute stage. If the above is not effective, then try a capsule of copaiba balsam three times daily till discharge ceases. It will be advisable, as a sort of wind up, to give the copaiba capsules for a few days, till all discharge ceases.

Breeding Cutthroats in a Cage (F. C. T.).—The larger and more roomy your cage, the more probable will be your chances of success. Get from your local dealer a Hartz travelling cage, take out perches and fittings, cut out two of the uprights to give the birds egress and ingress, half fill it with hay, hang it up at one end of the cage near the top, and leave the birds to do the rest. Diet: Canary, white and spray millet, green food, and when they are feeding young I have found them to be very fond of ants' "eggs" (supplied as bought). Usually they are good parents, and mostly rear the chicks that are hatched out. Yes; they are quite ready to take a bath, and for cage birds this should always be one that hangs in front of open cage door. Grit and cuttlebone should be supplied to all hardbills, also water ad lib for drinking and bathing.

What Parrot? (A. Bottom).—Though there are one or two discrepancies in your description, I have no doubt but what your bird is a Senegal Parrot, an African species, neither very common nor yet uncommon. If in good plumage and fit, a tame, talking bird should be worth 80s., possibly you might get a little more from someone who saw the bird and heard its talking capacity.

Sexing Young Cockatiels (Beginner).—Even in their nest feathers the young cocks usually show a little more yellow in the cheeks, and their crest is also mostly a little (wee bit) paler and longer than their sisters; but the difference is not great, and not always constant, so it is best to wait till they have moulted, when the sexes will be quite clear. However, if of your two young birds one has paler (more yellow) cheeks and crest than the other, you may fairly assume that you have a pair. If they have already moulted, then from your details they are two hens.

Indoor Flight for Budgerigars (H. Mitchell).—All living things need sun, and if your room only gets it for one hour daily it will suffice, though a S.W. aspect would have been better, and you must see that you ventilate without draught, and keep a plentiful supply of sound cocoanut husks hanging from the roof. Get one pair each Green and Yellow Budgerigars, direct from some outdoor aviary. These should do well with you. You could also keep a pair of Cockatiels and a pai rof Madagascar Lovebirds with them, though the last-named had better not be put in till spring. A small barrel, say nine inches diameter by twelve inches deep, would be better for the Cockatiels; hang it up longitudinally. Our Nutshell Booklet, 'Budgerigars" (2½d., post free, from our manager), would tell you all about their treatment in captivity.

What Bird (J. P.).—(1) It is the Tri- or Three-coloured Mannikin, an African species. Give it a seed mixture of canary and white millet, two parts of the latter to one of the former; also hang up a millet spray occasionally. Also supply green food, grit, cuttlebone, and water. Lettuce is the best green food at this season. (2) I must assume, in the absence of all detail, that this query refers to the above bird. Take the bird in the hand, and with a mop camel-hair brush wash it with quassia solution, dry, and keep warm till dry. Repeat this two or three times, with a few days' interval between each operation. Examine its cage, and see that it is free from mite, if there is any doubt on the point; first thoroughly paint it, especially all joints and crevices, with neat paraffin, then scald with boiling water, and afterwards well swill with cold; it should then be quite free from parasites. The bird's demeanour indicates that it is troubled with these pests.

Indoor Flight (Whydah).—(1) You ought not to keep more than 36 birds the size of a Canary in your flight, but you could count two Waxbills and birds of similar size as one Canary. However, I ought to tell you, for breeding purposes, your flight ought not to contain more than six to eight pairs. I am now speaking from the standpoint of foreign species. (2) The birds you name would all answer well, and they are fairly varied as to colour. Common and Green Avadavats, Gold-breasted Waxbills, Grey and Green Singing Finches, and Alario Finches are all suitable birds; the three latter have all produced young when cross-mated with the Canary. (3) As regards Whydahs, I am afraid, in a flight the size of yours, Whydahs, with their long tails, would cause a panic; at any rate, at first, till the birds had become thoroughly accustomed to them. Paradise or Queen Whydahs would be the most suitable. These are usually amiable, though occasionally a "bully" turns up.

An Objectionable Habit (Miss Kent).—I am afraid you can't get rid of this; it is more apparent with some species than others. But most Parrots regurgitate their food and then swallow it again, and this is frequently done when you are fussing with it, and in the presence of those it is most attached to. If it had a mate it would feed it at such times. If you suspect it is more than this, you must repeat query and be a little more descriptive—that is, describe symptoms fully, also diet and general treatment, and also say what kind of Parrot it is. Possibly, I could then give you a more definite reply.

Amazon Parrot (A. D. B.).—You probably have quite a young bird, but it does not appear to be a Blue-front—evidently some other species. Send me a full description when it has been through a moult with you, and I will tell you what kind it is. Coming into a new home frequently causes a bird to be silent for a time, but as it settles down and becomes accustomed to you, it would then "find its tongue" again. As regard diet, see our reply to "Anxious" in this issue, but in your case the drugs will not be required. Keep the bird where it will hear plenty of conversation (that is, as soon as it is fairly steady), talk to it, and teach it by constant repetition, and it should soon prove responsive.

Green Parrot (Mrs. G. Moffatt).—The temperature of any living room will suffice, if it is kept out of draught. Cover it up at night all round the sides, but leave a portion of the top uncovered for ventilation. Diet: a seed mixture of three parts each canary and white millet, two parts oats, and one part each hemp, paddy rice, and sunflower seeds, well mix and keep a supply in the cage. Also supply ripe fruit, nuts, greenfood, and plain biscuits, add a pinch of grit (not sand) to the daily supply of seed, and keep a piece of clean cuttlebone in the cage. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk sops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever. Keep water in the cage, and as it will not bathe, spray it once a week (use a "mist" sprayer) with chilled water, keeping strictly out of draught till dry.

Blue-fronted Amazon (Anxious).—Undoubtedly the dietary is principally at fault. Give it a seed mixture, half the bulk of which is to be canary and white millet, and the other half oats, maize, hemp, paddy rice, dari, and sunflower seeds in equal parts, well mix and keep a supply continually in the cage. Also supply ripe fruit, nuts, and plain biscuit, a small piece of dry potato daily, is quite permissible, as also is a little boiled maize (the latter only keeps fresh one day), two or three times a week. Put a pinch of grit to the daily supply of seed, and keep a piece of clean cuttlebone hanging in the cage. Every fourth day put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in its drinking water, if the voidings become watery, then only give the Magnesia once a week. When not giving the Magnesia put one teaspoonful of Byno-phosphates into the drinking water, and continue for a month at least. If the bird has been accustomed to much soft food, then moisten a crust of household bread or plain biscuit with chilled water, and lightly sprinkle it with sugar.

What Birds? (A. M. B.).—It is impossible to give definite replies from the written descriptions of birds where the colours are so nondescript, as in such instances the description applies to many species, only to be distinguished by some small mark from each other. I was of the opinion as already stated in earlier reply, that the bird was a Spectacled (Melodina) Thrush. Re the small birds, I think they must be either young Grey Waxbills or possibly Aurora Finches (Crimson-wing Waxbills), but in the latter instance the birds would be a little larger than Avadavats—the young of red-beaked birds mostly have beaks and feet black while immature. Has it moulted while with you? If not, please repeat query then. A sight of the bird would remove all difficulty.

Parrakeets and Finches (A. J. C. Lowe).—Parrots, Parrakeets, Conures, or Lovebirds are very unsafe company for Finches, and sooner or later such association ends in tragedy. (1) Carolina Conures should breed if given suitable accommodation, and not too cramped for space. Their present value I should compute at about £5 pair. (2) Cactus Conures are a little smaller and brighter coloured—they have been bred in captivity. (See reply to Query No. 1.) If young when purchased, you may have to keep them at least a couple of years before they go to nest; this applies to above species. New imported, about 20s. to 30s. pair. (3) See replies 1 and 2. (4) Yes; Parrot Finches are frequently bred, the chief difficulty being to procure a true pair, as the outward sexual distinctions are infinitesimal, and the most expert frequently err.

An Ailing Budgerigar (Lovebird).—Either the bird has caught a chill, or its digestion is faulty; the latter, I am inclined to think. At the same time there is usually a draught between fire and door in most rooms—do not let cage stand in a direct line between fire and door. Your dietary is fairly satisfactory; supply greenfood daily, a few kibbled oats twice weekly, and keep a piece of clean cuttlebone hanging in the cage. Hang up a coconut husk at top of cage; it will help to find them occupation cutting it up and clearing out its interior. Put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia to each ounce (two tablespoonfuls) of the the drinking water daily, till full relief has been given, but directly it becomes relaxed, cease giving same till the voidings become normal, then give it every fourth day for a month. When not giving the Magnesia put the same quantity of Byno-phosphates into the drinking water for the same period. Report progress a fortnight hence.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 2, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 1s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

K.—Hen bird: Engorgement of the pulmonary blood vessel, with rupture, causing death from exhaustion due to hœmorrhage.

C. Buckner.—Pneumo-enteritis due to a specific organism, attacking more particularly young subjects. Disinfection is important for the eradication of this disease.

GENERAL.

Answered by The Editor.

A Seed Crusher (W. Miller).—Many thanks; will have a drawing made and publish it.

A Suggestion (J. Simpson).—We will see if your suggestion can be carried out later on. Many thanks for sending it on to us.

Still Nesting (Miss S. Young).—We have sent your letter to Mr. St. John (our Canary specialist), and will publish it after he has advised you upon the point therein.

Pluck in Showing (Full-hearted).—Please forgive us for not publishing your letter. It is more than a wee bit personal; and, anyway, we are not sure that our readers are interested as to whether the gentleman in question will show or will not show.

Foreign Birds at Lowestoft (Novice).—We make it a rule not to publish correspondence criticising a judge's awards, unless there is some special circumstance connected therewith. There is nothing to be gained by permitting it, as the judges' decisions as to the merits of the birds are always final, and no amount of argument in our columns can alter them.

A Letter (J. Smith).—The letter has been addressed and duly forwarded.

Catching In Fifeshire (Interested).—We did not know that Greenfinches were protected in Fifeshire. In any case, a policeman has no right to release birds without a magistrate's order, and we think the party could recover the value of the call-bird which he let go. A protest should be made when the case comes up for hearing. The magistrate can confiscate the tackle used if an illegal act has been committed by its owner. Shall be glad to hear result.

Allow me a little space in your very valuable paper to express my thanks to the officials of the Clapham Show for the very able way in which they packed my birds. My wife remarked that the birds arrived home in good time, and that they were packed very comfortably indeed. I must also thank them for their promptness in paying prize-money, and I hope to show there again next year.—Thos. Veness (Hastings).

The Border Fancy C.C. Medal at Grangemouth.

Sir,—Kindly allow me space as regards the judging for B.F.C.C. medal at Grangemouth Bird Show. Will Judge Tod kindly state why he awarded the medal given by the above-named Club to a bird in Class 27 that was defeated by a bird in Class 28 for another special prize? How could bird in Class 28 defeat bird in Class 27 for a special prize and not defeat it in the competition for the B.F.C.C. medal? I should like Judge Tod to state his reason.

Interested.

A Budgerigar which Talks.

Sir,—I have had much pleasure in reading in Cage Birds about the birds that talk, so thought I would write and let you know that I have a Green Budgerigar which talks. I purchased him of Mr. James (a member of the Brighton C.B.A.) eighteen months ago, and he started talking when I had had him about two months. He says plainly: "Kiss a granny's pretty boy," "Kiss pretty Sammy" (his name), "Sammy is granny's pretty boy," "Good morning, Louie darling," "You mustn't do it, you naughty boy," "Sweet, pretty Dick," "Kiss me pretty," "Louie's pretty boy," "Good-bye, darling," "Kiss me; then I'm going," "Saucy kipper," "Sammy is a darling," "What are you doing?" "Oh, he's his mother's pretty boy," 'Pretty little dear," "Good morning, Granny," "Louie's darling," "Pretty, pretty dear," "Sammy boy was a pretty boy," "Oh, he's such a darling," "Granny's pretty boy," "I can see," "Oh, he is a pretty, pretty darling," and he says "Sweet!" just the same as the Cauary. He also comes to the side of the cage and makes out he is kissing you, and then says "Kiss me." We have other friends in Brighton who have bought Budgerigars, and they, too, talk. So I thought your readers would like to hear about it.

Miss Sandells.

A Defence of the Amateur Birds.

Sir,—It is evident I have been under a misapprehension regarding the L. and L.F.A. classes at Manchester, but, even admitting that, I probably deserve the appellation Mr. Rukin so well cloaked for what was, after all, only a "lapsus calami." I think that if the Manchester Society voluntarily grant fourteen classes to the L. and L.F.A., and that in spite of the poor support accorded them year after year—well, I think they ought to be where Mr. Rukin says I am—"up the pole," whatever that means. Regarding the half-prize-money classes, doesn't Mr. Rukin think that a fancier has more chance of getting his own back in classes of six or seven, even allowing for half-prizes, than he has in classes of 35 or 40? If I had six birds to exhibit, and was out to make money, I should prefer to enter in classes where I was sure of a prize, even if I had to have half-prize-money, rather than run my chance in classes of 40. Half a loaf is better than no bread. Again, Mr. Rukin mustn't overlook the fact that almost every bird in the small classes is a winner. Divide 112 exhibits between fourteen classes; that is eight in a class. There are seven prizes in each class. That is exactly 98 birds out of the 112 are prize-winners. What an honour! He asks me if I would have the classes so made that a fancier can show as an amateur all his life. Surely he can see that that is just what I want to alter. If the amateur men were to have more classes provided, there would be a greater probability of them becoming champions in a shorter time, as well as giving them something like a sporting chance for their money. Mr. Rukin also mentions that he knows of novices who have exhibited for twenty years and are yet novices. That is saying nothing. I know of fanciers who have exhibited for more than twenty years as champions, and couldn't win in the novice classes to-day. Probably Mr. Rukin's twenty years novices are in the Lancashire Fancy. If so, it is not to be wondered at; and at the present "frequent" rate at which they patronise shows some of them will be novices when Mr. Rukin and I are considerably older; in fact, they will, unless they exhibit more, be unable to persuade societies to put classes on for them. They must have been real exhibitors when they stood 32 deep at Manchester in Mr. Garner's remembrance. He, Mr. Garner, is known to me only by repute; but if he can remember Lancashires 32 deep at Manchester—well, he has been in the Fancy a long time, considerably longer than I have. What a "draw" they must have been at one time. Sure, their popularity is on the wane. I may be wrong, but I think (I don't want to earn that unlovely appellation again this week, so I will say "I think") I remember seeing a report in Cage Birds that Mr. Rukin, in his capacity as secretary of the L. and L.F.A., had written asking a society to put their classes on, and that society had regretfully declined. Am I wrong? If so, what I say is correct it doesn't speak much for the drawing powers of the Lancashire. Mr. Rukin doesn't seem to have a high opinion of the quality of amateur exhibits in general. There was one class at Manchester—the unflighted Norwich hen class—where both amateurs and champions competed. There were 35 birds in the class, exhibited by 30 fanciers—that is, there were more exhibitors in this one class than there were exhibitors in the whole of the Lancashire and Lizard classes. There were 24 exhibitors in those classes; and I think I am right in saying that there were more fanciers looking at that one class than looked at the fourteen classes provided for the L. and L.F.A. I am only mentioning this as a proof of quality and drawing power. The 1st, 3rd, and 4th birds belonged to fanciers who only won their way to the champion classes last season; the extra 4th and v.h.c. belonged to amateurs. The champions managed to get 2nd, h.c., and c. I want Mr. Rukin to particularly notice that fact; five out of the first six birds in a class of 35 (not seven) belonged to novices, or fanciers who were novices less than twelve months ago. That doesn't speak bad for the amateur birds. Another fact may interest him. Only one bird in that class belonging to an amateur was left out of the cards. I hope my writing under an assumed name doesn't trouble Mr. Rukin very much. There are some people who must be in the limelight; for myself, I am of a retiring disposition, and among a great many faults which I plead guilty to, my friends tell me the greatest is my modesty. While Mr. Rukin, being one of the top-notchers of the Fancy, is entitled to shine, I, being absolutely "non est," prefer to remain behind the scenes. Therefore I will still subscribe myself

Bird o' Freedom the Third.

A Novice "Call to Arms."

Sir,—The backbone and the web-footed bird that lays the golden eggs are very much to the front this last week or two. And quite right, too, for where would our societies be in point of numbers without the novices; and where would the show managers be but for the help of the novice—not on the perch, so to speak, but down among the sand at the bottom of the cage, lumpy and soft in feather and songless? Who does the donkey work and real hard grafting? Why, the novice. Does he get justice at the show as a reward by a liberal classification for his section? No; that would not suit the managerial staff. They think it best to give him as few classes as possible, so that the profit made out of him may go to help make up the shortcomings of the professional classes and their very liberal classification, etc. Will it last? No; certainly not. I venture to predict that the day is not far off when the novice classes will be shut down altogether if more classes are not put on for him. In 1908 a Lancashire open show had, I think, three classes for novice Yorkies. In the Buff class there were more than thirty entries, and I suppose the other two classes were in proportion. For curiosity, I have just looked up their report in Cage Birds for this year, and what do I find? Why, the same three classes for novice Yorkies, but what a slump in entries, which numbered eight per class—total for three classes, 24! What has caused the slump? Lack of enterprise. I venture to say that had the society put on another class or two at the 1909 show they probably would have had more entries than ever, and the classes still have shown a fair margin of profit; and this year, instead of their having eight birds per class, they would have had a real good turn-out in the novice section. The Fancy is very largely composed of working men, many of them subsisting on anything but a princely wage, who cannot afford to keep sending birds out where Yellows and Buffs, Ticks, Marks, and Clears show together; they want a fair chance, and ought to have it. How often do we read in the show reports (take notice, Mr. Rukin!)—"Novice Clear Ticked or Marked Yellow or Buff: a hot lot here"; or "Many of the birds in this section could have held their own in the open classes"; or "The judge must have had some difficulty in sorting them out"; or "Could easily have picked another set of winners"? The working man has not the money to continue entering birds in classes like these, and he shows his common sense when, instead of doing so, he spends the money on his children's feet. Give him a fair sporting chance, and you will find the birds there all right. The novices have the remedy in their own hands if they will but exercise it. You, novices, are in the majority in most societies; stand up for justice for yourselves; you are all big enough and have cut your wisdom teeth and got a voice; stand up for yourselves. Friend Long says, "Catch the strike fever!" Well, I say "Catch anything you like that is right and proper that will help you to put a good chest on the front of your backbone, just below that mouth in front of you, that is certainly entitled to swallow at least the top of those golden eggs." When the time comes round for your next show, refuse to have anything to do with it in any shape or form until they promise you a reasonable number of classes; and, also, if they cannot see the way clear to start novice classes for British birds, insist on being allowed to take your chance in the open British classes without its affecting your novice standing in the Canary section, and help along the tide of progress and yourselves at the same time.

Birds Caught Wearing Marking Rings.

Sir,—I have seen several letters in Cage Birds referring to birds being caught with rings on. A friend of mine caught a Chaffinch hen in Haydock Churchyard on Sunday, Nov. 5, with a ring on bearing the inscription:—"Witherby, High Holborn, London, F. 728."

J. Smith.

Welsh Judge Suggested for the Palace Show.

Sir,—I should like to make a suggestion that the Palace Show Committee try a Welshman to judge a few classes for British birds, including Goldfinches, at the Palace. Welsh Goldies are reckoned the best; so why couldn't a Welshman be a good judge? There are a few good judges in Wales, both North and South Wales. Mr. Kershaw (Llanrwst) is reckoned one of the best in North Wales. I am sure fanciers would like to see a Welshman at the Palace for once.

Thomas Roberts.

The Chortle of an Anti-colourfoodite.

Sir,—I was sorry to see a reply to "Interested" from Mr. Moore. I have been a reader of Cage Birds since No. 1 was issued, and have kept birds for forty years; and my opinion is that colour feeding does certainly injure the health of birds. I am not speaking on what I think, but on what I know, to be a fact. I use colour-feed because birds stand no chance of winning unless they are fed, but I certainly should like to see more non-fed classes at the shows.

W. Andrews.

Sir,—I am one who has gained a good deal of useful information from Cage Birds, and I think colour-feeding is a question that should be very seriously considered. I believe there are a great many who feel themselves being carried along by the tide, though they strongly object to the modern fashion of trying to impose on nature. Quite apart from the question of health, I think colour-feeding is being carried a great deal too far. To me a bird in its natural plumage, glossy from health and cleanliness, is far more beautiful than these colour-fed birds, which in most cases look like badly-coloured plates. Why is a show Greenie bronze, as Mr. Moore says? Why can't we have our birds in their own natural beauty?

A Lover of Birds.

Sir,—I am somewhat surprised at the manner in which Mr. Moore's letter was received. The letter certainly looks a little strange at the first reading, but on a second perusal it is rather a clever composition. May I ask why Mr. Weston considers the mentioning of Willonyx casts an aspersion on his character? Surely there is nothing amiss in attending a race meeting? I have often heard this sport mentioned as the "sport of kings"—then, if this is good enough for kings, why should it cast an aspersion on Mr. Weston's character? I think that if Mr. Pye (whose wish I see is granted) will read the letter again and look well into it, he will find that it is "writ sarcastic." Mr. Moore, in order to expound his theories, exaggerates somewhat—hence the "mouthful of seed once in three weeks," the "odds bodkins," etc., and Mr. Weston's remarks concerning the latter may, I think, be overlooked, as it is quite probable that Mr. Moore senselessly backed Willonyx, and "had some ale," and was somewhat merry when he wrote his "chortle."

Arcadian.

The W.C.O.S. (Plymouth) Norwich Cup.

Sir,—I had not intended noticing "Disgusted Exhibitor," but I must thank Mr. Pope for his kindly and courteous account of how the error occurred. If "Disgusted Exhibitor" ever has to judge considerably over 400 Yorkshires, Norwich, etc., on such a dull, hazy morning as that which we had on the occasion of the W.C.O.S. show, he will doubtless find at the finish that neither his eye nor his head is quite as clear as when he started the task, and he will not query the fact as to whether given members are eligible to compete for a certain cup or not, but will, as I did, take the official numbers as being correct. Had I been more intent on rules and regulations than upon finding the best bird, the error would not have occurred. No one regrets it more than myself, and I ask those concerned to accept my apology for any inconvenience they may have experienced. To "Disgusted Exhibitor" I would say: "To err is human, to forgive divine." As a judge I strive to do my best, but I am not infallible.

C. A. House.

Sir,—Your correspondent, "Disgusted Exhibitor," is in error in saying, as he does, in last week's issue of Cage Birds, that the conditions of W.C.O.S. Cups were different when a flighted bird was awarded the honour at another show than this year's exhibition. The show to which I referred was in 1909, when a Yorkshire, subsequently disqualified by the committee, won the Challenge Cup. The conditions then for Canaries were the same as now; it is only the Mule classes that have since been altered. As I said in my previous letter, Mr. House was not then the judge in question, and no notice outside the society was taken of it. It was understood then as a slight slip on the part of the judge, and as the same gentleman has officiated at W.C.O.S. shows since, it is quite certain that his reputation has not suffered. Now, sir, what I should like to know from "Disgusted Exhibitor" is, Why all this pother? Is there animosity underlying the apparent aim of his letters? I may say that the W.C.O.S. judges are elected by the whole of the members by ballot, and all those who disapprove can signify the same at the election, which is much better than writing to the public press about a purely society matter.

Thos. Pope, Hon. Sec., W.C.O.S.

A Reader and His Birdie Pets.

Sir,—I have green and yellow Budgerigars which I hope will pair up and breed next season. Another friend of mine is a Bishop, who, when I first had him, was a very sober little brown bird; but a few weeks ago he put on an orange scarlet collar and tail. He still had a little brown back and stomach; now, however, it has changed to jet black. So in his coat of scarlet and black he looks a fine fellow. The next is a Redwing who, now the weather is cold, is at his best. He is with other but much smaller birds in a garden aviary, yet he does not harm them at all. The next are the delightful Weavers, who are ever amusing at their nest weaving; and their quarrels over the building sites are very funny. Another species are the charming little Black-headed Nuns, who are ever on the move in an aviary. I wish Cage Birds every success.

Frederick Hobart.

Is it Cruel to Keep Birds in Cages?

Sir,—I thought the following would interest some of your readers:—While working in my shop I noticed two gentlemen whom I knew to be lovers of the Blackbird; and their birds, I knew, were very old. I inquired how their pets were getting on. One said that his bird was dead, being seventeen years old when it died. The other told me his bird was still alive—fifteen years old—and a wild-caught bird. I might add that the one that died sang almost to the very last. Now, was it cruel to keep these birds in cages?

A. T. Suthren.

Sir,—After reading week by week in Cage Birds re the alleged cruelty to birds confined in cages, I think an experience I have recently undergone should be interesting. I may say I am a breeder of Yorkshires, but know practically nothing of wild birds, not knowing a good bird from a bad one, which makes my experience the more surprising to me. In December last, on going to work, I found a hen Greenfinch badly damaged and soaking wet. I kept it, and in the evening took it home. I placed it in a large flight with about a dozen hen Canaries. The following Saturday two of us made up our minds to try to lime a few Goldfinches, but were only successful in catching a cock and a hen Greenfinch. The hen we set free at once, but the cock, which was in splendid colour, I took home with the idea of placing with the hen Greenie. The hen Greenie I separated from the Canaries, and placed her in a single breeding cage, putting the cock with her. They agreed splendidly, and I kept them a month, within a day or two. A cousin of mine took a great fancy to them, and as I had plenty of birds I gave them to him, and very proud of them he was. I had an interesting conversation with a clergyman and his wife a day or two following; and they came to see my birds. The lady at the present time is local hon. sec. of the R.S.P.C.A. in this district. I asked them if they thought the birds appeared happy, and explained to them that to reproduce after their kind the birds must be in the pink of condition; and their environment must be perfect, or else they would not see the Canaries feeding their young. The lady remained silent, but the gentleman seemed puzzled. "You see, Ellery," he said, "I have nothing to say about keeping Canaries in cages; they are thoroughly domesticated. Generation after generation they have been bred in confinement, and they have adapted themselves to the new conditions of life. It is wild birds I complain of." And very fond of wild birds as he is, and I thought what a sensible answer I got. Alas! how mistaken we get! About a fortnight afterwards my cousin purchased a hen Canary with the idea of doing a bit of hybrid breeding, but he had the misfortune of losing his hen Canary—it got out of the cage, flew away, and he has never seen it since. Then something suggested he should let the Greenfinches fly. They flew away, but in the evening came back again. Then he made a practice of letting the cage hang outside the door with cage door open; and the birds came and went as they felt inclined. Sometimes they stop away all night, but they are always back in the morning.

My Mules advertised in "C.B." of Nov. 11 were sold long before I had my copy of "Cage Birds." I must say that the replies (I had over 40 letters and 9 telegrams), were quite a nuisance; which speaks volumes as to the value of "Cage Birds" as an advertising medium. I wish "Cage Birds" the success it deserves.—H. S. Davies (Llandilo).

CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

A New Cage Bird Club Formed for Irvine and District.

Sir,—At a meeting of cage bird fanciers held in the Masonic Hall, Irvine, on Nov. 8, attended by a large number of district fanciers, a cage bird club was formed. It was also agreed to hold an open show on Jan. 6, 1912. Mr. W. S. Clark was appointed President; H. B. Young, secretary; Mr. T. Kidd, treasurer; also a full committee. Next meeting will be held in the Masonic Hall, Bank Street, Irvine, on Nov. 18, at eight o'clock, to enrol members and make arrangements for open show. It was also agreed to advertise our show in CAGE BIRDS. H. B. YOUNG, hon. sec.

An Appeal from Market Weighton.

Sir,—Our eleventh annual show is fixed for Thursday, Dec. 28, and I write to ask if you will help us by an appeal in your valuable paper re guaranteeing a class or two for cage birds. We have open classes for all other sections, and have a good members' cage bird section, but no open ones. If we could get a guarantee for a class or two we would pay 8s., 4s., 2s., and 1s., for 1s. entry fee, and we have always paid prize-money in full and within three days for all other open sections. I should like to see the cage birds open as well as the other sections, but we do not want a big classification. They would be in a warm room and well looked after, and the show is a £5 limit.

Canary Farming in the Open Air.

Sir,—In reading your paper, CAGE BIRDS, I saw the account of keeping Canaries in the open. I thought perhaps it might interest your readers to know that I have kept Canaries in the open garden, summer and winter, for the last ten years, never in any cages, and they pair and nest and rear their little ones by building their nests in the bushes. They are quite like the wild birds in their habits. The coldest day in winter they stand upon the snow and sing right merrily. I never lose any. They are always healthy and strong, and their plumage is beautiful, and I only have to feed them once a day, even when they have little ones. I have a small house one end 6ft. by 4ft. by 10ft. high, and the run or flight, made of fine wire, is 18ft. by 10ft. by 7ft. high. I have Yorkshires, Norwich, and Crests. I reduce my birds to six or seven pairs each spring.

KITTIE CLAY.

A Substantial Adjustable Seed Crusher.

Sir,—Seeing the query re an adjustable seed-crusher, I may say I have one—a coffee mill, for which I paid 3s. 6d. new from an ironmonger's shop. It has an adjusting screw so that you can crush any kind of seed from maw seed to sunflower, and to any size you like. It will last a lifetime. The name of the machine is the "Sylo (Registered)."

R. G. LEIGH.

Does the L. and P.O.S. Need Rousing?

Sir,—In answer to "Member," I am one who has the welfare of the L. and P.O.S. keenly at heart, and one who wants to see more members attend the meetings and more exhibits at the shows—in a word, more life and energy in the whole affair. I know also that the above question was broached last year at the Young Bird Show, held at the Raglan, and this year at the meeting ("Questions and Answers"), held at the Mission Hall, June 15, where it was asked, "What could be done to make the L. and P.O.S. a success?" To my idea the answer is that the programme of events for the year be carried out as arranged at the general meeting, and not one thing be replaced by another—additions are wanted, not substitutes.

INTERESTED.

The Norwich Plainhead Club Classification.

Sir,—I should like to point out to members and others that the Norwich classes have been altered to meet our requirements at Great Harwood and Derby shows, and that great care must be exercised in making entries; otherwise mistakes may be made and entries made in the wrong classes. It would be as well, after putting the class number on entry form, if exhibitors would write the description of the bird; that is, whether clear or marked, and so on. Then the secretary will know whether such bird is entered in the right class or not. May I appeal to members to support these shows as liberally as possible, as they are our two last shows for this season, and the committee would very much like to see all the classes well filled. Will natural colour exhibitors kindly note especially that there are two classes at each show and make an effort to send an entry or two along so that they will repay the societies who put them on?

CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE

Our Bond of Good-fellowship. How it is being Promoted. A Humanitarian Poet!

NOTES BY THE SECRETARY.

Patrons: Mrs. TINNISWOOD MILLER, London; The Hon. MARY HAWKE, Tadcaster; Sir R. J. CORBET, Bart., Shrewsbury; E. J. BROOK, Esq., Ecclefechan; the Rev. G. H. RAYNOR, Maldon; A. EZRA, Esq., London. Vice-Presidents: Mrs. M. B. PARTRIDGE, Worthing; Miss C. M. E. HILL, Exeter; H. D. ASTLEY, Esq., M.A., F.Z.S., M.B.O.U., Newbury; C. E. RATTIGAN, Esq., London; C. CUSHNY, Esq., London; J. MACE, Esq., Sheffield; W. H. RAVEN, Esq., Nottingham.

An Important Step Forward.

I am pleased to be enabled to announce a further list of shows at which members of CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE will be admitted at a less charge than is made to the general public. It is gratifying indeed to find so many committees agreeing with the suggestion made. It places beyond doubt the fact that in CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE there exists a feeling of good-fellowship all round, and I hope that all members of the LEAGUE in the towns mentioned will make a point of supporting by their presence the shows that have extended this concession. The badge will be an introduction from one member to another, and mutual benefit cannot fail to result from an interchange of courtesies between fanciers who would otherwise remain strangers to each other. The defence of our hobby, important though it be, is not the only object for which we exist. One of our main objects is the promotion of a bond of good-fellowship and union between bird-keepers all over the world, and a very important step in this direction has now been taken. I have no doubt that next week I shall be in a position to add materially to the list which now stands as under.

Preferential Tariffs.

At the shows at which the ordinary charge is one shilling LEAGUE members will be admitted for ninepence; if the usual admission is fixed at sixpence, only fourpence will be charged to LEAGUE members; and if fourpence be the charge LEAGUE members will get in for threepence. It is especially pleasing that not only have so many societies responded in this generous manner, but the letters of the secretaries have in every case expressed appreciation of the LEAGUE and its work, and best wishes for its continued success. The shows are as follows:—

Nov. 18—King's Lynn.
Woodside (Aberdeen), Burgh Hall.
Enfield, Drill Hall.
Kilmarnock, Art Gallery Halls.
Tideswell, Bagshaw Hall.

More Hon. Secs.

This week I have again to announce additions to our list of Honorary Secretaries. These are as follows:—

Swanley, Kent; Mr. W. Colyer, 2, Station Road.

Alnwick; Mr. R. Forster, 36, Bondgate Without.

Poetical Humanitarians.

"The Humanitarian," in its issue for the current month makes a poetic reference to CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE, and a member has sent me in reply a poem in similar phraseology, but putting the matter from the opposite point of view. This also is reproduced below, as showing that in the matter of caged birds there are, as in most cases, two sides to the question. If the Editor of "The Humanitarian" would like some authentic instances in support of the quotation which he makes from my own article these will be forthcoming in any number. Apropos, I have at present a Starling which we can allow to go loose, and which will return to his cage directly it is put where he can see it. This particular bird was at one time rescued from the jaws of a cat, and can only imperfectly fly. He recognises his cage as a refuge against the occurrence of a similar attack, but I have had scores of birds possessed of their full capacities of flight, and who were equally glad to get back to the cage after a spell of liberty.

Cage Birds League and the Muse.

Nor iron bars a cage."—Colonel Lovelace.

"It is a fact that the British bird, kept with proper attention in a cage or aviary, will prefer confinement to liberty; or, as it may be better put, will prefer the protection and care of its owner to the tender mercies of Nature."—(Mr. Henry J. Fulljames, Secretary of the Cage Birds League.)

Ye silly birds, that still delight
To flit from tree to tree,
What gain ye by your restless flight?
How helps it to be free?
Hear ye the friendly fancier speak
Your madness to assuage:
Come, fold those weary wings and seek
True comfort in a cage!

A cage, it is the cosiest home—
Not built so broad and high
As that inhospitable dome,
The blue and boundless sky;
Here shall ye find content indeed,
Secure from wind and weather,
With naught to do but chirp and feed,
And preen each idle feather.

Then, if some faddist fool design
To raise unseemly strife,
By prating of the joys divine
Of Nature's open life,
With ruffled plume and swelling throat
Reprove such base intrigue,
And twitter on your topmost note—
"Long live the CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE!"

LOVELACE, JUN.

Ye silly men who still delight
To prate of wild birds free,
What gain ye by your restless flight
Of imbecility?
Hear ye the friendly fancier speak
Your madness to assuage:
Come, let us try the truth to seek,
To stultify your rage.

The cage, it is a kindlier place
Than ruthless Nature's field,
Where cold and hunger birds must face
When earth no fare doth yield.
The captives' lives are not at stake,
And thus I'll still engage:—
"Stone walls do not a prison make,
Nor iron bars a cage."

So, if ye still think us unkind
To take the birds for good,
And cage them snugly, and then find
For them their wonted food—
Then sure are ye devoid of sense,
Or fond of base intrigue;
But know ye this:—The birds' defence
Inspires the CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE!

Posters for the Shows.

In response to the suggestions of several members, neat posters have been prepared conveying an invitation to visitors to shows to join CAGE BIRDS LEAGUE and assist to protect our hobby. Many Secretaries have already expressed their wish to have these posters for display at their exhibitions, and I shall be glad to forward copies to any applying for them. I hope, therefore, that all Secretaries will take advantage of the offer now made, and apply for the Posters forthwith.

Handbills for the Shows.

Many applications have been received from Hon. Secs. of Societies for a supply of our handbills for distribution, and parcels have been despatched to all applicants. A number will be sent gratis and post free to the Secretary of any forthcoming show who may write me for them, stating the number he will require. The name of the society will in each case be printed at the foot of the handbills sent. A copy of the bill was printed in our issue of November 4.

OUR LEAGUE SEALS.

These pretty seals are printed in gold and colours in exact fascimile of our Badges, and are an ornament to envelopes, notepaper, postcards, billheads, etc. All members should use them; price eightpence per hundred, post free. Smaller quantities at the hundred rate, but with one penny extra for postage.

For particulars of our badges, and free booklets, and for terms of membership, etc., see Nov. 11th issue (p. 349).

ENTRIES OVER 100 UP AT WIMBLEDON.

Another fine Exhibition in the Metropolis on November 14 and 15.

Once more the members of the Wimbledon and Dis. C.B.S. have brought off a most successful show. The entries this year totalled nearly 800, about 120 more than last year. The exhibiting public have now such confidence in Secretary H. Smith, and his committee that there is no lack of support. The only question that should at all worry them is space to stage the birds, for although the hall is a fine one and could safely stage a thousand exhibits, the venture is so popular with the London Fanciers that at times the crush is pretty severe, but everything went off gaily, and everybody was delighted with the fine exhibition. In Mr. H. Smith the Society have secured an ideal secretary. He is painstaking and careful, and particularly keen about the exhibits entrusted to his care. He has in Mr. W. H. Stoakley (chairman) a really good assistant, who on the show day surpassed himself in the amount of work he managed to get through. Their joint efforts were particularly noticeable in the smart way in which the catalogues were on hand. In the clerical part of the show work Mr. Smith was greatly assisted by his son, who worked hard. The committee, Messrs. Carson, Dell, Dixon, Dyke, Found, Griffiths, Owen, Rorke and Whittome are all well-known fanciers, and we particularly noticed Mr. and Mrs. Owen and Son, Mr. and Mrs. Griffiths, and Messrs. Day, Wright, Randall, and Veen, who all did yeoman service. The genial President was much in evidence, and was all smiles at the opening ceremony. This was performed by the Mayor and Mayoress of Wimbledon, who showed unusual interest in the exhibits, the Mayoress being particularly taken with the Rollers. Coming to the birds, numbers were pretty equally divided between the Yorks and Nor. As a rule the slim ones predominate, but this year the chubby ones were well in evidence, and the S.P. cup competition brought out some of the best birds in the South, and a few from the Midlands. This show always manages a good turn out of Yorks., and this year the quality was well up to the average. The Unflighted (novice) class was a stormer for numbers and quality; it contained quite two-thirds Yellow birds, and all typical, and difficult to separate. The two classes for Borders filled very well, and the birds were well up in type, and that lovely quality of feather so conspicuous with this variety. The novice section in both Nor. and Yorks. filled well. The judges were: Messrs. H. Knight, Yorks.; J. Robson, Nor.; and other open classes; H. Norman, members'.

Mr. Norman's Classes.

A bad breeding season naturally influences entries considerably, and the members of this society were unfortunately among those Fanciers who did not experience the best of luck. In spite of this some 200 birds were staged, and if the numbers did not come up to the expectations of the secretary, we can honestly say the merit of the exhibits was quite high-class. In this respect the Norwich have made rapid strides. Mrs. Thynne staged two good ones in the champion classes, the buff securing a coveted special. Mr. Dixon's unflighted buff was runner-up for the Whittome cup, this being secured by a lovely marked Yorks. sent in by a popular lady exhibitor, Mrs. Owen, of Wimbledon Park. Yorks., too, were good. The popular secretary, Mr. H. Smith, did well, and would have done even better if he could have given a bit more time to preparing the birds. The novice section was exceptionally good.

KIRKCUDBRIGHT.

Ninth annual exhibition and competition of the Kirkcudbright F.A. (open to the counties of Dumfries, Kirkcudbright, and Wigtown) held in Drill Hall, Nov. 4th. The weather was very cold, but dry, and there was a moderate turn-out of visitors. The hall is an ideal place for a cage bird show, being large, well lighted, and free from draughts. The entry was a good one for a local show, though about 100 less than last year; but there were 40 less classes in the schedule than last year, which shows that this Association is held in favour by the Fancy. The reason for making it a confined show was the expenditure incurred last year, resulting in a loss of about £7. The committee feel confident they will be able to wipe out the deficit this year, and hope to make a grand open show another year. The birds were nicely staged at the end of the Hall, furthest from the door, well out of draughts, and on the three tier system; and they received every attention from the stewards in charge, who paid strict attention to duty. The Border Fancies had only two classes allotted them, and this in a district that can boast of 2,000 being kept by fanciers is surely a sad mistake. We would recommend the committee to provide a little larger classification another year, when we feel confident they would receive liberal support, if the show were properly advertised. The quality of the birds was grand. Mr. H. Rae, the genial deputy chairman, and his committee of management were all that could be desired, and did everything in their power for both exhibitors and exhibit. The committee on the birds were Messrs. James and John Andrew, J. Flannigan and W. Hannah. Mr. J. G. Penny, the secretary and treasurer had everything in apple pie order, and admirably carried out the duties of his office. The judge, Mr. F. McCreadie (Dumfries) gave general satisfaction.

HALTWHISTLE.

Haltwhistle and Dis. C.B.S. first annual show held Nov. 10th, in the New Mechanics' Hall. Entries came up very well, totalling 300. Border Fancies, Mules, and British were a feature in themselves. The Norwich section was rather disappointing in numbers, but what were present were of very good quality. The New Mechanics' Hall is an ideal place for an exhibition of this kind, being centrally situated, well lighted and ventilated, and possessing plenty of room. The committee have all worked exceedingly hard, and got some splendid specials together, and everything points to a bigger success next year. The Judge was Mr. J. Dixon (Wigton), whose awards seemed to give every satisfaction. Mr. J. Nicholson, the sec., had an arduous task; he was very painstaking and obliging, and was backed by a lot of working committeemen consisting of Messrs. Pape (chairman), Bowerbank, Yeoman, Makepeace, J. Pape, Dodd, Leighton, Spark, W. Spark, Carruthers, Armstrong, Slater, Moscrop, Hyslop, Topping, and Benson. Everything was in order, and judging commenced at ten sharp. The members proved themselves genuine enthusiasts by the number of entries they made. Specials:—Most points in show: 1st, Holden; 2nd, Ellwood. Most points Borders: 1st, J. Nicholson; 2nd, A. PARTICK.

Partick and Dis. C.B.S. annual show, held 4th November, and it proved a great success. Canaries were grand classes, many of the exhibits being well known winners. Spl. for best in show was secured by a grand all-round Crest. Norwich and Yorks were the strongest classes. The old bird classes contained some fine, all-round exhibits. British birds were a nice lot, although a shade down in numbers. The show was held in the Subway Hall, an ideal place for a bird show, being well lighted and free from draughts. Mr. Priest, the worthy secretary, had everything well in hand, and was ably assisted by an enthusiastic committee. Mr. J. W. Bruce (Coldstream) judged Canaries, and Mr. J. Moreland (Bainsford) the British, etc., and their awards were well received.

GREAT HORTON.

Best Y.U. Show of the Season.

"The finest show seen in Yorkshire this season," was the general comment at Great Horton on Saturday last, and, said the local executive, "the best Great Horton has ever had. We have had more entries, but with more classes; never before have we had a show averaging over twenty per class." As usual, the show was held in the Congregational Schoolroom, a grandly lighted building, and all the light was needed, as Saturday morning last was cold and foggy, and in consequence many of the birds did not look their best. The twenty-seven classes totalled 541, all of which were Yorkshires except the thirty-six Novice Norwich. 500 odd Yorkies, and a grand lot, too, especially the hens. Such a magnificent lot of hens we have never seen before—just under 200. The arrangements were splendid; the stewards, Messrs. W. Ormandroyd, J. Shackleton, A. Sykes, and that grand old enthusiast, Harry Jennings, had four tables fixed up, thus the birds had time to settle down after being carried from the benches, and the judge's time was not wasted. Grandly did this quartette work; indeed, to use a Yorkshirism, they were "champion." Mr. J. Holroyd, notwithstanding the fact that he was far from well, got through the duties of secretariat with satisfaction to exhibitors and credit to himself. Mr. C. A. House judged.

FORFAR.

Second annual show of the Forfar C.B. Improvement Society was held in the large Reid Hall on Nov. 11. The Hall is a grand one for a show; it is well lighted all round, and has plenty of floor space. The exhibits were staged right round the hall, and visitors had plenty of room to examine the different classes in a comfortable way. The entries show a good increase on last year, and some of the dons were forward in every section. Norwich were a grand show, and Mr. W. Grewar (Forfar) won the Bowman rose bowl, with his clinking fine buff cock—a very popular win. Mr. G. Mitchell (last year's bowl winner) was runner-up with a grand clear buff hen. Mr. W. Hampton (Brechin) won Sandiford's medal. Most of the winners in the Border section were exhibited at Brechin the previous week, and there was a marked difference in the judge's awards. Mr. J. Craig (Brechin) was winner of the Scott cup for the second year in succession, and also the Border Club medal, with a dandy clear buff cock. British and foreign birds were the best show seen in Forfar for many a year. Many outstanding birds were forward, and Mr. Taylor won special for best in section with a splendid Redstart in rare fettle. The show was well looked after by the genial president (Mr. Bowman) and his henchman, Mr. J. Stevenson (vice-pres.); and they were ably backed up by an energetic committee and some capable stewards. The hon. sec., W. Fyfe, had everything in first-class working order, and more work on a show day would but serve to bring out his abilities to the full. Judges: Norwich, Mr. J. Sandison (Aberdeen); Borders, Mr. W. Mossie (Anbank); and British and Foreign, Mr. A. W. Watson (Edinburgh). Their awards gave general satisfaction, very little grumbling being heard.

NEATH.

Show held General Market, November 9th. Unfortunately through clashing with Swansea show, entries were very meagre in our section. The committee were a very hardworking lot of fanciers, and had everything well in order. The secretary, Mr. R. J. Llewellyn, was a very obliging and courteous official. Mr. G. H. Billett judged.

HIGH BLANTYRE.

High Blantyre C.B.S. 20th annual show held November 4th, Masonic Hall. The entries showed a slight decrease on former years, but the quality was considered by good judges far ahead of that of any previous show. The Scotch Fancy cup winner which also got special for old and young, was a grand shaped one of Mr. W. Wilson's, which was greatly admired. The Scotch Fancies all over were a good lot. Plainheads came up well, and included some rattling good birds. The winner in the young buff cock class got cup for best young Norwich; it was a very neat, typical bird, not over large, but of good feather, and nicely mealed, and belonged to Mr. J. Wilson. Special for best hird in hall went to Mr. W. Wilson, with his old buff Norwich cock, a right good one, rare stamp and feather, good size, nice wings, a very popular win. Borders turned out well, type and quality being all there. The winning buff (belonging to Mr. A. Marshall) won cup for best young one, and special for best old or young bird was a typical bird of great merit; the more it was handled the tighter in feather it seemed to get. Mules were disappointing in quantity, but this was made up for in quality, First, cup and 2nd in the Light class went to two grand birds, former 6-pointed, Mr. J White. Novelties in the Dark class were two hybrids between the St. Helena Seedeater and a Canary. British birds were not up to the usual standard, though the winning Greenfinch, Mealy Redpoll and Lesser Redpoll were above the ordinary. The Secretary, Mr. D. Berry, was happy in his methods, and had the arrangements well in hand. Mr. J. F. Dewar judged, his awards appearing to please everybody.

BANBRIDGE.

Held Town Hall, Nov. 9 and 10. The birds were nicely beached, and were well looked often. The exhibition was the best ever held at Banbridge, both to point of nubmbers and quality. The Scotch Fancies were a fine lot, showing plenty of substance and reach. The Norwich turned up well, and the cup winner of Mr. Thompson's was a gem. The Yorks were a grand lot. Grand birds were also shown in the novice and members' classes. British birds were a fine collection. The following gentlemen were special winners:—Messrs. Ronaldson, Mallagh, Dunlop, senr., Hamilton, Lavery, Thompson, Graham, Connell, Faith, Hegan, Fleming, Woods, Gillen, Ryan, Dunwoody. The attendance was very good, many of the fanciers coming a long distance to have a look at their favourites. The hon. sec., Mr. McCagherty, was very obliging, and looked well after both exhibits and exhibitors. His staff also worked very hard to make the show a success. Messrs. Faith, Lavery, Adamson, Arlow, Boyd, Currans, Hayes, Woods, Gilchrist, Pepper, Brown, and others were a capital lot of fanciers, and took a great interest in the show. We hope exhibitors will in the future patronise the Banbridge show, as we feel sure the fanciers in the district will look well after the exhibits and the interests of exhibitors. Mr. Wright judged the Belgians, Scotch Fancies, and British birds, and Mr. W. Mundell (Bradford) the Nor. and Yorks.

LONDONDERRY.

Second annual show of the City of Derry C.B. and P.S. held Union Hall, Nov. 4. The hall is one of the best; it is free from draughts, and has an even temperature, and it is beautifully lighted, which made things very comfortable. The staging and management generally were perfect, and reflect the greatest credit on all concerned. All are willing workers and experienced fanciers connected with this young club, and we congratulate the officials on the undoubted success of their latest venture. The entries came up well in excess of last year's, and the quality was well maintained. Competition for the silver challenge cup was very keen. Mr. J. Gallagher presented a beautiful gold medal. In Mr. A. T. Colgher the society possesses a practical and energetic hon. sec., who had matters well in hand, and was ably assisted by a hard working and capable band of helpers in Messrs. Cargill, Platt, Hunt, Glenn, Roulson, Gallagher, McClelland, McMeremin, Hyndman, Routledge, Faulkner, McComb, Scott, Lowry, Kerr, Doogan, Kincaid, Dunlop, etc. Mr. Connolly Sherrard placed the cards, and his awards gave entire satisfaction.

Fine Feathers at Nottingham

AND A RECORD ATTENDANCE.

Over 1,000 visitors on the opening day, despite fog and rain, and a "gate" of £25.

Thirtieth annual show held Nov. 11 and 13, in the Mechanics' Lecture Hall. Our journey from London to this old-established and always well-managed Midland fixture, had its disappointing features. We left Marylebone in sunny, almost spring-like, weather, only to find when we approached the lace city that the locality had borrowed for the day one of those unlovely fogs known as a 'London particular.' The atmosphere was very "pea-soupy," and the chill in the air helped to deepen our depression. But a simple ceremony (in which chinking of tea-cups played its part), undertaken in company with several other fanciers who had made the journey from London, put us on the high road to recovery, and our first glimpse of the cosy, well-warmed show-room effectually completed the cure. The Mechanics' Hall is a grand place in which to hold a bird show, and the experienced fanciers of Nottingham know how to set it out to the best possible advantage. Their three-tier system of staging is most excellent, and the row of electric lights specially run down the centre of each aisle on a level with the top of the wood framework, answers well, the light being absolutely perfect. At night the hall was bright and beautiful in the extreme. The birds, too, were tended with the greatest possible care, and nothing left undone to achieve success—in a word, the management was irreproachable.

Compensations.

It was with regret we learned that the entry in point of number was something of a disappointment—not anything like the "full measure, brimming over" which this society indisputably merits. We wonder whether this can be in anyway due to the fact that the fixture is a Saturday and Monday one? Somehow we are inclined to think some prejudice exists against shows with a Sunday in between, though it is not easy to account for it. However, upwards of 700 birds put in an appearance, and on all sides were to be seen representatives of the various breeds which could claim to be amongst the finest of their kind on the show-bench to-day. And how the local bird-lovers appreciated the good fare provided. Never before was such a crowd packed away in the hall. In spite of fog, and the rain that followed in its train, the visitors rolled up in droves, and we were not surprised to get a whisper from the secretary as we were on the point of departing that all records had been broken, over 1,000 people having passed through the door, leaving some £25 behind them with the doorkeeper! Here, indeed, was compensation for the ungenerous support of the exhibitors.

The Master Minds.

At the head of affairs was Mr. R. Rhodes (the chairman), to whose tact and business ability the society owes so much, and under the watchful eye of this widely-popular and respected gentleman things moved smoothly along without hitch or flurry. Mr. Geo. C. Ley, the vice-chairman, is another gentleman who stands high in the estimation of his fellow fanciers. He puts heart and soul into the work of the society and its shows, and everyone acknowledges the invaluable nature of the services he so cheerfully renders. We were sorry to find him not in the best of health, though indisposition quite failed to check his enthusiasm.

The committee, Messrs. T. Barker, W. Cottingham, J. Goode, G. Hill, T. Hodkinson, J. H. Northage, I. Onion, W. H. Raven, G. Sharpe, E. Wolfe, and G. A. White, are all good fanciers, who work ungrudgingly in the interests of the fixture.

The general success of the show was a well-deserved tribute to their labours, and to the work of the judges' stewards, Messrs. F. Moore, Goode, F. Clark, Hill, G. W. Boaler, J. W. Saywell, Barker, Cottingham.

A Rare "Bird."

We always commence a special paragraph when we start to talk about the Nottingham secretary, Mr. G. E. Wilkinson, for he is just about unique. He doesn't keep birds; and he would blush for our untruthfulness if we said that he knew much about birds. Yet as secretary of a bird show we should like to meet his superior. We all know the work there is attached to this post. But Mr. Wilkinson simply thrives on it, and everything to which he puts his hand is "well and truly" done, while nothing serves to disturb his habitual serenity or courtesy of manner. The writer is a proud man even to own the same initials to his name; and what more can he say? This year Mr. Wilkinson found an able helper in Mr. G. T. Royce, who attended to the award labels and other items in first-rate style.

Other valuable helpers were Mr. W. H. Raven, who, with his son, fed and looked after the British and Foreign birds in a manner which did him every credit, and Mr. G. A. White, who discharged the unthankful task of "advertisement canvasser" in a manner highly beneficial to the society.

Some Marvellous Crests.
